Ex-Nazi Agent Admits Espionage; Dies Raids German, Italian Clubs

Operatives Enter 10 Offices in Chicago; 'Society Woman' To Be Arrested Soon

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 18.—A 23-year-old alien, until recently an agent of the Gestapo, appeared before a secret hearing of the House Committee on Un-American Activities tonight with photographs of United States industrial plants and admitted he had engaged in both plant and military espionage in this country, Representative Dies (Democrat), of Texas, said.

Dies said the witness, Heinrich Peter Fassbender, alias Harry Smith, had admitted having received checks from the German government varying in amounts from $100 to $200.

"He had photographs of industrial plants and the names of people he was connected with," Dies said. "He admitted having taken part in both plant and military espionage."

10 Societies Raided

Dies made the announcement at conclusion of the first session of a two-day hearing at which he is questioning officers of ten Chicago organizations of persons of German and Italian ancestry. During today's sessions, committee investigators made surprise raids with the aid of Chicago policemen on the offices of the societies and confiscated correspondence, financial statements and membership lists.

Dies said raids on similar organizations were made in every principal city in the United States today and that in one raid here his investigators had found "something that is completely incriminating."

[At an early hour today police headquarters and the office of the United States Marshal had made no reports of raids in Washington or vicinity.—Editor's note.]

Has Record of Checks

Fassbender, who recently quit but still carries identification as an agent of the Gestapo, was subpenaed at Los Angeles and brought here today by plane by a committee investigator.

Dies said the committee had obtained a record of the checks Fassbender received from the German government. He did not identify

Girl's 5-Year Quest Rewarded; Finds Father She's Never Seen

By Scott Hart

Robert E. King, of the old Georgetown residence at 3259 R Street Northwest, yesterday looked upon the picture of his 19-year-old talented daughter, who lives in Denver, and knew that soon he would see her in the flesh and for the first time.

His children by a second marriage, Eugene, 16, and Tillie, 14 gathered around their father and Mrs. King about the photograph and recalled that King, wondering often about his first-born, had predicted that she would be pretty.

LOLA

KING

But the children knew of their father's anguish only in recent days. He had kept his thoughts to himself, because he had believed that perhaps his daughter did not know of him and he did not want to intrude into her life if she were happier otherwise.

But when his daughter wrote him recently, after a long search to find him, he could not withhold from the children the news of their pretty half-sister. And besides, the second Mrs. King, as she said yesterday, has her "arms open" to Lola Bernice (Anderson) King, now Mrs. Victor Stogeberg, of Denver.

Lola's discovery of her father had satisfied also a burning hope

Adjournment Showdown Due Today

Republicans, Some Southern Democrats Rally to Oppose Resolution to Quit

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The fourth longest session of Congress in history and the first in its record of peacetime appropriations may adjourn sine die today.

And it may not.

Republicans, with some Southern Democratic aid, were rallying last night to oppose the adjournment move. The outcome of the vote was still in doubt.

Win or lose, Congressional Democratic leaders decided yesterday to submit the sine die resolution shortly after both houses of Congress convene, and force it to a showdown.

Both Democratic and Republican leaders freely conceded that the vote "may go either way," depending on the number of House Democratic members who answer the summons to return for the test. Democrats have the votes to adjourn if they can cut absentees to a minimum.

200 Democrats Back

Approximately 200 Democrats had returned late yesterday, and many more were due in overnight. Leaders estimate that 225 Democrats must be on the floor of the House for the adjournment resolution to carry. Some 140 Republicans were back and these, coupled with new arrivals and some Democratic defections, otherwise could block the move.

The adjournment resolution already is drafted. If the resolution is adopted, the session automatically will come to an end when arms of the House and Senate clocks turn to midnight, regardless of other business.

For 322 days today, Congress has been in session. Only in the Fortieth Congress' 345-day session and the Sixty-third Congress' 328-day session, have peacetime Congresses remained longer in Washington. The World War Sixty-fifth Congress sat from December 3, 1917 until November 21, 1918, or 354 days.

President Sees Leaders

If today's move fails, it is possible this Congress will break all records, as leaders indicated their intention to dispose once and for all of the issue today.

Meanwhile, House and Senate met yesterday in their first business sessions since the series of election

Nazi Attack on Greece Expected As Hitler, Boris Meet Secretly; Planes Cover Italian Retreat

Roman Base Of Koritza Reported Fallen In Fierce Fighting

Bulletin

London (Tuesday), Nov. 19 (AP). Reuters, British news agency, in a dispatch from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, said that the Italian base of Koritza in Albania fell to Greek troops at 1 a. m. today.

Athens, Nov. 18.—The battle for Koritza continues with great ferocity and for the second successive day the Italians relied chiefly on air superiority to hold off a determined Greek attack.

Successive formations of bombers and fighters again flew low over the Greek lines spraying them with machine-gun bullets and the momentum of the forward movement certainly has been slowed down.

Nevertheless the Greek forces tonight were able to claim the occupation of certain new Italian defensive positions and the capture of more men and material. The latter includes 10 field guns, 33 anti-tank guns, 15 trench mortars, 10,000 blankets, and a large quantity of wheat seized in a village supply depot.

Greeks in Suburbs

[An International News Service dispatch said the London Daily Telegraph today reported that Greek troops had entered one section of the suburbs of Koritza.

[The Associated Press, quoting a Greek government spokesman, said more than 30,000 Italian troops, fighting to save themselves and huge military stores built up in Koritza, called up their airmen to cover their retreat.

[At stake, neutral and military quarters said, are warehouses filled with supplies collected for months by the Italians for the campaign into Greece which began three weeks ago today.]

Seven Italian bombers and two fighters have been shot down. Two Greek planes were lost.

There is no doubt that Greek casualties are high but the advance is said to be continuing, if, at a con-

A Cheerful Giver

Army Inducts No. 1 Draftee; He's Glad to Pay Off WPA Aid

Figures He's Returning Help Government Gave Him When He Needed It

By the Associated Press

Fort Devens, Mass., Nov. 18.—The U. S. Army's No. 1 rookie under the Nation's first peacetime selective service left a civilian life of job-hunting today for a year in uniform after being advised that service in the Army was as good—or as tough—"as you make it."

John Edward Lawton, 21, single, of Everett, owed his distinction to the clock, which gave New England a head start in mustering in the new soldiers and to the fact that four ahead of him in line flunked their physical examinations.

Slowly and solemnly, Capt. Harold E. Linderson, in charge of the simple yet impressive induction service at Boston, spoke to Lawton.

"You," he said, "are the first man in the United States to be inducted under this program. You've got a lot to live up to and we're expecting a lot from you."

The unemployed plumber's helper bunked down here tonight with his new comrades in arms, confident that he would "like" his year in training and determined to "build myself up."

Lawson was one of a group of 11 lined up shoulder to shoulder at one end of Boston Armory, in front of an American flag placed between two pieces of field artillery. The men stood quietly, unsmilingly, as Linderson told them they were "in the Army now."

"The Government helped me out when I needed it," commented the former WPA worker, "and I'm only too glad to be of service to the Government now."

Thrust in Balkans And at Gibraltar Believed Involved In 'Knockout' Plan

Copyright by New York Times

Feverish Axis diplomatic activity of the past two weeks approached a climax last night, with all signs pointing to an almost immediate German move through Bulgaria to rescue the faltering Italian campaign in Greece.

Three developments supported this belief:

1. Official announcement in Sofia that King Boris held a secret conference with Chancellor Hitler in Berlin

2. Reports from Berne, Switzerland, that official confirmation almost certainly will be given soon to reports which have circulated for weeks to the effect that three to five divisions of fully equipped German soldiers are already in Bulgaria.

3. Increasing reports from Sofia that the moment is very near when a cold "putsch" will put the country in the hands of the Axis.

The move against Greece would only be a part of a greater Axis plan for a quick "knockout" blow against England, however.

Hitler's plans call for Syria by early spring and he hasn't much time left to dally.

Bulgaria is the lone weak bulwark between German-controlled or occupied territory and Turkey, the eventual goal of the German "Drang Nach Osten" since time immemorial.

It is hoped in Axis quarters that the German move through Bulgaria will place Turkey in the position of having to choose between "collaboration with the new European order"—meaning cession of at least the major part of the control of the Dardanelles—or fighting a long, bitter winter campaign.

Plan Against Gibraltar

It is expected she will choose the former.

A third step in the Axis plan was believed to be a scheduled land attack against Gibraltar.

This would be undertaken to split the British Mediterranean forces.

Having accomplished this spirit, Hitler feels Greece will fall an easy prey to his motorized columns and air force.

With this gigantic plan crystalizing, the underlying reasons for the rapid series of Axis diplomatic

Lewis Says He'll Quit Despite Record Ovation

Dominating Conclave, Leader Asks End to 'Damnable Bickering'

By George B. Bookman.
Post Staff Writer

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 18.—John L. Lewis still towered tonight as the dominant figure in the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Tears in his eyes, Lewis today told the movement which he founded five years ago that he will step down as president and left with his followers a valedictory plea for unity in the C. I. O., an end to "damnable bickering."

More than 500 delegates from national, international and local unions, in convention here, paid him in answer a cheering, singing, snake-dancing tribute lasting 43 minutes that left no doubt that the leonine C. I. O. leader pays off his election "bet" on Wendell L. Willkie with the full respect and loyalty of all but a minority of C. I. O. unions.

In all there were three demonstrations, totaling 55 minutes.

Only two unions—Amalgamated Clothing Workers and Textile Workers, both followers of C. I. O. Vice President Sidney Hillman — ab-

Green Says Lewis Blocks Peace in Spite Of President's Hopes

By James Marlow
Associated Press Staff Writer

New Orleans, Nov. 18.—President Roosevelt's desire for a labor peace move, to begin in the White House, was communicated today to the American Federation of Labor Convention which also was informed by Secretary of War Stimson that workers will have to make sacrifices under the defense program.

A. F. of L. President William Green, deeply skeptical that a labor settlement was brought any closer by John L. Lewis' announced intention of resigning the Congress of Industrial Organizations' presidency, told the applauding convention of the President's desire for unity in labor ranks.

Green said:

"The President of the United States is willing to help us and assist us and he has asked if committees (A. F. of L. and C. I. O.) can be assembled and put to work, that they meet with him first of all and explore with him the situation at the White House, there receive his assurances of good will and cooper-

Duce Pledges To Break Back of Greece

'Modern Carthage—England' Also Must Be Destroyed, He Says

(Mussolini's Address, Page 11.)

By the Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 18.—Benito Mussolini promised the Italians tonight that he would "break Greece's back" if it takes a year to do it and that he would make no peace until "the modern Carthage — England" — is annihilated.

From the "battleroom" of his Palazzo Venezia, Il Duce spoke publicly for the first time since he entered the war against France and England last June 10. The occasion was the fifth anniversary of the imposition of sanctions, under British leadership, upon Italy's Ethiopian adventure. His immediate audience was made up of Fascist Party leaders.

He insisted that the British lied

U. S., Britain Agree on Sites For Bases

Accord Provides For Joint Use Of Some Facilities

By the Associated Press

The Navy announced last night that "all the British authorities concerned" had agreed upon the sites to be leased to the United States for a chain of naval, air and army bases stretching from Newfoundland, off Canada, to British Guiana in South America.

At the same time it was disclosed that the agreement provided for the joint use of both British and American facilities in some instances.

The Department gave the first detailed outline of the powerful defense installations planned by this Government.

Plans for the tourise mecca of Bermuda provide, for example, for a land plane base, a seaplane and naval base, a garrison for troops, island

Strikers Reject Grocery's Offer

Striking Sanitary Grocery Co. clerks and managers last night rejected a company compromise and voted to return today to picket lines that closed the firm's 225 stores in the Washington area Saturday.

Informed of the union verdict, Labor Department Conciliator Frank J. Sheehan said he would attempt to arrange another conference between union and company representatives this morning. Conferences Saturday, Sunday and yesterday led to the proposals submitted to the strikers last night at special meetings.

More than 600 clerks crowded into Carpenters Hall, 1003 K Street Northwest, and roared "No!" to the compromise offer which would have meant wage increases for 114 men with less than three years' experience. Union demands for longer paid vacations, seniority rating and $32.50 a week for men with 4½ years' experience were not met.

Ramspeck Bill In Final Test

By Edward Ryan

The Ramspeck civil service bill, en route through Congress for two years, faces a final test in the House and Senate today, with its backers confident that the measure will be approved before adjournment.

In a joint conference of House and Senate civil service leaders yesterday the bill was trimmed of two controversial amendments credited with blocking approval in the House six weeks ago.

The bill would permit the President to bring up to 200,000 Federal job holders into the classified civil service through non-competitive examinations and authorize extending to the field service the Government pay scales now standard in Washington.

The conference deleted a clause which would have required the Civil Service Cimmission to substitute

300 Men Fail To Claim Pay

The question of what to do with 300 unclaimed pay envelopes last night puzzled officials of the Federal Government and the Charles H. Tompkins Co., contractors on a $6,000,000 Army training center project at Fort Belvoir, Va.

At the same time, officers of the company were trying to straighten out a pay envelope mixup involving 200 workmen on the project. The workmen, it was learned, have complained that their pay envelopes last Friday failed to contain wages they believed they had earned.

It is believed the unclaimed pay envelopes belong to workmen who failed to give their correct names when hired.

Errors in wages paid some of the men, officials explained, was due to their failure to understand that on a Government project it is necessary for workmen to report on and off the job to a Federal as well as a

40.81% of Chest Quota Pledged By 59,500 Contributors

Continuance of democracy here must depend upon the willingness of Americans to assume their responsibilities in such undertakings as the Community Chest, Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress, declared yesterday.

"You and the contributors to the Community Chest," he told 700 volunteer solicitors at the report luncheon in the Willard Hotel, "are the real defenders of our democracy."

MacLeish remarked that a "pretty simple reality" now is becoming apparent.

"Where people are ready to assume their responsibilities," he explained, "there liberty lives."

He added, however, that there are "in other places people not only ready to give up their liberty, but to connive to have it taken away."

War—European Style

Bullets Glance Off U. S. Tanks In Real Show of Army Power

Fort Knox, Ky., Nov. 18 (AP).—Using "live" ammunition, the Army demonstrated publicly for the first time today the striking power of its new armored force with a simulated attack by 70 tanks supported by the fire of several hundred machine guns.

Bullets glanced harmlessly off their steel sides as the newest model 12-ton light tanks charged a hillside position on a noisy, smoke-covered battlefield. Close overhead roared attack and observation planes.

The tanks lumbered through the actual fire of their own ground troops in a style which officers said was used in the European war.

The War Department arranged the showing for newspapermen partly as a demonstration that the armored force of two divisions, one of which is at Fort Benning, Ga., was ready for action on short notice.

Germany Expected To Invade Greece

Nazi Force Reported In Bulgaria as Boris, Hitler Meet in Secret

moves of the last few weeks began to take clearer form.

Russian Assent Needed

First, it was necessary to get Soviet Premier Molotoff to Berlin, to discuss the prickly problem of German passage through Bulgaria—a state whose political alignment has been strongly pro-Russian.

Had this visit not sufficed, another would have been made to Moscow, but this was not found necessary, as proven by the fact that King Boris of Bulgaria proceeded on his secret visit to Hitler and doubtless received his instructions about passage of German troops and anything else Hitler wanted to tell him.

Incidenta-lly, the controlled Bulgarian press last night obtained permission from the government to reopen a concentrated editorial against Greece demanding a corridor to the Aegean. At the same time Bulgarian diplomatic quarters pointed out that an attack by as few as ten Bulgarian divisions—150,000 men—against Salonika Province, would have a disastrous effect on the Greek campaign in Albania.

(Some observers thought this indicated Bulgarian help in the German move against the Greeks.)

Terms With Spain

Next—in order to split the British Mediterranean forces—it was necessary to come to terms with Spain. The result was a series of conferences with Franco and Ramon Serrano Suner, Spanish foreign minister, to arrange for the passage of German troops through Spanish territory to attack Gibraltar.

This accounts for Serrano Suner's presence in Berchtesgaden.

One report had it that he was being offered all of Morocco in exchange for an open door to German troops.

That Germany could go through without this authorization is not doubted for one minute, but Germany prefers not to throw the Iberian peninsula into the arms of the British "for their protection."

U. S. Warships Expected

Supporting the report that some action may be expected in Morocco was seen in reports from Tangier that the United States shortly would send a cruiser and two destroyers to that Spanish-occupied port to safeguard American interests.

The next move, according to the present outlook, will come some time within the next 72 hours.

Today, tomorrow or Thursday, Italy's foreign minister, Count Ciano; Hungary's foreign minister, Count Czaky, and Reich Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop are scheduled to meet in Vienna for the final phases of consultations concerning closer cooperation on the part of Hungary with Germany and Italy.

3-Power Pact Expected

At that time, the broad lines of this cooperation are expected to be made public.

Publication, it is anticipated, will take the form of a three-power pact which will bind Budapest policies to Berlin and Rome similarly as Bratislava is bound since the Slovak nation was established as an independent state under Germany's protection.

The pact, it is expected, will leave no room for doubt that the Hungarian government has decided to cooperate closely in the rapid effectuation of the Axis plan for "Europe's rejuvenating."

200,000 Nazis in Rumania

This will leave the balance of continental Europe in the following position:

Rumania, having asked Hitler to intervene to "put its house in order," is "occupied" at the present moment by an estimated 200,000 to 300,000 German "army instructors"—all well-equipped.

Yugoslavia, governed as she is by a patchwork government under a somewhat vacillating figurehead, Premier Cvetkovitch, will have to give in to the new order or face oblivion—and it is felt she will give in.

With his plan of conquest thus taking shape, Hitler apparently wants no more meddling by Italy in the Balkans.

So in exchange for any "concessions" (of the "occupied" Hellenic Peninsula) in the Balkans, he is preparing to offer Italy—at the expense of France—both Tunis and Algeria. This being "positively his last territorial claim against France," the remainder of the French colonies are expected to be governed by a joint Franco-Italo-German mandate and among the colonies so to be governed will be those in the Western Hemisphere.

Duce Promises To Break Greece

when they reported the crippling of half of Italy's six battleships and four other war vessels by torpedo planes in Taranto harbor a week ago. He declared flatly that the Italian high command told the truth when it said that only one warship was damaged seriously enough to require extensive repairs, although three were hit.

"It is false, I say, that two other warships and two auxiliary vessels were sunk or hit or damaged even slightly in any way," Mussolini cried. "It is a sign of bad conscience, this enlargement and multiplication by six of the success which we acknowledged."

Italy, said Il Duce, has the strength alone to crush Greece and she will do it . . . "Whether in 2 months or 12 months."

"The rough mountains of Epirus and its muddy valleys do not lend themselves to lightning war," Mussolini acknowledged, but he scoffed at claims of Italian reverses by "Greek propaganda and its English loudspeaker."

Especially, Mussolini denied that his Julia Alpine division had been wiped out and said that Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, his new commander in the Greek campaign, had reported on November 12 that he had found this unit "stronger than ever."

He listed Italian losses in the first ten days of the 22-day-old Greek campaign as 372 dead, 1,081 wounded and 650 missing and pledged:

"They will be revenged, for whatever happens, I will never turn back."

Mussolini said the Greeks, mysteriously hating Italy "as no other people," conspired with the British to humble Italy and make Britain the absolute Mediterranean power that Carthage was.

Cites French Papers

He cited papers found by the German general staff in France which, he said, showed that Greece offered the former Allies all her air and naval bases as early as last May.

Mussolini avoided any hint of the course of future Axis action, but he stressed that Italy's collaboration with Germany was "really comradely and totalitarian;" that "we are marching side by side" and thinking alike, and that the recent Hitler-Mussolini meetings only consecrated "this complete fusion of our conceptions."

These meetings resulted in the three-power pact with Japan, developments in the Danubian Basin and determined "the future position of France," he said, and he concluded:

"We have a million men under arms, but we can call eight more (millions) if necessary. . . . Germans and Italians together, we are a bloc of 150,000,000, resolute, compact and firm from Norway to Libya, in the heart of Europe. . . . This bloc already has victory in its fist."

Italy's high command gave Il Duce's speech a cheerful prologue by reporting that a torpedo-dropping Italian plane had paid Britain back in kind by hitting a British cruiser of the 7,000-ton Leander type at Alexandria. It also said a Greek cavalry unit had been "wiped out" near Konitza.

3 Killed in Blast At Canadian Munitions Plant

Nobel, Ont., Nov. 18 (Canadian Press).—Three men were killed here tonight in an explosion in the TNT Division of the Defence Industries, Ltd., factory, a munitions plant.

A. M. Malcolm, a company official, said it had not been determined whether there were other casualties.

Va. Epileptic Colony Hit by Fourth Fire

Lynchburg, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Fire last night damaged slightly a dairy barn at the State colony for epileptics. It was the fourth blaze at the institution in recent weeks.

With one inmate in the Amherst County jail charged with setting the colony's main barn ablaze a few weeks ago with a loss of $10,000, Dr. G. R. Arnold, superintendent, said this morning that two patients were being questioned about last night's fire.

Italian Planes Covering Retreat

siderably slower pace. The Italians have not launched a counterattack on land equal to their air defense in the past 48 hours. Actual details of the combat are hard to secure.

Reports Conflict

For example the Athens radio announced that the mopping up of the Morava region has been completed although it had been understood previously that this operation was already finished. Likewise, it is announced that the last Italian defensive post, atop Mount Ivan, was "in a critical position," whereas it had been said previously that the peak had been taken.

Of other sectors there was little news.

The Greek forces still continue to harry Italians north of Kalamas. At Argyrokastron moving columns of Italian troops were bombed by the Greek air force.

The military situation is summarized accordingly by an official spokesman:

"On all sectors the Greek army continues offensive action. We continue to annihilate successfully enemy positions based on natural heights.

Press Urges Patience

"In the Koritza sector the Italians have important passes but dare not counterattack and are only employing airplanes in a large force to protect the retreat of their troops."

The Athens press takes the view that the public should remain patient as the fall of Koritza and the Italian rout remain only a question of days. The well-known daily, Lefheron Vima, estimates that during the first three weeks of the war 59 Italian airplanes have been shot down and more than 20 destroyed on the ground, compared with eight Greek planes lost.

Air activity within the country has been on a reduced scale today.

The most interesting piece of news today was the announcement of a Homeric voyage on the part of 16 exiles from the Dodecanese Islands who set sail from a Greek port in a motorboat last night to raid one of the smallest of the 12 Aegean Islands, ruled by Italians and claimed by the Greeks.

The tiny expeditionary force captured three carabineri and their commander, and then killed three sailor guards, including an officer, before retiring to their boat.

Duce's Speech Printed

Official radio and government circles carry much of Mussolini's speech. It is claimed here to demonstrate the disillusion and difficulties of fascism and it is considered comic that the Duce should mention only the relatively light Italian losses incurred during the first ten days of skirmishing when for the past 12 days there have been heavy battles.

It is pointed out that there is a deal of illogic in the successive statements of the Duce that the Greek government in collaboration with Britain dragged the Greek people into the war; and then that the Greek people have always hated Italians more than anyone else.

Such a defender of the principle of nationality as Santa Rosa would be imprisoned in Fascist Italy, according to an official spokesman.

He emphasized that Greece has always sought to maintain good relations with Italy and even has not allowed Dodecanese revisionists to demonstrate but that in return for this friendly policy Greece received the Corfu bombing in 1923 and the Helle incident last August.

storthouses for explosives, and improved harbor facilities.

Patrol plane and seaplane bases commanding a wide expanse of the South Atlantic are to be installed in British Guiana.

The facilities at Newfoundland, commanding the North Atlantic approaches to this continent from Europe, will include an air and naval base and a site of approximately 160 acres for an army defensive force.

Leases upon all the sites are to be obtained by this country in exchange for the 50 destroyers traded several months ago to Great Britain.

The announcement said that agreement had been reached upon sites for bases in Bermuda, the Bahamas, Jamaica and Antigua, St. Lucia, British Guiana and Newfoundland.

Officials said no decision had been reached in regard to Trinidad, off the northeast coast of South America and an important link in the chain of proposed bases. It is believer, however, that the facilities there are certain to include a base for seaplanes.

Regarding Jamaica, just south of Cuba, the Navy reported that the agreement included "the right to develop resources and facilities for the Port Royal dockyard under British control for the joint use of United States and British forces."

Reciprocal rights were also to be granted both United States and British military aircraft, the announcement said, to use British and American airfields on Jamaica. Such use is to be "within the limits of capacity"

Court Upholds A.F.L. in C.I.O. Row

NLRB Contention Sustained in Another Labor Case Ruling

By John B. Oakes

Post Staff Writer

In a case involving a row between the A. F. of L. and C. I. O., the Supreme Court yesterday held that an A. F. of L. union could not be enjoined from picketing merely because its action was an alleged violation of the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

The unanimous decision reversed a circuit court finding that the Norris-LaGuardia Act, which generally forbids injunctions in labor disputes, can be disregarded if the union against which the injunction is sought has violated the anti-trust law.

Justice Black, who as Senator was familiar with the legislative struggles over the Norris-LaGuardia Act in 1932, delivered the opinion of the Court.

"The committee reports on the Norris-LaGuardia Act reveal that many of the injunctions which were considered most objectionable by the Congress were based upon complaints charging conspiracies to violate the Sherman Anti-Trust Act," Justice Black declared.

NLRB Contention Sustained

"For us to hold, in the face of this legislation," he said, "that the Federal courts have jurisdiction to grant injunctions in cases growing out of labor disputes, merely because alleged violations of the Sherman Act are involved, would run counter to the plain mandate of the (Norris-LaGuardia) act and would reverse the declared purpose of Congress."

In refusing to review a case in which a Pennsylvania leather company was found guilty of Wagner Act violation, the high court yesterday in effect sustained the contention of the National Labor Relations Board that "the right of free speech does not comprehend the right to engage in unfair labor practices."

The Elkland Leather Co., of Elkland, Pa., had infringed the labor law, said the NLRB, because it had distributed to employes, with their pay checks, a statement that:

"You are under no obligation to join any union and cannot be forced to do so as this tannery will always operate as an open shop. This company will deal individually with any employe that wishes to do so at any time."

U. S. Did Not Object to Review

Solicitor General Biddle had told the Supreme Court that the Government did not object to review, as the Circuit Court action upholding the Labor Board was in apparent conflict with another Circuit Court ruling in a similar case involving the Ford Motor Co.

Another NLRB order which the court refused to review granted certification of a union as collective bargaining agent even though only 56 of the 225 eligible employes at the New York Handkerchief Manufacturing Co., of Chicago, had voted.

In the case touching on the Norris-LaGuardia and Sherman Acts, a C. I. O. dairy workers' local, two Chicago dairies and a Wisconsin milk cooperative sought an injunction to protect the "cut rate" stores dealing in their milk from being picketed by an A. F. of L. milk wagon drivers' local.

The A. F. of L. alleged that the system used by the "cut rate" stores tended to lower the standards of employment set by the A. F. of L. union; while the C. I. O. workers complained, in seeking the injunction against A. F. of L. picketing, that the A. F. of L. was engaging in an unlawful secondary boycott to obtain for their employers a milk monopoly contrary to the Sherman Act.

Justice Black disagreed with the contention that the case did not involve a labor dispute within the meaning of the Norris-LaGuardia Act. Then, in respect to the possible conflict between the anti-injunction law and the Sherman Act, he pointed out that:

"The Norris-LaGuardia Act, passed in 1932, is the culmination of a bitter political, social and economic controversy extending over half a century. Hostility to 'government by injunction' had become the rallying slogan of many and varied groups. Indeed, as early as 1914, Congress had responded to a widespread public demand that the Sherman Act be amended. . . ."

In another decision yesterday, the court held that Wilson & Co., Chicago packing firm, could not recover $219,000 of processing taxes paid on exported products.

State Guard Plans Outlined By Patterson

Legion Told Units Will Resemble World War's Home Guards

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, Nov. 18.—The War Department now is making plans for State civil-defense units whose main job in a national emergency would be to watch over vital industrial and transportation facilities, an official said today.

Robert P. Patterson, Assistant Secretary of War, outlined these plans in a speech to commanders and adjutants of the American Legion's 58 departments beginning their three-day annual meeting at national headquarters of the World War Veterans' organization here.

Similar to "Home Guards"

He said the department was drawing up regulations for organization of "State guards" similar to the "home guards" which in the World War reached a total strength of 79,000 in 27 States.

Milo J. Warner, national commander of the legion, said the American people "must be prepared to do our fighting outside the United States—not for the salvation of any other country—but for America."

He made this statement in an address prepared for delivery at a luncheon the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce gave for him and Legion department officers here for their annual conference at national headquarters.

He pointed out the Legion in convention had "declared that we cannot properly protect America unless we make it strong enough to meet any possible invasion before it arrives . . . so that our homes remain intact—our families secure."

Favors Aid to Britain

He said this country should "give all practicable aid to Great Britain and to those aligned with her in her fight," adding that "this does not mean that we send troops to Europe."

"It is our duty as citizens of America to face facts as they actually are and not as we would like to have them," he declared.

"The State guard will be alert to the fact," Patterson said, "that the wars of today know no front line—that a tiny village hundreds of miles behind the theoretical front may suddenly become the scene of desperate and blazing action."

Ramspeck Measure Faces Final Test

fingerprints for photographs as a method of identifying Federal job applicants.

The photo clause had been written into the bill in the Senate as a move to eliminate racial discrimination in hiring Government employes. Its removal won agreement from the Senate conferees, according to Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, after the Civil Service Commission reported that it plans "immediately" to make the proposed change through executive action.

On the second hampering clause, the Nichols quota plan, the conference produced a compromise, whose effect would be to enlarge the number of civil service jobs in Washington which are apportioned among the States on the basis of population, without interfering with the chances of any employes to share the benefits of the Ramspeck bill.

Under the Nichols quota plan, all the jobs and jobholders covered by the Ramspeck bill would have been made suject to the State job apportionment, in Washington and in the field service. It would have barred employes from States over their quotas from being admitted to the classified service, promoted or transferred to classified jobs, until all the State quotas were filled.

The compromise worked out in the conference would limit operation of the quota idea to employes in Washington. These employes could obtain their civil service status, without regard to what State they were from or the condition of its job quota. They would, however, be listed in the job quota of their State.

Employes who missed getting civil service status by failing to pass the required non-competitive test would leave open jobs which would then be filled, under the compromise plan, by persons from under-quota States.

Civil service officials have estimated that about 25 per cent of those who would have a chance to get their classified standings under the Ramspeck bill would in practice fail the noncompetitive test.

The compromise plan, said Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, would open this share of jobs to residents of States whose quotas are now below par.

Ramspeck said the compromise quota plan complied with instructions the House had handed down to its conferees. He explained that the terms of these instructions required his group not to agree to the Senate amendment which originally struck out the Nichols plan, but did not specify that they should insist on having the Nichols clause restored.

Mead explained that the Senate conferees had given up their objections to removing the photograph amendment after receiving a letter from the three-member Civil Service Commission. The letter said that the agency had long studied the idea of substituting fingerprints for photographs as a method of identifying job applicants.

Lewis Tells C. I. O. He'll Quit Despite Ovation

Intransigent in the opinions he voiced October 25 when he repudiated President Roosevelt for a third term, Lewis spread his arms wide and declared:

"I associate myself with the 53,000,000 shrunken bellies in this country.

"I yield to no man to challenge my Americanism," he said, "or the Americanism of the organization which at this moment I represent."

Lewis served notice in a speech lasting 1 hour and 5 minutes that he will fight for a higher standard of living, for enfranchisement of poor whites and colored in the Southern States and for other like measures, "regardless of any considerations."

And he charged that those who say the C. I. O. follows Communist, Nazi or Fascist philosophies are guilty of lying in their beards.

Displays No Regret

The remark was interpreted as in part a jab at Hillman for sponsoring an amendment to the C. I. O. constitution barring followers of these isms from paid office.

"That goes for old lady Green and old as she is she should know better," he said in reference to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who has charged the C. I. O. is tainted with communism.

Lapsing now into Biblical language, now into poetry or into the words of Lincoln, Lewis evinced no regret for his "election bet" decision not to run for a third term as C. I. O. president.

"That is the way of life," he said. "We can't stop to weep and wear sackcloth and ashes because something that happened yesterday did not meet with our approval."

The Lewis speech consumed most of the convention's morning session. After a brief afternoon meeting, the convention recessed until 9:30 tomorrow morning.

By unanimous vote, at the instance of Joseph Curran, Maritime Union president, the convention voted to condemn the nomination of former Representative John J. Dempsey (Democrat), New Mexico, to be a member of the United States Maritime Commission.

Lewis asked the delegates "to give a break also" to his successor, who is likely to be Philip Murray, now vice president both of C. I. O. and the United Mine Workers.

Dabs at His Eyes

Dabbing at his eyes from time to time, the labor leader who began his career in the coal mines, counseled his organization to preserve its unity to "further the rights" of the 52,000,000 Americans who, he declared, are ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-fed.

Union members in the packjammed Westminster Hall of the Chelsea Hotel listened in almost complete silence, broken only by occasional cheering.

"If you consume your time in criticism, in sly vituperation against each other," Lewis told them, "you won't have any organization long and your membership at home will suffer and hold you responsible for their fate."

Just as the 43-minute demonstration left no doubt of the warmth with which the majority of delegates here regard Lewis as a personality and union official, so there is no doubt as to who will control the machinery of this convention.

The official list of committee members made public today, shows that followers of Lewis hold the key offices and have a majority of members on all the important committees, such as those on credentials, resolutions, appeals and officers' reports.

In a minority are the followers of Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers, namely, such unions as the Textile Workers, Retail and Wholesale Clerks and Aluminum Workers.

Indications here are still that the third annual convention of the C I. O. will not be seriously torn apart by dissension on such matters as the three resolutions introduced by Hillman to bar Communists from paid office, limit the powers of the C. I. O. president and immediately resume labor peace talks with the A. F. of L.

Though the divergent views between Lewis and Hillman and Murray still remain unsettled, it is believed that these differences will come to a head some time after the convention closes.

The main demonstration began when Lewis rose to speak.

Streamers and confetti showered down from the balconies. Delegates streamed into the aisles bearing signs saying, "Forward With C. I. O. and Lewis, "10,000,000 by 1944," "Wages Are Labor's First Line of Defense," and simply "Lewis."

A brass band entered the hall and a snake dance began.

Chorused shouts of "we want Lewis" and "no resignation" were voiced from time to time.

It never assumed the proportions of a draft and any idea of a draft was definitely killed when Lewis in his speech later said:

"I won't be with you long. I've done my work. In just a day or two I will be out of this office which at the moment I occupy."

Stimson Calls for 'Sacrifices' for Defense by A. F. of L.

At the same time, Green outlined a settlement plan which he admitted was not new and which he charged—without using his name—that Lewis had already blocked by refusing to let committees from the Congress of Industrial Organizations treat with A. F. of L. representatives.

Urging industrial peace as an absolute need for rearming America, Secretary Stimson, who flew here to address the convention, stressed the effort needed for the defense program and said:

"Today our production, hopeful as it has been thus far, is as yet very far from adequate. Sacrifices will undoubtedly be called for from labor, as they will be called for from the other citizens of the republic but such sacrifices I believe will be willingly contributed and not compelled."

A resolution urging the convention to vote its officials the power to drive racketeers and labor exploiters out of A. F. L. unions was introduced by delegates of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

Another resolution suggested that A. F. L. members provide information, in cooperation with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, against fifth column efforts in America.

Green, informed that Lewis at the opening of the C. I. O. convention in Atlantic City today had announced his decision to resign, smiled, raised his eyebrows and then solemnly said when asked if he thought that meant a step toward peace between the C. I. O. and A. F. L:

"I maintain what I said before. His resignation from the C. I. O. presidency means nothing if he retains the presidency of the United Mine Workers."

Green had previously pointed out that Lewis derives no salary from the C. I. O. presidency but does as head of the U. M. W. which is the largest revenue producer in the parent organization.

Green offered this peace plan:

"First of all, let the committees (A. F. L.-C. I. O.) meet, honorable men meeting in good faith in all sincerity. Let them agree that the original unions that left us shall be admitted and occupy the positions they held with us when they left, adjusting such difficulties as may have arisen since they left us in 1935.

"Then let them stand by while the committees representing conflicting groups—those representing clashing unions in the American Federation of Labor covering jurisdiction in a field that is now claimed by unions chartered by the C. I. O.—agree upon a plan of amalgamation, a plan of merger, the blending of these groups into one union, so that we will have in the house of labor a fair degree of peace and tranquillity.

"Let these committees work diligently until they have accomplished their purpose and then if there is some collateral question that cannot be settled, let some tribunal be set up by mutual agreement to which these collateral questions might be submitted for final decision, the basis of it all to be a complete understanding that the jurisdictional rights of the American Federation of Labor shall be protected and preserved."

Secretary of War Stimson, urging industrial peace as an absolute need for rearming the United States, praised British workers producing under a rain of bombs and said:

"We have hope that we may not reach this supreme test; that we in America may not be called upon to suffer as these workers of England have suffered. But the danger for months has been approaching and today it may even be imminent.

"Today our production, hopeful as it has been thus far, is as yet very far from adequate. Sacrifices will undoubtedly be called for from labor, as they will be called for from the other citizens of the republic, but such sacrifices I believe will be willingly contributed and not compelled.

"It would be a poor tribute to the patriotism of our people or to the intelligence of the men and women who produce the goods for our defense to promise that under such a terrific effort as that upon which we are engaged we can assume an attitude of 'business as usual.' No responsible man would give any such assurances."

District Man Held In 2-Week-Old Fatal Auto Crash

A 26-year-old man was held on a charge of manslaughter yesterday in a two-week-old automobile accident case involving the death of Augustus Thompkins, 37, of 933 N Street Northwest.

Awaiting grand jury action after a hearing before United States Commissioner Needham Turnage, who set bond at $3,000, was Samuel L. Thomas, colored, of 7 Myrtle Street Northeast. Thomas admitted, police said, that he was driver of the car in which Thompkins was riding. He disappeared during the confusion following the accident November 2 at Eight Street and Rhode Island Avenue Northwest.

The car was being pursued by a policeman when it collided with two other automobiles, injuring four persons. An investigation by Lieut. William Liverman, of the Accident Prevention Unit, resulted in Thomas' arrest.

R.A.F., Fleet Pound At Italian Bases

Fleet Shells Dante, Somaliland Port; Oil Tanks, Guns Hit

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 18.—The heavy bombardment of an Italian port in Africa and a bomb attack on an Italian base in Albania were reported by the British tonight in a series of far-ranging blows apparently intended to help their Greek and Ethiopian allies as well as to defend the empire against the Axis.

The admiralty announced that blazing guns of light naval units took a heavy toll at Dante, Italian Somaliland. Hits were reported on oil tanks and coastal and antiaircraft batteries and on the landing pier.

The admiralty only yesterday said light naval units had bombarded Mogadiscio, principal port of Italian Somaliland, and well down the Indian Ocean Coast from Dante.

Almost simultaneously today, the air ministry news service announced that R. A. F. bombers raided Elbasani, an Italian base in Albania, south of Tirana.

There, the news service said, military supplies and dumps were hit and a fire was started.

Far to the north, British bombers struck through a gale on the English Channel and pounded German batteries on the French coast while the bad weather cut German air attacks on London almost to zero.

The Empire capital had its regular nightly air rraid alarm much later than usual, but instead of the customary all night "alert" there were two "all clear" periods before midnight. Then the Nazis tried for a third time to penetrate the city's defenses.

4 Children Killed in House

London enjoyed long periods without air activity but the unusual situation affected few people. Those settled in shelters for the night remained there, having learned not to depend on all clear periods of any duration after dark.

A brief but intensive raid on Liverpool by relays of Nazis caused casualties. Four children were killed by a direct hit on a house.

The comparative calm was attributed by authorities to coastal gunfire which impaled the raiders.

The northeast coast, for example, had a three-hour alarm, during which gunfire was so terific that there were no reports of bombing or casualties.

Britain's moves on the Empire front indicated she was carrying out coordinated plan to help her friends and the Empire at the same time.

The time of the Dante bombardment was not given but the action showed the British were making a determined naval drive against Italy's hold on Somaliland.

The air ministry news service said that Bengasi, Salum, Bardia and Tobruk—all Italian-held along the Mediterranean coast—were raided last night.

Railway sidings at Agordat, Eritrea, were attacked and a number of direct hits were registered.

As R. A. F. bombers pounded German batteries on the French Coast today, big guns on both sides of the Channel sent shells screaming across the storm-swept Dover Strait.

Chest Reports 40% Of Goal Attained

000 goal, were announced by Herbert L. Willett, jr., Chest director.

These figures, he said, showed an increased number of contributors but a decrease in the amount of the individual pledges.

"This situation," he told his listeners, "should make us work extra hard for you know as well as I do that we didn't reach the goal last year."

Willett asked that solicitors redouble their efforts to secure enlarged pledges from contributors during the drive.

Units reporting were Government, by J. M. Thornett, 47,594 pledges for $318,000, 32.42 per cent of quota; Group Solicitation, by L. R. Williams, 7,200 pledges for $296,000, or 44.5 per cent; Metropolitan, by Mrs. G. Howland Chase, 3,900 pledges for $194,000, or 44.66 per cent; Maryland, by Nicholas Oren, jr., for Montgomery County, 208 pledges for $3,130, or 13.93 per cent, for Prince Georges County, 299 pledges for $1,991, or 13.27 per cent; Capital, by Willett, 243 pledges for $1,528, or 17.97 per cent.

An ananymous gift of $350 in memory of the late Clarence P. Dodge, onetime Chest president, was announced during the meeting.

Seated at the head table were Miss Sybil Baker, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, Robert Bondy, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Edward Dent, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Riley E. 300 Fail to Claim Pay at Ft. Belvoir

Wages will be paid in full for the time each man has worked just as soon as affidavits of hours put in on the job can be obtained from foremen and all of the 200 workers involved, company officials said.

Adjustments were made with some of the men yesterday and all will be given full pay before the Thanksgiving holiday, the company promised.

Some of the unclaimed envelopes presumably belong to a portion of the 200 complainants who reported that they failed to receive pay in any amount. These, officials said, will be straightened out as soon as the men can satisfactorily identify themselves.

Aside from pay envelope difficulties, construction of more than 550 buildings at Belvoir is proceeding smoothly and according to schedule, Maj. C. F. Gee, construction quartermaster at the post reported. Between 10 and 20 per cent of the job has been completed, a company official estimated, and the entire project is expected to be in shape to receive trainees by the January 15 deadline.

Four thousand men are employed at Belvoir, one-half of them as carpenters. Two thousand more workers will be needed in the next two weeks, a company official estimated, and most of these will be carpenters though a number of plumbers, steamfitters and bricklayers also will be hired.

Rainy weather and shortage of "qualified" workmen has put construction ten days behind schedule on a $9,000,000 project at Fort Meade, Md., largest in the Washington area, Maj. J. A. Noxon, construction quartermaster, reported yesterday.

"Given a break by the weather, however, we'll have the necessary work done by the time the Twenty-ninth Division (Maryland-Virginia National Guard) comes into camp January 15," Maj. Noxon declared. "Frankly, I don't now know how it will be done, but you can bet we'll do it."

Six thousand men are employed at Meade, of whom 3,000 are carpenters. One thousand more carpenters are needed, Maj. Noxon said, adding that past experience has demonstrated that only one out of ten men who apply for jobs is a qualified worker. Maj. Noxon reported that 1,100 carpenters have been put on the job since Friday and that, ultimately, there will be openings for an additional 2,000 workers, including plumbers, which are needed now, and steamfitters, electricians and laborers.

Maj. Noxon pointed out that rain prevented work on all but two days of last week.

German Captain Tries Suicide After Scuttling

Mexico City, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—Capt. J. Shurt, master of the German vessel Phrygia, who scuttled his ship Saturday when he apparently mistook United States destroyers for British warships, allegedly made two fruitless attempts to commit suicide this morning at Tampico, reliable sources said tonight.

The informants said the captain tried to shoot himself but was frustrated by a German sailor. He then was said to have attempted to leap into the Panuco River but his sailors held him back.

Ex-Gestapo Agent Admits Espionage

the plants of which he said Fassbender had photographs.

He said Fassbender would be held under subpena in the hotel where the committee is meeting pending further questioning.

Shortly before Fassbender was escorted into the committee room by Special Investigator Robert A. Stripling, he told reporters:

"I started as an agent of the Nazi government in 1935, worked in Spain and Belgium and recently was sent to this country."

Used Three Passports

Stripling said Fassbender had traveled on a German free passport, with a Tokyo visa, and had arrived in this country on a German ship "as a seaman." He said Fassbender decided to quit working for the Gestapo recently and testified on a promise that committee investigators would help him obtain immunity against deportation.

When Fassbender left the committee hearing tonight he joked with reporters and said:

"I have no statement now. I will tell all soon."

Charges Fund Soliciting

Dies said the raids today were complementary to the committee's investigation of activities of German and Italian consuls whom he has charged with having engaged in a campaign to raise money, ostensibly for relief at home, but actually for their countries' rearmament programs.

He arrived here unexpectedly today from Washington with committee investigators. In addition to Fassbender he questioned four others—Nick Mueller, commander of the Kyffhauserbund, an organization of war veterans; Ernst Ten Eicken, former head of the German Alliance; Richard E. Seiben, head of the Chicago branch of the German Alliance, and Dr. Charles Loffler.

"Social" Group Raided

Chicago, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—In what was declared a blow at the heart of an international espionage system centering out of Chicago, police and Dies Committee agents today raided ten Italian and German "social" organizations in the Chicago area.

Simultaneously, Representative Dies revealed that a "very prominent Chicago society woman" had been linked with subversive activities and would be arrested shortly.

A quantity of records were seized in today's raids, and two club officers, whose names were withheld, were arrested. Dies declared that both German and Italian espionage systems have been centering their activities in the "social" organizations raided today.

Woman Watched for Weeks

His announcement regarding a "prominent society woman" immediately provoked widespread interest, but Dies refused to identify her. He said she had been linked with espionage by a "star witness," the former agent of a totalitarian power, and that she has been under surveillance for several weeks.

Girl, 19, to See Father First Time

the girl had known since she was 14 years old, and someone told her that Orville Anderson, a Denver druggist, was only her stepfather, and that somewhere, maybe, her real father still lived.

The discovery that he still lived, and where he was, was due to a persistent investigation made on behalf of Lola by Police Chief E. L. Moses of Luray, Va., in Page County, where King was born.

On October 1, last, Lola, having described her father's Luray birthplace, wrote to Chief Moses. But the chief and the elders of Luray could remember no one by his name. Yet the chief sensed the girl's intenseness and didn't give up. He queried Washington agencies, and located a Robert E. King. He also located in New York a marriage certificate.

He telephoned King on November 3, saying he had discovered a marriage certificate of a man by his name, issued in New York City on April 15, 1920.

"I'm the man," King said.

The period of his life he had slammed shut came back. And he thought again of the daughter who had been born to this marriage months after he and the first Mrs. King were separated.

He had never seen her. Chief Moses told him then of Lila's yearning.

A letter, special delivery, airmail, went from the King home to Denver that night. A reply came on November 6.

"Dear Daddy and all," the answer began. "You say you were shocked when you received such a call (from the Chief). I hope it was as pleasant a surprise as mine (meaning King's letter). But I can truthfully say that I was numb with shock for several minutes. I had never hoped I would hear from you directly. I had thought it would be asking too much."

Then, in a later letter: "I have had a hard raod alone, but am not sorry for the experience. It is quite a thrill for me to know I have a brother and sister. . . . Your wife must be a wonderful woman and I am sure that you are just as nice."

She told her father that she is 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 118 pounds. She said she sings in the Clayton Presbyterian Church choir in Denver and teaches a Sunday school class "of 7 and 8 year olds."

Lola is married now to Victor Stogeberg, of Denver, she said. Her mother, she told King, died when she was 4 years old. King had heard of her but once, and then in a letter from his first wife's mother. He had believe dit best to close the whole thing in his mind then—but now he wants it reopened in a sight of his first child.

Hitler Meets Ciano And Serrano Suner

Axis Drive to East Believed Discussed At Mountain Retreat

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Nov. 18.—Adolf Hitler met with the foreign ministers of Italy and Spain at his mountain home today, and the German press said their conferences meant that Germany has all the trumps in her hand.

Neither the press nor official sources offered even a guess as to the concrete ground covered or possible new agreements reached between the Fuehrer, Ramon Serrano Suner, of Spain, and Count Galeazzo Ciano, of Italy.

(In Switzerland, however, diplomats expressed belief the three talked about plans for Axis drives from Rumania through Bulgaria to Greece and through Spain to Britain's Gibraltar.)

(Reliable reports from Tangier, Morocco, declared today the United States shortly would send a cruiser and two destroyers to the Spanish-occupied port to safeguard American interests.

(The report, which was not confirmed, added that the United States intended to make a naval base at Tangier.

(Italian submarines still are in Tangier Harbor.)

Berlin newspapers, with one voice, hinted that this will be "a highly political week." One of them, the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, described Spain and Rumania as "the two geographical corner pillars marking the space within which the great fight of the Axis powers against England in the Mediterranean is being fought."

Interest Equally Divided

German troops already are in Rumania.

The Dienst Aus Deutschland, an authoritative commentary service, likewise said the three-cornered conversations disclosed that the Axis is interested equally in western and southwestern European matters.

[A United Press dispatch from Bucharest said Gen. Ion Antonescu, head of the Rumanian state, will go to Germany on Friday, according to reports in official circles tonight. Antonescu arrived tonight from Rome, where he conferred with the leaders of the Fascist Party.]

[King Boris returned to Sofia tonight after a secret meeting with Chancellor Hitler in Berlin, an official communique revealed, according to International News Service. Details of the King's talk with Hitler were not revealed.]

Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German foreign minister, funtioned as master of ceremonies for the conversations today. He met Serrano Suner at Berchtesgaden and Ciano at Salzburg, entertained both at luncheon at Fuschl Castle, near Salzburg, and then took the Spaniard to tea with Hitler at the Fuehrer's Berghof.

Marshal Gen. Wilhelm von Keitel, who last week had conferences with the Italian general staff, was present.

Later, Ciano and Hitler conferred two hours. The Italian foreign minister was accorded military honors as he left the chateau by motor car. There will be additional conferences tomorrow.

Onlookers believed Spain now is ready to take a more active part in Axis maneuvers.

Germany's high command, reporting on the siege of Britain, announced that Nazi bombers had sunk a British merchant ship and minelayer off the British east coast, damaged another merchantman, and raided such ports as Southampton, Newhaven, Hastings, Harwich and Liverpool. London again was punished, the communique said, and the German coastal guns on the French Channel shore scattered a British convoy.

The Germans acknowledged that British bombers had started fires in an iron factory and brick works in western Germany, but said the fires were put out at once.

Gibraltar Ready for Attack

London, Nov. 18 (AP).—British military circles, weighing persistent reports that the Axis powers plan an assault through Spain on Gibraltar, declared today that the Rock has been considerably strengthened since the war began.

They admitted that Britain might not be able to use her naval base at Gibraltar if the peninsula were attacked, but asserted the fortress itself could hold out for at least a year without outside supplies.

Axis forces would have to make a frontal assault to have a chance of capturing Gibraltar, against machine gunners protected by about 200 feet of solid rock, observers said.

Italy Will Pay for Damages To Yugoslavia in Air Raids

Indemnity Will Cover 19 Dead, 33 Hurt, Harm to Property; Claims of Belgrade To Be Accepted Without Challenge

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 18.—Italian bombers were guilty of the three daylight air raids of November 5 on Bitolj and southern Yugoslavia and the Italian government has agreed to pay indemnity for the 19 killed and 33 wounded, as well as all material damages, according to an official government communique issued tonight.

The communique reported that the Italian pilots bombed Bitolj "by mistake" and that the Italian government had expressed profound regrets to Belgrade.

Responsibility for the bombing was fixed by the military commission sent to Bitolj to examine bomb fragments and two unexploded bombs dropped by the three warplanes. Satisfied of their Italian origin and the identity of the bombers, Belgrade informed Rome, the report said, of the results of the examination and urged the Italian government to conduct its own inquiries.

Case Considered Closed

Reliable sources said the Italian foreign minister, Count Ciano, instructed the Yugoslav Minister that the Italian government would meet all claims without question and would not seek a mixed commission to establish the proper identity.

"In this manner and in view of the friendly relations between this government and Italy," the communique concludes, "the royal government considers that this incident is closed."

British Bomber Crashes

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 18 (AP).—A warplane which crashed and burned on a mountain near the southern Yugoslav town of Danilovgrad, killing its crew of four, was identified officially tonight as a British Blenheim bomber.

The names of only two victims were established — Pilot Officer Crawford Bennett and Frederick Savage.

The bomber apparently lost its way and struck the mountain peak or was forced down by engine trouble.

It crashed in Montenegro Province, not far from the northern tip of Albania but at a considerable distance from Greece. A government communique did not say whether Yugoslavia protested violation of her territory.

Vultee Resumes Wage Negotiations With Strikers

Downey, Calif., Nov. 18 (AP).—Wage negotiations were resumed today between Vultee aircraft factory executives and leaders of the C. I. O. United Automobile and Aircraft Workers whose strike closed the 5,200-employe plant Friday.

The new conference followed a two-hour meeting of two Government representatives from Washington with union officials and consultation with company heads.

Vultee has domestic and foreign military planes orders totaling $84,000,000.

Some 3,000 union members were called out on strike for minimum wages of 75 cents an hour instead of the present 50 cents. The company rejected a union compromise proposal of 65 cents an hour a few days before the strike.

The Government men are Maj. Sidney Simpson, War Department labor adviser, and N. Arnold Tolles, aide to Sidney Hillman, labor member of the National Defense Advistory Commission.

The recital is open to the public.

Japan Seeking Peace Talks With Chiang

Tokyo Asks Direct Negotiations, Says Hongkong Report

By the Associated Press

Hongkong, Nov. 18.—After 40 months of war in China, Japan was reported today to be seeking direct peace negotiations with Chiang Kai-shek.

These reports, attributed to Tokyo sources, lacked any official confirmation. Rumors of Japanese peace feelers circulated last week in Chungking, but Chinese military spokesmen there said that, instead of thinking of peace, China was preparing for three years more of war if necessary.

The Japanese decision to make peace overtures, the Tokyo reports said, was reached November 13 by the Imperial Conference, which includes Japan's highest military and political leaders.

Professing ignorance of any such move, a Shanghai spokesman for Wang Ching-wei, head of the Japanese-sponsored "Chinese National Government" in Nanking, expressed surprise but added, "things happen fast these days."

If efforts to negotiate with Chiang fail to get anywhere before the end of this month, the Tokyo reports said, Japan will recognize the Wang government and continue fighting Chiang, classifying him as a "rebel."

Last week the Japanese army completed withdrawal of its forces from Kwangsi and Southwestern Kwangtung Province, in Southern China, moves interpreted in some quarters as designed to give China "face" and clear the way for peace talks.

Informed sources said, however, the withdrawals were decided upon long before the reported decision to seek peace. Japan's official explanation was that these forces no longer were needed as a result of newly gained bases in French Indo-China.

THE "BARTONS" HAVE NO BURDENS

They are a typical Washington family. Jim has a fairly good income. Gladys manages very nicely with her small but adequate home. Jean is in her sophomore year at high school. Young Ned will start prep school next year.

Happy? We'll say so! Their healthy, wholesome children are a constant source of pride. They have the right home environment; the right kind of companions; and the right kind of facilities for building sound bodies and minds.

No, the Bartons have no burdens. But the real secret of their happiness is their ability to share with others. In their gratitude for all the good things of life bestowed upon them, the Bartons are not unmindful of those in less fortunate circumstances.

They contribute to the Community Chest because they know it's an investment in happiness. Not a burdensome responsibility . . . but a joyous expression of Service . . . service to the community in which they live . . . service which gives others a chance to live.

And, the Bartons know that their contribution to the Chest will do the most good because it is spread among 87 different agencies, each with a definite objective, and each doing its specific type of work to make our community a better place in which to live.

Once a year . . . and ONLY once a year . . . these agencies look to YOU. The Bartons have never let them down. Will you?

U. S. to Guard Welfare, Health Of Selectives

Army Opposes Work Among Soldiers By Private Groups

Spiritual, moral and physical welfare of men inducted into the new Army by Selective Service will be guarded as carefully as the Government, aided by the experience of the World War Army, can devise.

At least three Federal agencies and one private organization already have outlined plans to hold high the moral tone of the trainees. But this time, in contrast with 1918, it appears doubtful that welfare work will be entrusted to private organizations, some of which became the subjects of derisive attention from men in the World War camps and cantonments.

As an upshot of a conference of First Army chaplains during maneuvers at Ogdensburg, N. Y., last summer, plans have been laid to keep recreation and welfare within camp under control of the Army. What the soldier may do with his time outside of camp was the subject of a discussion yesterday at a luncheon of the American Social Hygiene Association at the Cosmos Club.

Camp-Follower Problem

Maj. Bascom Johnson, director of law enforcement and legislation of the association, said a survey of 120 communities near cantonments already set up showed a "great influx" of women camp followers. In one instance, he said, the female population of a segregated district increased in a few days from 250 to 500.

Dr. Thomas Parran, Surgeon General of the Public Health Service, termed the problem of prostitution "one of the most important, difficult and complex to be met" in control of venereal disease. It is a problem, he said, with which authorities of the Army, the Navy and the Public Health Service are unable to deal, and he asked that local authorities in communities near cantonments be urged to see the importance of proper control.

Civilian communities, said Dr. Thomas J. Story, recent professor of hygiene and director of athletics at Leland Stanford University, should be induced to develop "decent recreation and amusement facilities" in order that "the soldier won't have to go to the underworld" for his recreation outside of camp. Philip Mather, of Boston, pointed out that control of vice is a matter not only for those communities near camps, but for those in which men and women employed in essential defense industries will be concentrated.

Communities Urged to Help

The War Department yesterday issued a "welcome" to civic organizations "in helping to protect soldiers from intemperance and vice when away from their duty stations." Pointing out that "the morals of the Army have always been a matter of pride to its personnel," the War Department urged civilian communities to rid themselves of temptations to the new soldier and to provide wholesome recreation facilities.

It will do its own part, the War Department indicated in another press release, in refusing to accept for service any Selective Service man who has been convicted of a felony. While recognizing that there is a wide variance between definitions of felonies in different States, the War Department said no man who has served time for a felony or who is on parole or probation will be accepted. If such men are received through their local boards, the announcement said, they will be discharged as soon as they can be checked with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"The department feels," it said, "that its duty to the greater number requires that it insure, as far as possible, that men inducted into service should not be forced in the close intimacy of barracks life to associate with a man who has been convicted. . . . The War Department consistently directs its efforts toward building the Army into a cohesive organization of right-thinking men, who can be depended upon in times of stress to display courage, fortitude and idealism of a high order."

Health Service Cooperates

The Public Health Service announced than nine of its officers have been assigned to special medical duties in connection with training camps. They will be concerned chiefly, Gen. Parran said, with "environmental sanitation, with emphasis on the control of communicable disease.

In the District, meanwhile, it was announced at headquarters of the local Selective Service Board that men examined for the first call to training will know late tomorrow or early Thursday whether they passed medical examinations for service. Reports await only study of lung X-rays.

An added inducement to employers to make easier the lot of trainees was offered yesterday by the Treasury Department, which exempted from social security taxes any payment employers might make to selected employes to compensate them for the difference between civilian and Army pay.

Rep. Jones, Named to Claims Court, Bids House Farewell

Texas Member Hears Colleagues Praise His Record as Legislator

By the Associated Press

House members spent more than an hour yesterday listening to the farewell speech of Representative Jones (Democrat), of Texas, as a Congressman and applauding his record of service.

Jones, who soon will become a judge of the United States Court of Claims, reviewed some of his experience in the House and wound up with an appeal for the preservation of the United States form of government and the liberties of its people.

"It is important that one great nation remain at peace," Jones said. "We can have far more effect as a stabilizing force than if we enter the insane struggle of destruction."

Representative Hope (Republican), of Kansas, ranking minority member on the Agriculture Committee, of which Jones has been chairman, said that the Texan had done a "superb job," had a "splendid legal mind, a fine judicial temperament" and predicted that he would make the "same, splendid, shining record" on the bench "that he did in Congress."

Representative Doxey (Democrat), of Mississippi, another Agriculture Committeeman, said:

"I want Marvin Jones to get what he wants because he deserves the best he can get and the best isn't good enough."

Doxey said that he personally would favor Jones' appointment to the Supreme Court.

Among others who spoke were Representatives McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts; Andresen (Republican), of Minnesota; Cox (Democrat), of Georgia; Fish (Republican), of New York, and Guyer (Republican), of Kansas.

D. C. Churches To Observe Thanksgiving

Pan-American Mass To Highlight Services; Mission to Feed Needy

Thanksgiving spirit will be generated in a variety of religious and secular observances here Thursday.

Among church services, national interest will be centered on the Pan American mass at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, with diplomatic, religious, Government and lay leaders attending.

The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore and Washington, will preside, and the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, will celebrate solemn pontifical mass at the church at Tenth and G Streets Northwest.

Special neighborhod observances will be centered at Memorial United Brethren, First Congregational, Takoma Park Presbyterian, Westminster Memorial Presbyterian, Chevy Chase Presbyterian, McKendree Methodist Churches, Mormon Chapel and other places. Washington Cathedral also will sponsor services.

A community service in Northwest Washington will be held in Grace Lutheran Church at 10:30 a. m. Thursday, with the pastor, Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski, preaching on "The Attitude Called Gratitude." Senior and Junior choirs will take part in Thanksgiving music.

Among provisions for needy persons, the Central Union Mission will give its annual dinner for hungry men Thursday from noon "until everyone has been fed." Chapel services, opening at noon, will continue as long as the dinner is in progress. Members of the board of directors and the ministerial council of the mission will be in charge of the services.

Along with offices here, the Public Library at Eighth and K Streets Northwest and all library agencies will be closed Thanksgiving Day, it was announced by Miss Clara W. Herbert, librarian.

3 State Societies To Mark Season Of Thanksgiving

Three State societies will celebrate the Thanksgiving season with dances this week, and one, the Maryland Society, will hold its Thanksgiving party next week. Two other societies will cooperate in a football dance.

Iowans will celebrate with a reception and dance at the Shoreham Hotel tomorrow at 9:30 p. m., according to Gertrude M. Louis, secretary.

The North Carolina State Society will hold a dance at the Shoreham Friday. Honor guests will include Miss Harriet Elliott member of the National Defense Commission, and Comptroller General Lindsey C. Warren.

Members of the Mississippi Society will hear a talk by Hugh H. Clegg, assistant director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Saturday night in the Wardman Park Hotel. A dance will follow, according to President Vernon W. Holleman. Marylanders will hold a reception November 29 in the Kennedy-Warren Apartments.

A joint dance of the Minnesota and Wisconsin State Societies will be held Saturday at 9:30 p. m. at Hotel 2400, Sixteenth Street Northwest. Saturday at 2:45 p. m. the regular weekly Minnesota football party will be held at the same hotel.

Dinner for Col. Clark

Col. Elmer W. Clark, who is resigning as acting commissioner of the Public Works Administration, will be feted at a dinner tonight at the Carlton Hotel by his associates in the PWA. The dinner will start at 8:30 o'clock. Col. Clark will shortly become connected with the Bureau of the Budget.

The romantic and historic background of Tucson, the unusual and picturesque scenery nearby, its excellent facilities for entertaining visitors, make this America's ideal winter vacation resort.

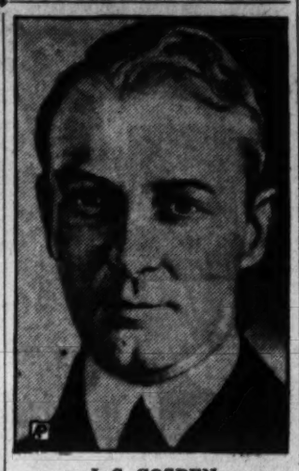
Joshua Cosden, Who Made And Lost Oil Fortune, Dies

Maryland Native Rose From Motorman To Multimillionaire



J. S. COSDEN

Joshua S. Cosden, 59, whose fortunes rose from those of a street car motorman in Baltimore to fabulous wealth in the oil business, then crashed on the eve of the depression, died Sunday in Willcox, Ariz., aboard a train bound for El Paso, Tex., according to the Associated Press.

He suffered a heart attack. With him in the train compartment when he died was his secretary, William Hudson.

Only last Wednesday some of the few remains of his fortune, once estimated at between $25,000,000 and $35,000,000, had been sold at auction in New York for $66,500. The identity of the purchaser was not revealed.

Cosden was born July 8, 1881, in Kent County, Md. He went to Baltimore as a young man and is reputed to have worked as a poorly paid drug clerk as well as a trolley motorman. In Catonsville, a suburb of Baltimore, he managed a sand-lot ball team.

Went to Oil Fields

Early in the century he headed for the oil fields of Oklahoma, where fortunes were being made. He hit a streak of luck, his small savings skyrocketed into an immense fortune, and he took his place among the wealthiest men in America as president of the Cosden Oil Co. at Fort Worth. Cosden Oil was quoted at high prices on Wall Street, and Cosden himself was only a peg below the Rockefellers and Sinclair in importance in the oil industry.

His first wife went with him from Baltimore to Oklahoma, where he started a small refinery. Later he built the largest independent oil refinery in the world in Tulsa, and in 1913 erected the Cosden Building there, a 16-story structure, then the largest in the new oil metropolis. Cosden divorced his first wife and married the divorced wife of Charles F. Roeser, another oil millionaire.

The Cosdens became prominent in society in the East, and when the Prince of Wales visited the United States in 1924 they were his hosts at their Long Island estate. At that party occurred a notable theft, $150,000 in jewels belonging to Mrs. Cosden and Lady Edwina Mountbatten being the loot.

Once Owned 32 Race Horses

Cosden devoted part of his wealth to sportsmanship. At the height of his career, when he owned a string of 32 race horses, he was referred to somtimes as the "Sir Thomas Lipton of the turf."

Cosden is reported to have invested money for former friends in the vicinity of Washington and Baltimore and to have aided them on the way to modest fortunes.

Unfortunate investments added to the losses he took with many others in 1920 and 1921, and by 1925 and 1926 the ruin of the initial, and largest, fortune was complete. When a second fortune was in the making Mrs. Cosden returned to social life in the East, but Cosden kept close to the scene of his operations except during long months when he was confined to bed in his Florida home.

In August, 1934, it was reported that "Josh Cosden is planning a comeback." His fortunes descended steadily, however. Surviving, besides his wife, is a son, Joshua S. Cosden, jr.

Delta Theta Phi Dance

The annual fall dance of the Delta Theta Phi legal fraternity, national organization of undergraduate law students, will be held at the Wardman Park Hotel tomorrow night. The fraternity has local chapters at George Washington and Georgetown universities and the Washington College of Law.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Capital Highest In Tubercular Rate Of Cities Its Size

The highest tuberculosis death rate among cities of between 500,000 and 1,000,000 population was found in Washington during 1939, according to figures compiled by Godias J. Drolet, statistician of the New York Tuberculosis and Health Association.

The death rate here, according to the statistics in an Associated Press report, was 85 per 100,000 population, against a national average of 47, and an average of 59 for the major American cities. Baltimore's death rate was 79.

The statistics showed that 18,799 residents of the 46 largest cities died of tuberculosis in 1939; that the death rate rose in 13 cities; that the disease killed twice as many men as women.

'The Spider' Begins One-Man Crusade Against D. C. Crime

A free-lance reformer, operating under a nom-de-plume and asserting he would rid Washington of crime, made his or her debut in the District yesterday and perhaps added another name to the list of persons that the police would like to meet.

In 1939 it was Sniper No. 1, earlier this year it was just plain sniper. And now there's "The Spider." A letter received by The Post yesterday, scrawled in ink on crumpled paper, read as follows:

"I will rid Chevy Chase, Washington and vicinity of crime. Please help me—your paper is reliable. I am depending on you. Thanks!!

"The Spider."

Beneath was a crude sketch of a spider.

Second Victim Sought as Bay Yields Body

Capsized Sailboat Located by Planes And Sub-Chaser

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 18.—The body of Gardner Smith, 22, one of two Baltimore youths missing since early Sunday in a small sailboat, was brought to the Naval Academy today.

Planes sent from here to search the bay found a capsized boat off Sandy Point and directed a submarine chaser to the spot. The youth's body was found in the boat's rigging.

The body was taken aboard the Navy boat and the capsized craft was towed to the Reina Mercedes dock at the Naval Academy. An uncle of Smith identified the body there.

Sub chasers returned to the scene to continue the search for the body of the second man, believed to be Gordon Baker, 24, a nephew of Richard M. Baker, of the Baltimore Park Board.

Naval Academy authorities said the starboat, the Little Dipper, apparently had full sails up when she capsized. They speculated that the craft ran into a squall yesterday. The mast was broken.

Five Naval Academy planes joined United States Coast Guard vessels in a search for the youths, who had been expected to dock about 7 o'clock last night.

The youths set sail from Atkinsons Landing, Sillery Bay, in the Magothy River at 7 a. m. Sunday.

Smith, who lived at 702 Shadynook Court Road, Catonsville, was interested in boats as a hobby, and had designed the Little Dipper himself, authorities here learned.

The boat was found about 10 or 12 miles from the starting point. Although the time of the capsizing was not determined, Smith's watch was stopped at 3:30 o'clock.

Hunter Shoots At Rabbit, Kills Friend in Md.

Night Expedition Ends Tragically for Williamsport Boy

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hagerstown, Nov. 18.—A night hunting expedition left one hunter dead here today. Roy Kreps, jr., 18, Williamsport, died en route to the Washington County Hospital from a gunshot wound in the back from a gun in the hands of James B. Cole, 17, of near Hagerstown.

The two young hunters were riding on either side of the running board of a car operated by David Barnhart, 19, Hagerstown, when a rabbit jumped up in the road ahead of the car. Both hunters leaped from the car and Cole shot in the direction of the rabbit, the full charge entering Kreps' shoulder. Kreps also was armed and his gun was found cocked when picked up by officers.

In another hunting casualty Mrs. Carlton Schuller will be given a hearing Saturday at Boonsboro on a charge of assault, as the result of the wounding of Harry Seal, Hagerstown hunter. The young woman told officers that Seal shot and killed a rabbit on her parents' farm near Mount Briar and that she shouted at him not to pick it up.

She said she advanced toward the hunter and that in some manner the gun she carried was accidentally discharged. Seal was peppered with shot. Mrs Schuller said the farm was posted and that hunting was prohibited on the premises.

Alabama Club to Meet

State Mops Up on Bootlegging In Norfolk Area; 230 Charged

Series of Raids, Most Extensive in History Of Virginia ABC, Staged After 3 Months Of Work by Undercover Agents

By the Associated Press

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 18.—Warrants for 80 persons charged with violation of the State liquor code remained unserved today as State and local officials approached the finish of their intensive campaign against the illegal selling of alcoholic beverages in southeastern Virginia.

Raids in Southampton and Isle of Wight Counties yesterday by A. B. C. officers and county authorities netted 26 arrests, bringing to 105 the total number of arrests made in this area since Friday.

Officers of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, operating under the direction of D. W. Saunders, jr., superintendent of enforcement, originally held warrants for 230 alleged violators of the A. B. C. code in Norfolk, Portsmouth and adjacent counties.

According to C. S. Bennett, field supervisor, the present series of raids, on the largest scale ever attempted by the board, was the outgrowth of three months' investigation by undercover agents. The cleanup began in Norfolk Friday morning and then the officers struck successfully in nearby communities. The warrants served on alleged offenders principally charged violation of section 40 of the A. B. C. code, which is concerned with the illegal sale of intoxicants.

In Norfolk, the arrests to date total 30; in Portsmouth, 30; in South Norfolk, 10; in Norfolk County, 8; in Nansemond County, 41; in Southampton County, 17; in Isle of Wight, 9, and 5 additional as yet unlocated arrests.

Shut-in Teaching Transfer Urged By Commissioners

Transfer of instruction of shut-in children from the Board of Public Welfare to the Board of Education was indorsed by the Commissioners yesterday and will be included in the 1942 budget.

The transfer has been sought by civic groups and the Welfare Board itself. The project, is was pointed out, is properly an educational, rather than welfare undertaking.

Behind the transfer move has been the Association for Education of Handicapped Shut-in Children and the Public School Association. The present appropriation bill gives the program to the Welfare Board, it was reported, because of the belief that teachers could be obtained more cheaply from relief rolls.

A total of 121 children—60 white and 61 colored—are now enrolled for courses.

Committee Proposed To Check Town Books

Emmitsburg, Md., Nov. 18 (AP).—Formation of a "central committee" to keep check on and discuss civic matters was proposed tonight by Guy S. Nunemaker, clerk to the board of town commissioners.

Nunemaker asserted, in an address prepared for delivery before the Lions Club, that the fault for any lack of efficiency in town government "was ours . . . the people of Emmitsburg and more in particular the organized bodies of the community."

THERE CAN BE NO REAL THANKSGIVING
...without Moderation

IN A WORLD aflame with destruction, deception and slavery, let us give thanks for our freedom.

Against Europe's moral excesses, let us treasure our own deliberate self-control in thoughts, words and deeds.

But let us remember that the responsibilities of Democracy begin in the home . . . that a man unwilling or unable to treat privileges, such as fine whiskey, as luxuries to be enjoyed in wise moderation . . . is unfit to help hold aloft the torch of Freedom . . . is unworthy to share in the blessings of our democratic way of life.

Fine food and fine whiskey are contributions to the art of gracious living to be enjoyed with good judgment. For without moderation in all things, there can be no lasting happiness for nations or for individuals . . . no real Thanksgiving for country or for home.

On this Thanksgiving day of 1940, let us eat and drink with gratitude and good cheer . . . let us give thanks for the health and joy of those near and dear to us . . . and let us insure many more such happy holidays through personally demonstrating moderation in the luxuries that are ours.

Local Necessities

Department allotments in the Commissioners' 1942 budget estimates reveal the usual contrast between expenditures for highway improvements on the one hand and the Health Department and the schools on the other. The weight in favor of the Highway Department is beyond control of the Commissioners, for the gasoline revenue and other resources of the department are withheld from the general fund. Against any change in the system there are several arguments, not the least of which is the substantial Federal donation for roads. The Government refuses this aid to States which divert gasoline revenue to other purposes.

Moreover, it cannot be said that the highway funds have not been put to good use. Nevertheless, the question of comparative need remains. Year after year the school and health budgets have been reduced far below the estimates of the department heads. For 1942 the Board of Education asked $18,346,369 and was allowed $13,239,888; the Health Department asked $3,541,457 and got approval for $2,722,023.

The most interesting figures to analyze, however, are those for capital improvements, such as the erection of school and hospital buildings and health centers. The amount available for school buildings and grounds, if Congress follows the present estimates, will be only a little over a fifth of that asked and about a tenth of the total school budget. Capital improvements for the Health Department are made even more scanty—less than 3 per cent of the department's total allotment. By contrast, the highway department will have almost a third more for construction than for maintenance.

The worst result of this skimping, necessary or not, is that needs accumulate over a period of years. The departments' estimates for 1943 will contain those items not granted for 1942, in addition to new needs which will arise. This is true especially of the education system, where old buildings aren't getting younger or crowded rooms more spacious.

Now there is discussion of future highway programs which might necessitate appropriations in addition to the earmarked funds or an increase in the gasoline tax. Perhaps these expenditures will be unavoidable. But if new burdens are to be imposed, we must be absolutely sure that the money is used where most urgently needed. The history of capital improvements in the several departments is an important factor in the examination.

A Crumb For The Finns

Out of the Molotoff-Ribbentrop conversations in Berlin there came a slight crumb of comfort for little Finland. It is said from Stockholm that in that country the Germans have agreed to keep their soldiers on the move. In other words, they will not allow any stationing of men along the route which, in an agreement with Finland two months ago, they are now using for bringing men from northern Norway home on furlough. The most convenient way home (in view of Britain's dominance at sea) is across the roof of Norway into Finland, and along the railroad to the Finnish Bothnian port of Vaasa, whence the men can take ship along what is to all intents and purposes a German sea, namely, the Baltic.

Sweden also has given the Germans this right of transit. In Sweden's case the Germans travel back and forth between Germany and Norway, and, though the hair-splitting Swedes insist that the soldiery are unarmed, there can be little doubt that arms are carried, if not on the persons of the soldiers, then somewhere in their vicinity. The Swedes insist that their permits don't infringe upon Swedish neutrality. Finland, more realistic in such matters, seems to have made no such pretensions, though the Finns appear to have done more policing of the German soldiers—to see that they keep on the move—than have the more pliant Swedes.

The Finns will be happy to note, doubtless, that the Soviet Union has shown its nervousness about this Nazi use of their territory, if only as a highway. One imagines they themselves weren't much disturbed by the Nazi "invasion." Rather the reverse. For the great hope that the Finns can keep their abbreviated country intact until the turmoil is over—a hope that Americans share almost equally with the Finns—rests upon the maintenance of what is again shown to be an uneasy equilibrium in Russo-German relations in the Baltic.

Revealing Bombast

The address which Benito Mussolini delivered to the Fascist hierarchy yesterday was a revealing piece of bombast. For all its sword-clanking and tub-thumping, its tone was distinctly defensive. The Duce is on the spot and knows it. When he plunged Italy into war last June, he gambled on a cheap and speedy victory but Italy now finds herself in the midst of what promises to be a long and exhausting war for which Italy is unprepared. What is worse, recent events have proved nothing but a catalogue of disasters for the Italians. Nor can all the censorship in the world hide from them the reality of what happened in Taranto and what has been going on in Greece.

For this reason Mussolini has found it necessary to indulge in a considerable amount of oratorical whitewashing. He tried to prove that every negligible victory won by Italy during the last five months has been, in actuality, a resounding triumph. In that category he placed the war on the Alpine front which, because of France's collapse, was over before it really began; the strategic retirement of the tiny British force at Somaliland which, according to the Duce, "was as complete as that at Dunkerque"; the "lightning-like occupation of Sidi Barrani," which, however, marks the limit of the Italian advance into Egypt in the last two months.

The Italian navy, he said, "guards our lines of communications so effectively that the enemy navy has not succeeded in interrupting them or even disturbing them." This will be news to the sailors of the Italian fleet, whom Mussolini has carefully kept in cotton wool out of fear of an encounter with the British. And as for the Greek war, Mussolini's speech tacitly admitted that all has not been going well for Italy by arguing that "the rough mountains of Epirus, their muddy valleys do not lend themselves to 'lightning' war."

Mussolini was also on the defensive with respect to Italy's war communiques which have been outstanding for their imaginative quality. Were they to be believed, the British fleet would now be entirely at the bottom of the ocean, instead of commanding the Mediterranean Sea lanes. Yet Mussolini insists that these communiques are "documentations of truth." Taking a page out of "Mein Kampf" the Duce is apparently operating on the Hitler theory that the bigger the lie the greater the measure of credibility it will arouse.

Viewing the sorry plight of their nation whose best interests have been betrayed by a man who has become merely the gauleiter of the Fuehrer, Italians may take with a liberal allowance of salt Mussolini's "absolute" promise that "we shall break Greece's back." In view of the vast superiority of Italy's manpower over that of her tiny opponent, this may ultimately prove to be true. But in the meantime Italy's back is also being strained and her prestige shaken. Indeed, even while Mussolini was speaking, the Greeks were pressing on the very outskirts of Koritza, Italy's Albanian base. That fact speaks louder than all of Mussolini's now threadbare rodomontade.

Go West, Girls

Sherwood Anderson isn't the first person to regard the lot of the girl Government worker, but perhaps he is the first to suggest that her "small happiness" and "frustrations" (the reporter's paraphrase) are material for a novel. He doesn't propose to write the story himself. He recommends the author be someone familiar with the workings of the bureaus—preferably, it may be inferred, another Government worker.

The frustration most frequently associated with the G-girl in Washington is matrimonial. It is assumed by many, and denied by some, that the chief purpose of these young women in deserting their native hamlets, towns and cities is to find husbands. Arriving here, they find a community in which women outnumber men something like 10 to 9 and a bitter war already is raging between local lassies and immigrants.

A survey conducted in the heat of one battle of words revealed that the disparity wasn't the fault of Government workers, since Uncle Sam imported more men than women to Washington. This discovery, however, didn't put a stop to complaints about the quantity and quality of available males.

The only advice anybody could offer the lorn females at the time was to go West, whither the males had preceded them. And in this connection, it may be helpful to note the situation in Hongkong. Last July several thousand British women were evacuated from the colony and since then conditions have been such that, in the words of the Associated Press, "it is not unusual here to see a solitary girl going to a dinner dance with as many as six male escorts."

If our heroine is a true pioneer, then, it may be possible to complete the story Mr. Anderson began. She "came to Washington from some inland American small town with high hopes, got engulfed among the growing wave of similar girls and . . ." bought a ticket to Hongkong, where, if she escaped the danger of the menacing Japanese, she fell into the arms of the British colonial service. Then the ending of the novel would be a la mode.

Labor Trouble

Not even the most rabid labor agitator can complain of the attitude which the American people have adopted toward labor strife. The attitude has been one of complete tolerance. Inconveniences have been borne, strikes which have held up whole communities have been taken in the public stride, the five-year-old duel between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations has been endured more or less with equanimity, and there has been no popular movement to hamstring the labor unions either in redressing grievances or in organizing nonunion workers. How long such tolerance will continue, however, is another matter.

For the Nation is now thinking of the labor strife in a new relation. The question now is: Is labor strife interfering with the output of armament? Sidney Hillman, labor member of the Defense Commission, voices the general verdict that all questions are secondary to the need for insuring defense without loss of time.

And yet the country wants to arm itself without abridging the people's liberties. So far there has been no such abridgement, and both the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. agree that in defense work labor's hard-won rights have been respected. But, in the absence of compulsion, the Nation is putting a high premium on voluntary cooperation. Unity of the whole depends upon unity of the parts, and if labor, as vital an element in defense as any, persists in keeping up a disruptive feud in its own ranks, if strikes as usual continue to hold back defense, then a clamor is bound to arise for some sort of compulsion over labor.

Sidney Hillman leaves no doubt in the minds of the labor movement as to this possibility. On Saturday he spoke out with more than customary bluntness. If, he said, defense isn't accomplished promptly and efficiently, all labor officials might find themselves in concentration camps. Doubtless Mr. Hillman had in mind the strike in the Vultee Aircraft works in California. The men, engaged in building the planes that we need so badly either for ourselves or for export to Britain, walked out at the call of the United Automobile Workers Union, a C. I. O. affiliate. Mr. Hillman certainly had reason to be irked—his good offices weren't invoked, and the walkout obviously took him by surprise.

The question that has arisen at the Downey plant has nothing to do with the rights or wrongs of the wage dispute. A demand for a 50 per cent increase, to be sure, looks like a holdup, and the argument of the union leaders about the company's current profits blinks the fact that this and like companies are just coming out of a lean period, and will surely enter upon another such period when the emergency is over. That isn't the point, however. The point is that the Vultee workers, and others like them, are imperiling all the hard-won rights and liberties of the workers, including the very right to strike, by failing to invoke the intervention of the Defense Commission.

Perhaps they have taken their cue from John L. Lewis' inability, once more in evidence in his report to the C. I. O. convention at Atlantic City, to see that times have changed. It would be a pity if the workers in defense plants, not to say the delegates at the conventions of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., contracted this blind spot from Mr. Lewis. They must know that the tolerance of the American people is being strained by the rise of labor trouble just at the time they want armaments in a hurry. The least the strikers are inviting is the prohibition of strikes and lockouts during a limited period to permit investigation of the issues—if not, indeed, compulsory arbitration.

To Whom It Is Done

Though it is called an exhibition of war photographs, Miss Theresa Bonney's current showing at the Library of Congress could be more accurately described, nevertheless, as a serial story, but a serial story with no beginning and no end. The panorama goes along with a measured beat, a moving descriptive detail which adds up to an overwhelming tragedy oppressive in its lack of finality. The photographs happen to have been taken in Finland, Belgium and France, but they are not identified, because they could have been made in any of the invaded countries. Few of the pictures are startling singly, but together they convey dramatically what happens to the everyday routine of a people and the contours of their country when total war comes. Faithful to the pictures is the eloquent accompanying brochure written by the librarian, Archibald MacLeish.

"Before marrying a girl, a man should study her from every angle," advises a writer. Aw, shucks, who wants to study a girl who has angles?

As You Say, Benito

Patent Office

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your paper of November 6, you suggested that the people of Washington turn out and give President Roosevelt a welcome upon his return to the city after his landslide victory in the election. It speaks well for the fair mindedness of the press and shows the strength of our democracy when a newspaper which was active in opposition to the President's reelection will not only cooperate, but takes the lead in staging such a reception.

The reception was staged and, while the writer could not take part in either one, according to what was said by people who did take part in both and what was stated in the papers, it was an even greater success than the similar reception accorded the President after the 1936 election.

Specifically you stated: "We would like to see Government workers and all other workers allowed sufficient time from their duties to share in the demonstration." So would the Government workers have liked sufficient "time from their duties to share in the demonstration."

Many people who work in the departments and bureaus had their notices the day before that they were not expected to report for duty before 10 a. m. The writer works in the Patent Office under the Department of Commerce. We received no notice the day before nor did we receive any on the morning of the reception that we would be excused in order to take part in same. The Department of Commerce and the Patent Office both begin work at 8:30 a. m., the time at which the President was due in at Union Station, so it could not have been that our executives thought that we would have ample time to take part in the reception and then report for work on time, as might have been the case with bureaus starting work at 9 a. m.

Entrenched in both the Department of Commerce and the Patent Office are numerous minor Republican officials. Many of them are in policy-forming positions and should have been shifted to other positions with the change in administrations in 1933 but for some unexplained reason this was never done. They hold on in the face of Democratic landslides and presumably would prevail even against the gates of Hades.

Secure in their positions under the cloak of civil service, these officials do all in their power to make the lives of those employes whose political views do not coincide with theirs as unhappy as possible. The neglect to dismiss the employes for the receptions to the President, both last week and in 1936, is only a mild example.

Importance Of Latin-American Trade

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of November 14 is published an address delivered by Mr. J. I. Miller, vice president of the United Press Association under the caption "Good Neighborliness."

This address should be printed in pamphlet form and distributed throughout the country. It is a practical and vital contribution to the understanding of Latin-American conditions.

The Western Hemisphere is today the future home of democracy. It may be suggested that dictators exist in South America but it must be realized that any existing dictatorship in that region is compelled by circumstances and is not the rule of a tyrannical and world devastating despot. The people of Latin America are gradually becoming politically articulate. The day when an overweening and ambitious man could, for his own personal aggrandizement and profit, engineer a successful revolution has passed. Revolutions, now rare, in South America, spring more and more from the people who desire democratic freedom. They need encouragement, they need education, they need regulated immigration and financial assistance. South America, now divided into its distinct and separate republics, with no warlike intentions towards one another, with a common language, with an almost common heritage of culture, is the most potential field for legitimate exploitation in the world.

Mr. Barnet Nover, in his address in the Latin-American Lecture Series now being given weekly at the Shoreham Hotel, called attention to two factors which he regarded as of world importance, viz:—the Havana Conference and the acquisition of American naval bases in American waters from Great Britain. He is right. The Havana Conference marked the departure from the old American paternal policy, that of wielding the big stick to keep the Latin-American republics in order and the institution of the fraternal order in which the big brother will protect the younger ones from the aggression of any bully who dares to attack them. It marked also the consolidation of the Americas, the consummation of the good neighbor policy.

The acquisition of naval bases is a direct intimation to all foreign powers that the Western Hemisphere is inviolable. These are practical, concrete steps. Now that protection for the family is insured let us unite the family. This cannot be done by pious resolutions. It cannot be accomplished by lecture series. These have their educational value but they produce small results. The Latin-American Lecture Series now being conducted each Tuesday at the Shoreham is informative but a remarkable fact about it is that the audiences are 98 per cent women. Much as we may admire the efforts of the ladies, they are not the vehicles by means of which the real end will be attained. Cultural relations are attractive and easy to talk about. But commercial relations are, at present, vastly more important.

The establishment of mutually beneficial commercial relations between any two countries is largely, if not wholly, a question of tariffs. Negotiations between Mr. Hull and the representative of a Latin-American country with the object of executing a commercial treaty resolve themselves into a battle for obtaining preferential conditions of trade. What can you give me and what can I give you? These conditions are governed by the products of the respective countries. We must not import Argentine beef because such importation would affect the domestic market. Probably, but it might be a good thing occasionally to affect the domestic market. In the eventuality the consumer would obtain a cheaper commodity, and, in the case of Argentine beef, a much better commodity. This is but one instance, incidentally an important one, but it illustrates the difficulty which confronts us in our international trade relations.

International free trade is at present a dream, but it is along the lines of more freedom to trade that our ultimate salvation must be sought. Economic isolation from our Latin American friends will not cement our friendship nor promote our good neighborliness.

CHARLES H. MOORE.
Washington, Nov. 13.

Wants One Language

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A great cause of disunion in the United States is the speaking of foreign tongues (particularly in the home), and the hundreds of foreign language newspapers and periodicals, some with large circulations. These languages form barriers between them and those who speak the American language.

The Bible tells us that when the people were all of one language and one speech, they began to build the City and Tower of Babel. But when their speech was confounded so that they could not understand one another, they were unable to finish the building of the city.

Language exercises a greater influence upon life and affairs than any other factor. The language used by a people shapes and colors that people's thoughts, feelings, habits and aspirations, and binds them to the land or nation where that language is used.

A common language unites a people more closely than anything else does, because only by one tongue that is spoken, read and written with ease by every citizen, can fullness of thought be communicated and like-mindedness, affinity and patriotism be created, strengthened and maintained. Any one who loves America will love America's language and will learn that language.

I call upon the American people to abolish, either by law, or by force of public opinion, the foreign language press of the United States, and to make it compulsory for every citizen and prospective citizen to speak, read and write the American language.

CHARLES HOOPER.
San Francisco, Nov. 9.

'Provocative Remarks'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Republican orators deplore the "provocative" remarks made by Mr. Roosevelt. It is significant, however, that Republicans deplore only when these remarks are made in criticism of Nazi or Fascist actions. During the Soviet-Finnish War Mr. Roosevelt also made "provocative" remarks having to do with the evil of indiscriminate bombings (by the Russians), and not only did these very Republicans condone his remarks, but they swelled his single voice by mobilizing every available sound wagon in a violent anti-Russian campaign.

Everybody remembers the extremely articulate indignation of Mr. Herbert Hoover about the bestiality of Russian bombardment of Finnish noncombatants.

Last night Coventry was bombed by 500 Nazi raiders. There were over 1,000 casualties. During the 105 days of the Finnish War only 279 Finnish noncombatants were slain. This suggests that, in comparison with the Nazis, the Communists dropped bombs with a considerate and fastidious nicety. But whereas Mr. Hoover was hopping mad about Red bombing, I'll lay you fat odds that he won't let out one critical peep about the bombing of Coventry.

Tut, tut. The Republicans aren't concerned about "provocations" on principle. Not really. The point is that they would prefer to provoke old Uncle Joe, 'cause they just hate for the Russian people not to own property and make legitimate returns on investment.

Gadget Madness

I DISLIKE unnecessary household gadgets. It is by stubborn contention that the pristine state of fruits and vegetables and foods of all kinds should be treated with respect. Why torture foods with unnecessary cutting, coloring, twisting and goodness knows what when it all makes so much work, and detracts from the charm of rugged simplicity? It is sometimes hinted that my feeling on the matter stems from a dislike for work rather than from any noble regard for the splendid products of nature.

Despite my violent antigadget views I paused idly on a shopping tour to watch the eager, sparkling eyes of a young woman who was demonstrating an achievement in artistic salads. There was something in the combination of my upswing shopping mood and the finesse of the young gadgeteer which drew me nearer. She spoke with youthful, joyous earnestness. You caught the feeling that it was just no end of fun to fashion those perfectly amazing flower shapes from beets and carrots, and that they would "do things" for your dinners.

A subtle something in the warm domesticity of the scene hinted of beauteous idyllic love in a cottage It was a selling technique on a sublime level. Not that this Spirit of the Kitchen was asking anybody to buy anything. She was merely, without any apparent effort, transforming humble beets and lowly carrots, with a sprig of parsley here and there, into an old-fashioned garden, the sprightliest thing imaginable in salads. It reached a new high in gastronomy and gave you a feeling of intimate, positive affection for vitamins.

In that deluded moment the Little Marvelle Flower Maker seemed to me the most desirable thing in the world; I positively ached to make an old-fashioned garden. All at once every one was clamoring for the Little Marvelle. I emerged from the battle of bargains with my hat askew and my skirt twisted.

My yen for an Old-Fashioned Garden retained its impelling force until I was too far committed to turn back without losing face. When Bill telephoned in mid-afternoon and asked "What's the high spot on the dinner menu?" I trilled back "Surprise, surprise," and became too coy to explain.

I unwrapped my gadget and grasped it firmly between thumb and forefinger, that is to say I tried mightily to capture the easy deftness I had lately seen demonstrated. The little petalled cutter thing jiggled uncertainly on its spindle when I turned the handle that was supposed to move it up and down. According to the theory of operation a fork at the base of the spindle held the helpless beet on the chopping block, a turn of the handle brought the cutter sliding down the spindle and a red flower popped into "bloom" teeming with vitamins and glowing with beauty. In practice it did nothing of the sort. I clumsily attempted to assist the faulty machinery of my gadget. Two fingers shared to a lesser degree the fate of the hapless beet; my face stole some of the vegetable's color and much of its general demoralization.

Bill affected breathless anticipation as he burst into the dining room. His eyes opened with mock amazement when he saw the "gardens." The name, he insisted, was much too modest. "Why not call them Old-Fashioned-Gardens-After-A-Cyclone?"

"Well," I defended, "I still think the idea is clever but the gadget just won't work."

"You mean YOU don't know how to work it," he grinned: "Let me show you."

I slipped out of the kitchen and from a safe distance in the dining room marked his progress by emerging sounds. He started whistling confidently, gradually throttled down to a less assuring key, then muttered "What the deuce," and some other things. A dull thud announced the falling of the beet. This was followed by loud but faulty sounding operation, and later by a frank man-to-gadget talk in which the epithet "worthless junk" came out with emphasis. Bill stuck his head into the dining room and grinned. "Your beet beats my beet," he conceded nobly, then added, "The whole idea beats the deuce."

"Let's throw the thing out," I begged, "and I'll let that be a lesson to me."

"No, I'm not giving up. If I'd seen the thing demonstrated of course I could work it."

One thing led to another until we took the hateful gadget back to the store for further demonstration.

The young woman who had led me to my domestic downfall had been replaced by an arrogant little man who insisted that Bill had only to "Do as I do." With that he flipped his wrist nonchalantly and a perfect poppy smiled up in wicked conspiracy. Bill assumed the same superior pose and turned the handle with the same slightly contemptuous gesture. The cutter stuck midway on the spindle, then slowly, with some embarrassed assistance, jiggled on down. The sportive beet slipped from the chopping block. Impervious to the crowd's jeers Bill accepted another from the demonstrator who took one for himself. The place took on the air of a sports arena.

"Mommy, what's the red-faced man doing?" asked a puzzled youngster.

"He's making some flowers I don't think," "Mommy" answered.

"Some can and some can't," asserted a young lady to no one in particular.

"Blood but unbowed," pronounced another.

"He's taking an awful beeting," punned a heartless wretch.

I was shoved without protest to the outer fringes of the crowd. There I looked on with an effected air of idle detachment, hoping disloyally that I might escape identification with this strange procedure. Bill must have sensed the absence of my moral support; after his unsuccessful round with beet number six he piled up the wreckage and claimed me for his own with a malicious family man flourish. He tucked my hand over his arm and led me out.

I still dislike unnecessary household gadgets.

A Political Finesse

By Mark Sullivan

Stalled Legislation

This column is written on the eve of the decision by Congress whether to adjourn. The decision may be made before this is read by some readers.

If Congress adjourns, it will be the consummation of what may be tenably called, in part at least, a prolonged political finesse. By adjournment, the Administration and the New Dealers, especially the more radical ones, will take two important tricks.

When this Congress began, January, 1939, one of its most strongly held intentions, especially in the House, was to amend the Labor Relations Act. Complaint against the act, as administered by the Labor Board, had come from employers, from the American Federation of Labor, and from other sources.

The process of amending the Labor Act had to follow two parallel paths, one in the House, one in the Senate. In each chamber, the process runs thus: A bill or resolution is introduced. It is referred to the Labor Committee of the respective chamber. The committee holds hearings. The committee reports to its chamber. The chamber acts. Unless both chambers act, the bill dies.

LET US follow the process of amending the Labor Act through the House. Proposed measures were introduced. They went to the Labor Committee. During early 1939, the Labor Committee, after some delay, held hearings. The House as a whole, however, evidently felt that its Labor Committee was not as expeditious as the House wished. On July 18, 1939, the House took an extremely unusual step. By a vote of 254 to 134, nearly 2 to 1, the House took the matter out of the hands of its Labor Committee. The House set up a special committee to investigate the Labor Board. "Investigate" is a more rigorous process than the routine process of holding hearings.

This special House committee heard witnesses during last December, January and February. The testimony uncovered practices by the board which a majority of the committee strongly condemned. March 30, 1940, the committee reported to the House. As a result, the House, June 7 last, by a vote of 258 to 129, adopted several amendments to the Labor Act.

This concluded action by the House. But action by the House accomplished nothing unless the Senate acted also.

IN THE SENATE, amendments to the Labor Act were introduced nearly two years ago, at the beginning of the present Congress, in January, 1939. The measure went, by routine, to the Senate Labor Committee. The Labor Committee announced a date for hearings, but postponed it. Again it announced, again it postponed. A reason given by the chairman of the committee, Senator Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah, was that President Roosevelt was trying to persuade the two branches of organized labor, A. F. of L. and C. I. O., to unite; and that Senate hearings would disturb the spirit of peace. After some months, the attempt at union failed. Finally, in April, 1939, the Labor Committee began hearings. But the committee took no action, made no report to the Senate.

After the House had gone ahead, and had actually passed the amendments, the Senate Labor Committee again said it must hold further hearings. It held some. But it made no report to the Senate.

Thus the situation stands. The House has passed the Labor Act amendments. In the Senate, the amendments are still in the Senate Labor Committee. If, now, Congress adjourns, the amendments will be dead.

THE SECOND point which will be won by the New Dealers, if Congress adjourns, is the Walter-Logan bill. The purpose of this bill is to provide appeal to judicial bodies from actions by the administrative branch of the Government. This bill passed the House April 18 last, by 282 to 97, nearly 3 to 1, a majority of the Democrats voting for it.

In the Senate also, the Walter-Logan bill was once passed, in July, 1939, without a dissenting vote. Subsequently, however, Senate Leader Barkley and other New Dealers asked reconsideration. This the Senate granted. But the bill has never again come up. Whenever friends of the bill proposed to bring it up, Senator Barkley asked for delay. Finally, he promised he would let it come up November 18, this week.

If, now, Congress adjourns, the bill will be dead.

That Mr. Roosevelt does not want the Walter-Logan bill to pass, everybody understands. One reason given for letting it die is that Mr. Roosevelt would veto it. But a bill can be passed over a veto by a vote of 2 to 1, and this bill has once passed the Senate without a dissenting vote, and the House by almost 3 to 1.

IT IS WELL known that both the Walter-Logan bill and the Labor Act amendments are disliked by the New Deal. It seems fair to say that, in the common judgment, some of the delay has been political finesse. The words "pigeonholing" and "stalling" have been used by friends of the measures.

About the merit of the two measures, nothing is here said. Nothing is here said about recent changes in the Labor Board which, some claim, makes the Labor Act amendments less necessary. All that is here emphasized is the desirability of Congress acting on the measures, one way or the other. That the legislative branch of government should have the vitality to remain in session, and function—that is supremely desirable.

'Modern Carthage'

Partial Text Of Mussolini's Speech

By the Associated Press

Rome, Nov. 18.—The following is an unofficial translation of an abridged text of Premier Mussolini's speech today:

You will understand that it is not by chance I chose this day to summon the provincial hierarchy of the party to Rome.

It is a day of victory for Fascist Italy, of defeat for the League of Nations, a coalition of 52 besieging nations. November 18, 1935, appears a decisive date in European history.

It is the first and last attempt at attack in the grand style unleashed by the Old World, represented in its egoism and in its outmoded ideologies by the League of Nations against New European forces, young and revolutionary, represented by Italy and Germany.

From that day dates the separation, contrast and conflict which, necessarily after the Munich compromise was accepted by the democracies for the sole purpose of gaining time, had to result in the war which France and Great Britain declared on Germany.

Never in the history of mankind has one seen a more colossal wave of misleading statements and lies than that unleashed by government organs and writers in Great Britain during the campaign in Poland, Norway, Belgium and Holland and concluding with the defeat of the British armies—this last defeat without precedent for its huge proportions and its almost unthinkable rapidity.

Multiple Fronts

France was wobbling, but still far from being on her knees and no one in the world could foresee an army famed as the strongest in Europe would melt like snow under the sun when on June 10 Italy entered the war in order to hold to the true letter and spirit of its alliance and finally to break the bars of its prison in her old sea.

After two weeks, the Armistice came, and France abandoned the fight which it afterwards resumed in spurts, but only to defend herself from predatory attacks of her former ally, as for instance at Oran and Dakar.

From June 10 to today there passed five months of war seriously waged on distant and multiple fronts, on land and sea and in the skies of Europe and Africa. . . .

The army on the Alpine and the African fronts has shown its mettle. The English defeat in British Somaliland was as complete as that at Dunkerque. So also at Berbera the English fled and justified themselves by blaming us for having committed irreparable strategic errors by beating them.

The armed forces in the African empire, an empire which according to enemy predictions, should have blown up, have taken the initiative everywhere and the English attempt to undermine it from within pitifully failed.

Likewise, in Libya, we have been the ones to attack and the lightning-like occupation of Sidi Barrani must be considered not a conclusion but a premise . . .

Officers and crews of the navy carrying out silently, often heroically, their duty on many seas were engaged from the Indian Ocean to the Atlantic.

Dominates the Skies

Our navy guards our line of communications in the Mediterranean and Adriatic so effectively that the enemy navy has not succeeded in interrupting them or even disturbing them.

The Italian air force always more than equals its task. It has dominated and dominates the skies.

As for their machines, four times as many are coming out from our factories every month as at the beginning of the war. Soon with mass production of a new type we will be possibly ahead, certainly even with the most modern machines of other countries.

But after the armed forces, let me praise the discipline and sense of duty of the imperturbable Italian people. They calmly accept privations resulting from the war, which still are tolerable, but which may become more serious later, and, guided by their age-old political intuition, feel that this is a decisive war and, like the Third Punic War, must and will end with the annihilation of the modern Carthage—England.

A strong people like the Italians does not fear the truth. That is why our war bulletins are documentations of truth. We give the blows we give and those we receive.

I would feel I was shrinking in the eyes of my own people as well as my own if I followed any other method, such as covering up or softening reality, good or bad, as the case may be. To do that would be to delude and humiliate the people.

Enlargement of Success

In this connection I want to recall the shout of joy raised in the House of Commons when Churchill finally was able to give the good news: That concerning the action carried out in the port of Taranto by English torpedo planes. Actually three ships were struck, but none of them was sunk. Only one, as announced by the bulletin of our armed forces, has been seriously damaged and its repair will take a long time.

The other two, in the unanimous opinion of technicians, will quickly be restored to their former efficiency. It is false—I say false—that two other warships and two auxiliary vessels were sunk or hit or slightly damaged in any way.

It is a sign of bad conscience, this enlargement and six-fold multiplication of the success we acknowledged at first. Mr. Churchill, in order to complete the picture, should have been able to give his honorable listeners some indication of the fate of the Liverpool, Kent and other first-line units recently torpedoed in the central Mediterranean or in the port of Alexandria by Italian submarines or torpedo planes.

Our entry into the war showed that Axis was not an empty word. From June until today our cooperation with Germany has been truly comradely totalitarian. We march side by side. This union of two peoples becomes ever closer and extends to all fields of their military, economical, political and spiritual activity.

Our identity of views both for the present and future are perfect.

My meetings with the Fuehrer only consecrated this complete fusion of our conceptions.

It now is clear the Axis does not desire a peace of reprisal or rancor, but it is equally understood that certain claims must be satisfied.

An Axis Peace

These more than legitimate claims could have been the subject of discussion before the war if they had not been countered by ridiculous and tragic "nevers," when there was some sign of abandoning them it was already too late. Italy had chosen its path by May, 1939.

The die was cast. But exactly because of their legitimate character our claims will have to granted without compromise or a temporary settlement from which from now on we reject categorically . . .

It is superfluous to state the peace by armistice will be a joint peace, that is, it will be an Axis peace.

To consecrate the fraternity of Italian-German arms I requested the Fuehrer, who consented, that we be permitted to participate directly in the battle against Great Britain with planes and submarines.

I add at once, Germany had no need of our aid. The worth of its fighters on land, sea and in the sky, its industrial power, its organizing, technical capacity, the output of its labor, all are well known.

Figures on German airplane and submarine production truly are remarkable and continually are increasing. Notwithstanding this, I am grateful to the Fuehrer for having accepted my offer. Nothing so much as blood shed together or sacrifices endured in a common cause makes relations between peoples solid and durable when they are animated by absolute loyalty and identity of interest and ideals. I am certain our aviation and submarine crews will honor our flags.

After long patience we stripped the mask from the country "guaranteed" by Britain, from a deceitful enemy—Greece. It was a score which was waiting to be settled. One thing should be said and will perhaps not fail to surprise some Italian classicists who are not up to date: the Greeks hate Italy as no other people. It is a hatred which at first glance appears inexplicable, but in general is deep seated and incurable in all branches, in cities and in villages, high and low everywhere. . . .

Act of Hostility

Upon this hatred which might be called grotesque, Greece has founded its policy in recent years. A policy of absolute complicity with Britain.

It could not have been otherwise since the King is English, the political class is English and the bourse, in both a figurative and literal sense, is English.

From papers found by the German general staff in France, at Vitry and Lacharite, it is shown that since May Greece had offered the French and English all her air and naval bases. It was necessary to bring an end to this situation. It was that which was done October 28 when our troops crossed the Greek-Albanian border. The rough mountains of the Epirus, their muddy valleys, do not lend themselves to "lightning" war as those incorrigibles would make out who practice stop-at-home strategies with pins on maps.

I do not believe it worth the trouble to deny all the news given by Greek propaganda and its English loudspeakers. That Julia Alpine division which was supposed to have suffered enormous losses, fled and had been pulverized by the Greeks was seen by Gen. Soddu, who after his visit telegraphed on November 12: "I went this morning to visit the Julia Alpine division and must report a magnificent impression was brought back from this superb unit, prouder and stronger than ever (it was) in its Alpine rocks."

There were some among you old comrades who remembered my unpublished speech at Eboli made in July, 1935, before the Ethiopian war. I said we would break the Negus' back. Now with the same absolute certainty—I repeat absolutely—I tell you we shall break Greece's back. Whether in 2 or 12 months, it little matters. The war has barely begun. We have enough men and means to annihilate all Greek resistance.

Once a beginning is made, I do not soften. I have already shown it and, whatever has happened, is happening or may happen, I will show it again.

Three hundred and seventy-two fallen comrades, 1,081 wounded and 650 missing in the first ten days of fighting on the Epirus front will be avenged.

Comrades: In this historic, really solemn hour which lines up continents in conflicts and understandings, the party—the defender, the continuer of the revolution—must be intensified in all forms of its activity. At the outbreak of war a certain slowing of party activity was connected with the objective back of the departure (mobilization) of all members of the hierarchy. No longer. There is not and will not be a general mobilization. Two classes have been recalled. Thirty others still are available.

We have a million men under arms, we can call 8,000,000 more if necessary. Under these conditions, the party must pick up its function again with unchanging and increasing vigor, engaging strenuously in its battle along—the entire front of a political, economic and spiritual line.

The party must be free itself, as free as nations of the lingering small bourgeois, ballast in the widest sense which we give this term. It must maintain the increased tempo of these difficult times.

Certain universalistic pacifism of unbalanced minds is being watched and fought. It is out of order in this effort of steel and cannon. Nothing else exists outside this supreme aim for which we have taken up arms.

Germans, Italians together we are a bloc of 150,000,000 men, resolute, compact and firm from Norway to Libya, in the heart of Europe. This bloc already has victory in its fist.

AMBASSADOR BULLITT
He suggested giving the Chinese enough supplies for an autumn counter-offensive, Messrs. Alsop and Kintner recall

Dr. Soong Comes To Town

BEHIND THE SCENES of the Administration, a powerful movement is afoot to give embattled China something more than empty good will and an occasional well secured loan. In simple outline, the plan is to strengthen the Chinese substantially with money and planes, in the hope that a determined Chinese counter-attack will divert the Japanese from further adventures in the Malay peninsula.

In the post-election lull, when so many heads of departments were away from Washington, most of the ground work has been done by subordinates. But the movement will have the enthusiastic support of Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, who is deeply concerned about the Far Eastern situation, and of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., an old friend of the Chinese. The President himself is expected to approve. And although progress is likely to be impeded by the usual factional divisions within the State Department, Secretary Cordell Hull and the President's particular crony, Ambassador to France William C. Bullitt, are both counted as warmly sympathetic.

Moreover, the movement has the best possible debating point. For unless firm steps are promptly taken, the present Japanese advance into the Malay peninsula may end before the spring, with the virtual liquidation of the Far Eastern positions of Great Britain and the United States.

THE SPOKESMAN of the Chinese in Washington is Dr. T. V. Soong, brother of the celebrated sisters, Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, Mme. Sun Yat-sen and Mme. H. H. Kung. Dr. Soong, himself a brilliant financier and leading figure in the Chinese national government, is asking for $200,000,000 and as many pursuit and bombing planes as can be spared up to an eventual total of 500. Considering average war expenditures elsewhere, the demand seems small. Yet Dr. Soong is confident—and his confidence is considered reasonable by many naval and military experts on the Far East—that with $200,000,000 in cash and a few hundred decent planes the Chinese could reconquer Hankow. Hangshow and other vital centers. A Chinese counter-offensive even half so successful as this should be sufficient to bring the Japanese scurring back out of Malaya.

Dr. Soong has been in Washington since June. Thus far, it must be admitted, his adventures with the Administration have a certain operabouffe quality. When he first arrived, he wanted only money, and was sent to the astute Secretary of Commerce and Federal Loan Administrator, Jesse H. Jones. Jones apparently regarded what was obviously a purely political loan to China as on a par with the refinancing of a needy bicycle factory. When Dr. Soong asked for $100,000,000 Jones offered $5,000,000. There was much haggling. At length only $25,000,000 was allowed.

WHILE THE HAGGLING was in progress, various attempts were made to integrate aid to China with the rest of our foreign policy. During the summer, for example, after a talk with the British Ambassador, Lord Lothian, Ambassador Bullitt suggested to the President giving the Chinese supplies enough for a counter-offensive this autumn. But the question was adjourned until "after election." Efforts to procure for the Chinese the 276 planes ordered by Sweden but not licensed for export also miscarried. In truth, beside the $25,000,000 from Jesse Jones, China has received to date only ten attack bombers. These were part of an order for sixteen bombers placed by Thailand, but withheld when Thailand's cooperation with Japan became too apparent.

Now, however, a real decision must be made one way or another. Because of her internal currency situation, China desperately needs a stabilization fund of at least $100,000,000. Without such a fund, there will be no value in the paper with which Chiang Kai-shek keeps in the field a regular army of nearly 2,000,000 and 1,500,000 guerrillas. It is a small price to pay for such a force. Besides the $100,000,000 for the stabilization fund, an additional $100,000,000 is required to pay for the planes and other supplies necessary to the counter-attack.

FURTHERMORE, it is decidedly unpleasant to contemplate what may happen if a Chinese counter-attack cannot be quickly prepared. Until recently the Japanese have been immobilized by fear of being taken in the rear by the Russians, but a Russian sellout in the Far East was probably assented to at Berlin by the Soviet Commissar of Foreign Affairs, Viacheslav Molotoff. Japanese troops have already been withdrawn from important areas in China and are now being concentrated, in a strong expeditionary force on the islands of Hainan and Formosa. The occupation of the rest of Indo-China is the immediate objective but once Saigon and the vital French naval base at Camh-Ranh Bay are in Japanese hands, Singapore and the Dutch East Indies will be the next steps.

If Singapore goes, the position of the Chinese national government will become untenable for even the Burma Road will then be cut off. The Japanese will be in full control of Eastern Asia. And the Germans, whose agents are reliably reported to be planning and supervising the current Japanese maneuvers, will have won another, and vastly important point in their world strategy.

Today And Tomorrow

The Meaning To America Of A British Defeat

AS THE NATION proceeds to put into effect the policy of supporting Great Britain, it will be most necessary to hold clearly in our minds why this policy, to which both parties have committed themselves, represents the vital interests of the United States. Much has been said on one aspect of the matter but the whole case has not yet been presented clearly and candidly to the people.

Thus it is well understood by almost everyone that if Great Britain wins the war, the safety of the western hemisphere and of the main American interests in the Pacific Ocean is assured. It is well understood that the continuing resistance of Great Britain provides the United States with a protective shield behind which it can develop its naval and military defenses. It is well understood that if Britain were conquered, the United States would face alone, if not in actual war then at least in a warlike diplomacy and economic pressure, the combined power of Germany, Japan, Italy, and their satellite states. It is well understood that to be the one great democratic power left in a world of victorious totalitarian powers would be a kind of isolation such as Americans have never dreamed of.

But to have understood all of these things is not yet to have understood the whole reason why the effective supoort of Great Britain is the vital interest of America. For in the partial presentation of the case, there is the fatally misleading assumption that if Britain were defeated, the peoples of the British Empire would somehow become a merely neutral force in the relations between the Triple Axis and the western hemisphere. Most of the discussion here, except among those who [illegible] best informed and have [illegible] clearest insight, supposes that [illegible] defeat of Britain would simply mean the withdrawal of the British fleet and British power as a barrier between the Axis and ourselves, that where Britain stands now there would then be nothing, and that our problem would then be to defend ourselves against, or to get on as best we could with, the victorious Axis. But this would not be the situation and it could not be.

THOUGH TO SAY SO must be a shock to many, the inescapable fact is that a defeated Britain could not be neutral. It would have to be a partner of the Axis. For if the defeat of Britain were a military defeat, resulting from invasion of the British Isles, the starvation of the British Isles, or the crushing of the spirit of the people of the British Isles, the government of Winston Churchill would inevitably be swept away and replaced by a regime which obeyed the orders of Berlin either because it was composed of men who hoped for favors from Berlin or by men who dared not say no to Berlin. It would be a regime similar to that of Vichy, except that there remains in France and among all patriotic Frenchmen in Vichy the hope of an eventual liberation through a British victory. This saving hope is what now preserves the neutrality of France; were Britain defeated, there would be no such saving hope for France, and none for Britain. For how could a defeated Britain, with the Germans in occupation or with a pro-German government installed in London, hope for liberation from the United States.

The case would be no better if in order to avert a military conquest, the British decided to negotiate a peace with the victorious Axis. For such a peace could not be negotiated by Britons like Churchill and Bevin and Morrison who have sworn that they will never give up; it would have to be negotiated by Britons of a wholly different sort. In such a negotiation is it likely, is it conceivable, that the British appeasers would feel in any way bound to think of our interests? Certainly not. Is it not plain that their best chance of getting favorable terms for the British Empire would be to invite Hitler and to help Hitler to carve out his empire elsewhere? Except for strategic points like Gibraltar, Suez, and Singapore, and a few colonies in Africa, there are no important territories under the British crown that Hitler greatly covets. His empire in Europe would be the continent of Europe and his empire overseas would be South America. An Anglo-German peace of appeasement, designed to spare Britain and to satisfy Hitler, would naturally be based on the principle of a free hand for Germany in continental Europe and Latin-America.

THE EFFECTS of the conquest of Britain or of the acceptance of a peace of Nazi appeasement would be world-wide. For while there would no doubt be multitudes of British people everywhere, in Canada and in Australia, and in the colonies, who would never accept such a fate, there would be others who in loyalty to the Crown and with patriotism would feel, as so many Frenchmen do, that they had to cling together and support the policy of the empire. Our relations with all British lands—Canada among them—would be profoundly unsettled. For we could never know for certain how far any British subject dissociated himself from what would then be the policy of London, from what would then be the obligation of loyalty to king and country. This is the tragedy of Franco-American and of Franco-British relations today. Although Britons and Americans have not ceased to love the French nation as the most civilized of peoples or to believe in it as the true defender of all that they cherish, yet they must take into account the terrible and insidious pressure of the German conquerors on the conscience and the loyalty of Frenchmen.

A defeated and subjugated government in London, operated by men who were bound to Berlin, who had given to Berlin hostages such as Vichy has had to give, would cause such a revolutionary unsettlement of all Anglo-American relations as no man can now fully imagine. We should not know in any part of the world who are our friends, who are the neutrals, who are our antagonists.

THUS, THERE IS staked upon the effectiveness of our support to Great Britain much more than many of us have as yet allowed ourselves to realize. For while Britain resistant and victorious is our first line of defense, Britain defeated and subjugated would become a force for disintegration and insecurity behind all our defenses.

The Two Thanksgivings

I remember, I remember
When persons one and all
Knew on what day Thanksgiving
Would absolutely fall;
They looked upon a calendar
If there was any doubt
And, what was more, they knew this
A good way to find out.

I remember, I remember
When no one would appear
About this time remarking,
"When does it come this year?"
When no one, looking muddled,
Said, "Gratitude is great,
And I would like to show some
If I but knew the date!"

I remember, I remember
When it fell on ONE day,
Preserved by a tradition
That no one swept away;
When it came on a Thursday—
November's final one—
And when you carved, nobody
Said, "'Taint official, son!"

I remember, I remember
When all the turkeys knew
They need but fret o'er one date
And never over two;
When if they got by safely
They need no longer fear
That there were two Thanksgivings
For them to watch that year.

I remember, I remember
When dad, with ax held tight,
Would not turn in the doorway
To ask, "Now am I right?
This thing is quite confusing
To me and to the bird;
There MAY be two Thanksgivings—
And possibly a THIRD!"

I remember, I remember
When a fellow full of thanks
Looked forward to November
Without a thought of pranks;
When what his fathers honored
Was good enough for him—
And dates and ancient customs
Were far above a whim.

Fair Enough

Duce's Invincibles

TO THE HISTORIC honors won at Adowa, Caporetto, Guadalajara and Lissa the dashing invincibles of Benito Mussolini have now added new glories, inflicted by the Greeks in Albania and the British at Taranto, where the Duce's indomitables upheld the famous, if somewhat queer, traditions of their arms. To be sure, the flight of the irresistibles in Albania did not equal in magnitude the spectacular advance to the rear which has made Caporetto a name too sacred to be mentioned out in Italy, nor in speed and form with the magnificent feat of footwork achieved at Guadalajara in Spain.

But, man for man, the forces which ran the Greeks to exhaustion over the mountains in recent days have no need to apologize to the survivors of Caporetto and the heroes of Guadalajara will have to admit that they did their running on a faster and straighter track. After all, spirit counts for a great deal in Mussolini's scoring system, and the forces in Albania certainly deserved to be marked "A" in earnestness as they tore for home when the fighting started.

IF THERE WAS any blame at all it belongs to the Duce in selecting for this contest a terrain in which the roads were narrow and winding and the curves improperly banked. Reports from the Greek side agree that the track was not at all suitable for championship performances. The conquering legions were compelled to slow down on the turns to pitch over the cliffs, and there were bottlenecks in which some of the slower members impeded men behind who were full of run and wanted only road room.

So, notwithstanding the fact that an extraordinary proportion of invincibles were caught, the forces involved doubtless will receive from the Duce the cherished right to wear the proud insignia of a cloud of dust, which is awarded to all distinguished regiments of his forces. This device, unlike the battle honors of other nations, is worn between the space between the shoulder blades, where it is most likely to impress an enemy. If it were worn in front, of course, no enemy would ever see it.

UNDOUBTEDLY the Duce's quartermaster department will now be called on for a technical report on the efficiency of a type of running shoe worn by his invincibles in the flight from the Greeks. After Guadalajara, when so many casualties were found to be suffering from hobnail wounds in the rear, it was decided to do something to abate this hazard, and rubber spikes were substituted for a time, but were abandoned when the soldiers stewed them in gear grease and ate them for mussels, a great delicacy as long as they lasted.

The more daring minds on the Duce's staff proposed long, wicked sprinters' spikes and a mere shell of a shoe for the utmost speed and a regulation issue of tin body armor in the sole of the pants to reduce casualties from tramping. But, after all, the imperial legions of the all-conquering will are not mere sprinters. They are distance runners, too, so we do not know whether they were using spikes in Albania, where they ran a marathon race.

IT IS HARD to see how Mussolini can conscientiously honor the heroes of the naval engagement at Taranto on an equal scale with those of the old battle of Lissa. It is true that, on net results, they upheld the traditions of Lissa, but, after all, they didn't run away during the action. They had already run away and were hiding at the time, whereas at Lissa the Italian fleet not only achieved a historic defeat but followed that with a magnificent flight from the Austrians, comparable, in sea warfare, to the most glorious feats of running ever recorded by the land forces.

If the Duce starts rewarding men for inartistic defeats he will cheapen his honors, and his imperial hosts will begin to cut themselves on the chin just to win medals for their shoulder blades.

In the Duce's hosts of land, sea and air two elements should always be combined in any traditional performance—defeat and flight. Taranto was not entirely in the best tradition.

St. Joseph's Boys Are Regular Fellows

By Barry Sullivan

The 70 boys at St. Joseph's Home and School are merry, regular fellows. But their welcome grips your heart. They are so glad to see you, they want to hold your hands. And when they smile, you can almost "hear the angels sing."

Many are at St. Joseph's because mother or father is dead. Others are from broken homes. Some are from homes where parents or relatives are unable to take care of them. Less than 10 are "real orphans," Sister Mary Leila, superintendent, says.

A FRIEND IN DEED

The day for the boys, the 11 Holy Cross sisters and other staff members begins at 6:30 a. m. mass. Then everybody has breakfast before making beds and doing housekeeping.

School begins at 9 o'clock, ends at three. Supervised athletics for older boys and games for the younger ones fill the afternoon.

Manual training, the newest activity, is popular with the boys. Boys at St. Joseph's stay until they complete the eighth grade. Then they return to their homes or arrangements are made for them in foster homes by Catholic Charities.

St. Joseph's, which receives approximately $21,000 from the Community Chest, draws its boys from applicants to Catholic Charities and there is a long waiting list. Funds also are received from endowments and from payments by families.

In caring for its boys, St. Joseph's home works on the philosophy that they must live in a competitive world. Consequently, there are no uniforms—"haven't been for years"—and visits home on Sunday are encouraged.

The boys go to the movies, spending money they earn by doing chores and play football against neighborhood teams.

"Regimentation has completely gone out of institutions for children," Sister Mary Leila explains. "We encourage decision-making and initiative, rather than fitting to a mold. We have to have some rules, of course, but we try to keep them at a minimum."

About Those Parking Questionnaires . . .

HELEN LOVELACE, WHO LIVES IN ALEXANDRIA BUT WORKS IN WASHINGTON, GOT ONE, TOO

Washington's perplexing parking problem was put directly up to the motoring public yesterday as District traffic officials sought to learn the individual needs of local car owners.

As part of the D. C. Highway Planning Survey under way for several months, questionnaires were distributed throughout the downtown section and within the next several weeks will be handed to owners or placed in the cars of approximately 75,000 motorists.

"We already know what motorists do," said Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, highway director, "now we want to find out what they desire to do."

Some time ago, said Capt. Whitehurst, the survey was tried out in the Columbia Heights section with "excellent results." "Motorists cooperated wholeheartedly," he said, "and we hope they will do the same all over town. Unless they do, we will not be able to get a true and complete picture of the needs." The present study, he added, will be extended to other sections of the city.

A "sincere effort" to improve parking conditions will follow the questionnaire survey, officials promise.

Prattle for Party-Goers

ATTIRED in what she called her "tea party uniform"—a stunning silver fox ensemble—Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, president of the Do Something About It League, yesterday announced she would resume her society reforms which were interrupted by the election.

Mrs. DeGoofey

"Now that everyone is bored to death with both politics and war," said Mrs. DeGoofey at her press conference, "I expect a general turning of the masses toward the tea table and the punch bowl. Therefore, I must get busy with my reforms at once."

"You surely don't intend to throw overboard the hallowed and time-honored institution of the tea table," exclaimed a representative of The Congressional Digest.

"No, indeed. For once in my life I intend to be constructive. I intend to start a school—"

"For scandal," exclaimed a gossip columnist.

"No, for chatter," was the reply. 'I intend to make anyone—even the dreariest professor or the cagiest official's wife—fit for scintillating conversation in 10 easy lessons.

Learn the Lingo And Go Places

"Now a great many women," continued Mrs. DeGoofey, "are ill at ease and even neglected at teas, luncheons, receptions, etc., merely because they haven't learned the lingo. They spend their time in corners when they might as well be holding court in the center of the room brilliantly discussing the flowers, the canapes or the antiques. Moreover, many ambitious women aren't getting anywhere in society merely because they don't know the proper social cliches, such as, 'How fascinating.' 'Isn't he devastating.' 'Who is that terribly attractive woman with the sapphire gadget?' Now I propose to remedy that situation."

Mrs. DeGoofey drew from her mammoth silver fox muff a bundle of pamphlets. "Here are the announcements of my course," she said. "Now you will notice that Seminar A1 for begniners is on 'How To Talk About Old Houses.' For instance—here Mrs. DeGoofey fixed her eye on Senate press gallery reporter—"what would you say if you were at a party and your hostess told you George Washington had slept in her house?"

"I—I'd ask her if she ever heard him snore?" was the reply.

"Put on the dunce cap and stand in the corner," said Mrs. DeGoofey. "What would you say?" she asked addressing a political columnist.

"I'd say, 'Oh were the parties that dull in the old days too?"

How to Exclaim About Centerpieces

"It's evident neither of you will ever get anywhere in society," admonished Mrs. DeGoofey. "Now you will see that I also have a course on 'What To Say About Flower Centerpieces.' Many untrained guests merely keep telling the hostess how beautiful her flowers are. What they should do, of course, is to inquire if they were grown by her 'own gardener' or to ask where she had studied flower arrangement.

"Then," continued Mrs. DeGoofey, "we will have a course on 'How to Exclaim About Objets d'Art.' This will be taught by Prof. Byron Bysshe Aspic, noted esthete, champion of womanhood, and only man member of the Do Something About It League. Prof. Aspic will teach just what should be said in the presence of Oriental vases, Mexican glassware, Jacobean tables, Indian pottery, old pewter, tapestries and what-not collections.

"I, myself, will teach a class on 'What to Say About Antiques!' Now this is most important. I once knew a woman who lost out completely in the social world because she made a remark about a highboy that was designed for a lowboy. Then Dr. Luella Musher will conduct a course on adjectives, so that everyone may keep up and not go around saying, 'How marvelous,' when everyone else is saying 'How exciting.'"

"Are those all the subjects you expect to cover, Mrs. DeGoofey?" asked an editorial writer.

"SUBJECTS!" exclaimed Mrs. DeGoofey. "Why the whole idea of these courses is to keep people off of subjects!"

Draperies Play An Historic Role In Home Beauty

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

"HOME to my poor wife who works all day like a horse at the makings of her hangings for our chamber and bed." So wrote Samuel Pepys in the seventeenth century.

For hangings have been an inseparable part of home decoration as far back as we have any record of the matter. Those stone castles where the knights were so bold were made more habitable by the tapestries their ladies wove and the embroideries they stitched. And we're quite sure that even pre-historic woman made her family more comfortable, and incidentally her cave less barren looking, by fastening animal skins and woven grass over the openings and cracks whence came the worst drafts.

Times have changed indeed to the point where hangings are rarely a matter of stern utility as protection against the cold or heat. Now we use them because of their beauty and because, as we often say, they bring warmth to a room, but that is, actually, a symbolic warmth, a feeling of graciousness and hospitality with which the centuries have endowed draperies.

The best way, of course, to have beautiful windows is to pay a beautiful price to a fine workman. And he's well worth his high price, for it takes skill and art to tailor draperies. If such a wave-of-the-wand technic is out of the question, however, don't worry. If you're willing to take on the job yourself you can do it—but don't embark glibly on the project, for it takes time, labor and love.

Faddy Diets No Aid to Beauty Or Health, Warns Dietician

Dr. Mitchell Calls Eating of Protective Foods Best 'System'

By Ida Jean Kain

TRY TO IMAGINE a luncheon at which each guest was invited to "bring your own diet!" You'd be so busy looking at the assortment of fads and listening to the preposterous promises made for them that you wouldn't have time to eat.

Dr. Helen S. Mitchell, research professor of nutrition at Massachusetts State College, who presented this humorous imaginary situation at a public meeting of the recent convention of the American Dietetic Association, went on to list the food faddists you would be likely to meet.

There would be at least one person with a raw fruit and vegetable diet, someone else with a special lunch of vegetable juices and some kind of crackers, an advocate of the pineapple and lamb chop diet, and perhaps someone with a hungry look but nothing in her bag because she is restricting herself to only two meals a day. And, of course, one of the guests would have a diet in which the foods weer chosen to harmonize with protein.

Be Suspicious Of 'Quack' Diets

The diets to be avoided, Dr. Mitchell stressed, are the ones which were never originated by reputable doctors or dieticians. Although none of the foods included in the list mentioned are harmful, most faddy diets are incomplete in one or more respects.

In the case of the raw-food diet, "the addicts would survive without a doubt," she says. But the question is, why do it? "Cooking adds variety in flavor and texture and makes many foods edible which could not be used raw," Dr. Mitchell adds. "Some raw fruits and vegetables in the daily menus are an excellent source of vitamin C, which is easily destroyed by cooking, but that does not mean we should eat all our food raw. Some digestive tracts would be unable to cope with a large amount of raw cellulose."

If you have the price, Dr. Mitchell states that the "natural foods," such as sea salt, raw sugar, olive oil instead of fat and lemon juice instead of vinegar are perfectly harmless—but also unnecessary! There is nothing harmful or poisonous in the foods for which they are substituted.

Another objection well taken is the one that certain vegetable juices are accredited with virtues which surpass the natural source! You may have heard it said that celery juice will cure indigestion, that carrot juice does marvels for the complexion, that parsley juice is a building tonic, that garlic fixes up high blood pressure, or that cabbage juice flushes the kidneys and lemon juice wil straighten out gall bladder. Well, don't put your faith in any such promises.

DR. HELEN S. MITCHELL, nutrition expert, advises women against faddy diets

As for the compatible eating system, Dr. Mitchell declares that "we eat combinations whether we will or no—even these diet faddists cannot avoid it, but they neglect to tell their patients about that point."

It Takes More Than Personality

Most promoters of these diet systems or health institutes have poise, personality and persuasion, Dr. Mitchell observes. They speak convincingly, mixing a smattering of scientific knowledge with the false or misleading to suit their needs. As for the systems themselves—"extravagant claims for cure or relief of various complaints are always to be doubted!" she asserts. In purchasing dietary supplements, scrutinize the labels to make sure that the number of Sherman or International units of the vitamins is given along with the number of milligrams per tablet. There is plenty of sound advice available as to the amount you should take.

In conclusion, bear in mind this parting word from Dr. Mitchell: "Money spent for better food—for more of the protective foods—will go further to promote better health for America than the same amount of money now being spent for health and diet fads."

Girl Photographer for FSA Travels 50,000 Miles in Search for Pictures

IT TAKES considerable courage, not to mention credentials galore, to venture into the hinterlands with a camera these days—particularly when you're a comely young girl. "People in small towns take one look at me and admit Hitler's getting pretty smart," says Marion Post, Farm Security photographer. "They're sure that if I opened the back of my Graflex they'd see a lot of blueprints. In one place the sheriff arrested me and took me to the courthouse, with the whole town following to make sure justice was done. The judge told me I was charged with being a suspicious person, but he finally dismissed the case and said I probably was as good an American as anybody."

MARION POST

Marion also has been taken for a gypsy because she tans so deeply, and for a peddler because of the boxes of equipment in her convertible. Actually her field trips—she's gone for as much as nine months at a time and has driven more than 50,000 solitary miles in all—are for the purpose of photographing FSA projects and picturing the need for further rehabilitation among tenant farmers and migrant workers.

When President and Mrs. Roosevelt receive a plump turkey from Norman County, Minn., this week, they may be stumped momentarily as to the identity of the sender. This story perhaps will jog their memory: During last summer's 4-H Club encampment, Mrs. Roosevelt visited the camp and as usual asked if any of the delegatse was ill. Officials told her about one lad who was recuperating at a local hospital after an appendectomy. So that evening Sherwood O. Berg received a box of flowers from the First Lady, another from the President himself. Sherwood, who at 17 maintains a large farm and supports his fatherless brothers and sisters, promised himself then and there that he'd raise the finest turkey Minnesota ever saw for the President's Thanksgiving dinner.

Woman Loses Wealth and Health, Becoming Burden Upon Young Married Daughter and Husband, While Four Other Children Shirk Their Obligation

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Seven years ago, father died, leaving mother quite a bit of money. I was the youngest of five children. All the others—three brothers and one sister—were married and had their own homes and children. I was about to be married—and life couldn't have seemed more wonderful.

But at the end of my first year of marriage, two terrible things happened. Mother withdrew almost all her money from the bank, to invest in stock recommended by a dear friend who was financially interested. There followed a stock market upset and mother lost every cent she had invested. Two days later, as she was packing her things to move to a smaller apartment, she fell from a step ladder in her kitchen and just missed death by a hair. Now she is a complete invalid, in need of constant care.

After her stay in the hospital, it was decided that she should live with my husband and me, occupying the room that was to have been the nursery. My husband was making an excellent salary, but it was impossible for him to take care of all mother's expenses. He just couldn't do it. Yet the doctor's bills, medicine, trained nurse's salary, special treatments, etc., had to go on.

My family seemed to think my husband and I should meet all mother's expenses, since she was living with us. It was only after I had made them understand this was impossible that they grudgingly consented to contribute a small monthly amount each. All of them claimed this was a sacrifice, as they had large families of their own. Yet their respective contributions were riduculously small, considering the size of mother's bills.

I decided to go back to work to help with her expenses. Even with my salary, however, it was a "tight squeeze," because we had to get a housekeeper (to take my place as cook and general housekeeper), and continue the nurse's services. It is six years now that I have been working, and I am getting so tired of it. I do not feel it is right. I want a normal home life with my husband. And I want to bear his children—which I think is every wife's right. I am nearly 30 now, and in a few years it will be too late for me to have children.

I have thought about how this could be done, and here is my proposition: I would take over all housekeeping duties, eliminating the cost of a housekeeper. I would also learn about nursing, so that I could take care of mother as well. This would eliminate the nurse's salary. And I would be happy doing it, because I love my mother. But the family claims I couldn't do it; that when and if a baby came, it would be too much.

And you understand, this couldn't be done unless they contributed much more to mother's care than they are giving now. And that is the whole point of my letter. I see no reason why my husband and I should carry the burden practically unaided. She is their parent, just as much as she is mine. Certainly they should be willing to make sacrifices for her, even as we are. So what should I do? Your advice will be greatly appreciated.

A. C.

Family's Been Riding Free Horse to Death

DEAR A. C.: Your family's noncooperative attitude is hideously unfair. In relieving them of the physical and psychic burden of your mother's invalidism, you have been making a personal sacrifice that cannot be measured in terms of money. It is outrageous that they would expect you and your husband to carry the lion's share of the financial burden, as well. Figuratively speaking, they have been "riding a free horse to death."

You have just about reached the end of your rope. You are "so tired of it all" that you can't think clearly. I believe it would prove to be a case of "out of the frying pan into the fire,"—if you were to give up your salaried job to have children, while doing all your own housework and nursing a helpless invalid, besides, in order to keep within a budget.

Owing to generations of "soft" living, the modern city-dwelling woman of the so-called "white collar" class just hasn't the stamina, plus the standard of values, to carry that load happily and successfully. It would not be the sheer drudgery of the task that would break her spirit, eventually. It would be the nervous strain attendant upon her determination to "keep up appearances," personally and socially; to "have things nice," with the house and her person and her baby and her bedridden mother always in "apple pie order." Such order would, of course, be impossible to maintain in a three-generation household depending upon one woman's efforts to be combination cook, slavey, baby-tender, invalid's nurse and devoted wife.

The home-keeping job you propose for yourself would keep your nose to the grindstone from 6 a. m. until long after nightfall, seven days a week—leaving you neither time nor strength to be an attractive companion to your husband. And whatever else a man may hope for in his wife today, his first requirement is that she be companionable and agreeable. When she fails his expectation in that regard, he rapidly loses interest in such other virtues and accomplishments as she may have.

Here is my advice: COMPEL your brothers and sisters to kick in with a JUST monthly contribution hereafter. Be as grim, as hard-headed, as demanding as is necessary—in making each give what you know to be fair, after weighing their respective resources (and responsibilities) against the monthly cost of your mother's upkeep. When this revenue is coming in, reorganize your household and plan for your baby. I think you would be happier having the baby, in these circumstances, if you were to keep your job and arrange for a furlough around the time of accouchment, as many working wives do. If your present employer frowns on such an arrangement, find the job that will permit it.

Perhaps you could promote efficiency and economy in the household by substituting a so-called "practical nurse" in place of the trained nurse—since you already have a housekeeper. The practical nurse could care for both your mother and baby in your absence. This arrangement would relieve you of household drudgery, giving you evenings and week-ends to devote entirely to your husband and child. In my opinion, this plan has distinct advantages, in the long run, over the program you have proposed.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Navaho Rug Brightens Room

A STUNNING Indian Navaho rug! How pleased the young master of the house would be to have it in his room. Or, in your living room, what a cheerful note its warm russet hues!

You can weave this rug so easily, using odds and ends of cotton goods in brown, henna and natural. Or you may as pleasingly combine other colors.

Your loom you can quickly connect from four strips of wood. Simply screw the strips together to make an oblong frame a few inches larger than the finished rug, 20 by 36 inches with fringe.

Then, on each shorter side, drive in 41 small nails about ¼ inch apart and over each nail wind your warp of tan candlewick yarn—going back and forth across loom, as in diagram.

Now for the part that's really fun—the weaving! You just go over and under the warp threads as in darning. First weave a few rows of "filler" (rag strips later removed for the fringe), then 5 rows of candlewick yarn for heading. After that you use your colored cotton fabric, torn into long strips ½ inch wide.

To form the Navaho design thread a strip of brown fabric through a tapestry needle and weave two rows. Then at center warp thread start to weave with henna, first going over and under one thread, then widening to more threads to form a "v." Join with brown by looping brown through henna as in diagram.

Fifty of Season's Attractive Debutantes Hold Spotlight at Tenth Annual Black and White Ball

Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, Hostess Of Fete, Heads Receiving Line; Sub Debs Share Attention After Formalities Are Over

By Hope Ridings Miller

BY THE LIGHT of a simulated moon, the tenth annual Black and White Ball went on the boards with its traditional pomp and glory at the Mayflower last evening.

Debutantes in frothy white tulle, flowing chiffon or satin that gleamed in the pale glow were whirled gayly about the floor as Sidney's Orchestra played for dancing. Buds of the season were asked to come in white frocks, set off with a wreath of gardenias in powdered or silvered hair. Post-debs for the most part also appeared in white; while all other guests had their choice of black or white and formal attire was in order for all escorts and extra men.

Promptly at 10:30 two trumpeters in black and white colonial costumes heralded the formal opening of the ball and belles of the season lined up with Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, hostess for the fete, who headed the receiving group. When the final guest was greeted, the line broke and the debutantes and their beaux swung out onto the floor for the first two numbers, while Sidney's Orchestra played the theme songs of the fete, "Stay As Sweet As You Are," "Just the Way You Look Tonight" and "Love in Bloom."

From then, on, the debutante contingent shared the spotlight with post-debs and other guests and the ball went merrily along until the early morning hours. At 12:30, supper was served and after that dancing continued once more.

An innovation for the evening's program was the presentation at midnight of a "Black and White Waltz," dedicated to the debutantes of 1940. Created by Ethel Fistere, with music by Sidney, the dance took over the spotlight under the aegis of a professional dance team. The waltz was followed by a conga, in which hundreds of guests participated.

Fifty debutantes of Washington and other cities were in the receiving line and several hundred other guests were in the throng that enjoyed the ball—one of the most picturesque fetes of the season.

Miss Louise Stillwell was first in the line of debutantes, and next to her was Miss Peggy Lansdowne. Others in the line included Miss Elizabeth Fish, Miss Elaine Darlington, Miss Sita Finkenstaedt, Miss Alice Ingersoll, Miss Ruth Woodson, Miss Laura Blair, Miss Marion Norris, Miss Mary Theresa Norris, Miss Elizabeth Stewart-Richardson, Miss Courtney Owen, Miss Catherine Hill, Miss Suzanne Slingluff, Miss Cloe MacDonald, Miss Sheila Broderick.

For the first time in the history of the ball, an attractive trio added a dash of special interest to the line. Those well-known "Boyd triplets," Senoritas Mildred, Edith and Elena Boyd, daughters of the Ambassador of Panama and Senora de Boyd, were popular centers of attention all evening and were quite a focus for the photographers while the receiving line was in action.

Many From Other Cities in Line

Still others in the greeting group were Miss Ann Smith, Miss Mary Ellen Paul, Miss Phyllis Richardson, Miss Mary McIntire Betts, Miss Mary Ann Ferandou, Miss Mary Lord Andrews, Miss Audrey Cowan, Miss Agnes Miller Birney, Miss Moira Kenneday, Miss Mary Lee, Miss Mary Stuart Price, Miss Yvonne Perrin, Miss Shirley Wilson, Miss Marjorie Sanby, Miss Catherine Claude, Miss Nancy Strong, Miss Betty Lou Kauffman, Miss Betty Jane Knighton, Miss Helen Kindler and Miss Marcia O'Brien.

Several stunning out-of-towners also were in the receiving line. Among them were Miss Mary Churchill Mathews, Miss Rita Singstad and Miss Cecily Elmes, of New York; Miss Mary Eugenia Coleman, of San Francisco; Miss Margaret Lippincott, of Philadelphia; Miss Helen Thompson and Miss Oris Masi, of Norfolk; Miss Quincy Marshall Martin and Miss Maggie Belle Wiltshire, of Richmond; Miss Ann Ogle Shivers, of Charleston, W. Va., and Miss Landon Burke, of Alexandria.

Among the post-debutantes on hand for the fete were Miss Eleanor Vom Rath, Miss Ruthe Dove, Miss Doris Beckwith, Miss Yolanda Alfaro, Miss Achsah Dorsey, Miss Patricia Hill, Miss Virginia Pennington, Miss Edith Pearson, Miss Rosalyn Buchanan, Miss Mary Tudor Morsell, Miss Barbara Henning, Miss Molly Stonestreet, Miss Margo Mink, Miss Edith Hood, Miss Dita Davis, Miss Nancy Hoskinson and Miss Helen Potts.

To mention but a few guests not of the debutante group, there were the Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil, Mr. and Mrs. Smith Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Warner Ellin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Ross, Mrs. Gordan Ash, Miss Jane Wimsatt, Commander and Mrs. William Justin Lee, Mr. and Mrs. George Angus Garrett and Mrs. John Caswell.

Several Give Dinners Preceding Affair

Among the hundreds of young men who did their part to make the ball one of the most successful larger fetes of the season were McCullough Darlington, Sydney Kent, Rufus Johnson, Harold Fangboner, Jack Arrington, Robert MacBride, Edgar Prochnik, Capt. Charles F. Harrison, Otis Wingo, Nicholas Gill, Henry Huidekoper, Fred Mechlin, Lieut. J. L. Lackes and many, many more.

As is always the case when a big-league party goes on the Washington boards, a number of dinners preceded the ball. Miss Laura Blair entertained 16 dinner guests at her parents' home on Pennsylvania Avenue. Rear Adm. and Mrs. Royal Ingersoll entertained at dinner for their daughter, Alice, and a similar party was given by Commander and Mrs. William Justice Lee for their daughter, Mary. Still another dinner host was Robert Mackenzie Waggaman, who entertained at a small party at his home on R Street.

A dinner for ten was given at Hotel 2400 by Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter Woodson, in honor of Betty Lou Kaufman, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. James Lawrence Kauffman. Also at Hotel 2400 were a number of other dinners, including the one given by Mrs. Lilo McMullin Perrin, for her debutante daughter, Yvonne, and Moira Kennedy, and the one given by Lieut. Col. and Mrs. James O'Brien for their daughter, Marcia. The latter, incidentally, will be hostess at a large debutante luncheon to be given on Friday.

Japanese Attache Gives Tea for Gen. Haraguchi, on Tour of U. S.

Guests Include Department Chiefs When He Was Here as Head of Tokyo Delegation to Peace Conference in 1921

"We're short on high octane and we haven't any scrap iron, but we can serve you any kind of liquor you'd like. What'll it be?" gurgled a Japanese gentleman happily to the American guests at a tea at the Mayflower yesterday afternoon.

The event was a 5 to 7 party in the Pan American Room yesterday, given by Maj. Gen. Saburo Isoda, military attache of the Japanese Embassy, and Mme. Isoda, in honor of their distinguished countryman, Lieut. Gen. Hatantaro Haraguchi.

Gen. Haraguchi, former commander in chief of the Japanese armies and now a member of Parliament in that country, has been in the United States for the last several weeks. It was after his arrival here that the announcement was made of the new Japanese Ambassador to the United States, Admiral K. Nomura, close friend of Gen. Haraguchi.

The new Ambassador, by the way, is no stranger to this country, for as Capt. Nomura, he accompanied Gen. Haraguchi to the peace conference in Washington in 1921. He is also, it is understood, a graduate of the Naval Academy in Annapolis.

Guests were, for the most part, retired officers who had been chiefs of departments when Gen. Haraguchi was head of the Japanese delegation at the peace conference. Gen. Isoda, the host, also was here with Gen. Haraguchi at that time.

Mme. Isoda, who received with her husband, was gowned in the native Japanese kimona in blending shades of blue and bearing the crest of the Isoda family. Several among those assisting, wore kimonas and looked like dainty figurines among the guests. At the tea table were Mme. Yamada, wife of Yoshitaro Yamada, First Secretary of the Embassy and Mme. Yokoyama, wife of Sapt. Yokoyama, new Naval Attache at the Embassy.

The tea table was loaded with a great variety of viands, everything in fact from American macaroons to Russian caviar. At both ends of the table were large baskets of spun sugar, spilling myriads of tea cakes; one basket decorated with the Japanese flag in sugar, the other with a similar American Flag. But the piece de resistance was an enormous steaming chafing dish of Sukiyaki, which was served to the guests accompanied by chopsticks with which to eat it, which caused some confusion and much merriment.

Noted among the guests were Maj. Gen. Peter C. Harris, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Merritt W. Ireland, Col. William C. Keller, Mrs. W. Theodore Pierson, Mrs. Amos A. Fries, Miss Olive Williams, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Hanson E. Ely, Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick and many more.

Gen. Haraguchi, who will entertain at a stag luncheon on Wednesday at the Shoreham, will leave that evening for New York for a week before returning to his country by way of San Francisco.

Mrs. F. M. Gould To Close Newport Villa December 1

Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould will close her home, Gould Villa, in Newport, R. I., December 1 and will go to New York for two weeks before coming to Washington.

She plans to arrive here December 15 and has leased Mrs. Emlen Davies' home at 2941 Massachusetts Avenue from that date until May 15.

Mrs. Davies plans to leave for New York December 15 to spend the winter. Her son-in-law and daughter, Senator and Mrs. Millard Tydings, have leased the home at 2554 Massachusetts Avenue and plan to come in from their Maryland estate early in January to spend the remainder of the winter here.

Mrs. Charlotte Ogle To Visit Capital

Mrs. John Allan Dougherty will have as her guest next week Mrs. Charlotte Ogle, of Fairfield, Conn., who will arrive in Washington November 25 and will stay for several days.

Mrs. Dougherty has cards out for a tea Sunday, December 1, in honor of Mrs. Ogle. The party will take place in Mrs. Dougherty's apartment at 1868 Columbia Road, at 5 o'clock.

Several Visitors Plan to Leave Capital Today

Mrs. George Fitzmaurice To Go to Lancaster, Pa., To Spend Winter

Several attractive visitors to Washington will be leaving today after spending a few days and enjoying a continual whirl of parties planned in their honor.

Mrs. George Fitzmaurice, of Beverly Hills, Calif., wife of the film director and sister of Lois Wilson, will leave today for Lancaster, Pa., where she is spending the winter with another sister. As house guest of Dr. and Mrs. John Oliver La Farge, she has been feted at a number of informal parties since she arrived here last Thursday. Since this was her first visit to Washington, some time was set aside for sightseeing tours, and Saturday afternoon she visited Mount Vernon and a number of other points of interest.

Yesterday she and Mrs. Jean Pierre Wilde, of Sands Point, Long Island, shared honors at a small luncheon at which Mme. Hassan, wife of the Egyptian Minister, was ranking guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilde, who arrived in town Friday to visit Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, will return to their Long Island home today. Last night they were feted at a dinner given by Col. and Mrs. Guggenheim at their home on Macomb Street. The Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro and the Minister of Czecho-Slovakia and Mme. Hurban were ranking guests in the company of 24. The dinner was the third in a series given by the Guggenheims this season.

Also leaving town today will be Senator and Mrs. James Slattery who have been here over the week-end and will return to their home in Chicago. Mrs. Slattery was among the guests at a small luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Barnet Nover at the Shoreham Hotel.

Mrs. La Grille Honored at Tea

Mrs. William La Grille, who will leave November 30 to join her husband in Seattle, Wash., was the guest in whose honor her mother, Mrs. William H. Burk, entertained at a large tea Saturday afternoon.

Given at the Burk home on Blair Road, Takoma Park, D. C., the tea was attended by nearly 100 friends. Yellow and white chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece on the tea table. Alternating in pouring were Mrs. Norman McIndoo, Mrs. Howard Cayton, Mrs. Bernardine Haverty, Miss Agnes Carleton, Mrs. Thomas Summerville 3d, Miss Katherine Greaney and Miss Betty Spencer, of Philadelphia, Pa., a house guest of Mrs. La Grille.

Earlier in the week Mrs. Paul Burk gave a large shower in honor of her sister-in-law, and Miss Agnes Carleton entertained at a dinner party and bridge.

Argentine Envoy, Senora de Espil Hosts at Dinner

The Ambassador of Argentina and Senora de Espil entertained at a dinner party last evening at the embassy in honor of Senor Raul Prebisch and Senora de Prebisch here from Buenos Aires.

They plan to remain here for several week as Senor Prebisch head the financial commission meeting in the Capital. He is general manager of the Central Bank of Argentina.

Merle Thorpes Off to California

On their way to California for a vacation are Mr. and Mrs. Merle Thorpe, who left Washington yesterday afternoon. They are en route to Palm Springs, where they will spend three weeks.

Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg and Mrs. Howard Ellis, of Chicago, will join them there this week-end.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

IF ONE of the aims of the Good Neighbor policy is to attract South Americans to this country, the policy may be said to be working beautifully. Hitherto Latin-American visitors have always been rather scarce, the chief export in past years having been Britishers who were invariably either lords or lecturers.

DUDLEY HARMON

At the tea given over the week-end by Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. A. A. Berle, I was interested in meeting a number of South Americans who are settling down in our midst this winter. An attractive young lady apartment hunting here is Senorita Fernandez-Beiro of Buenos Aires. A talented painter, she chanced to meet Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Phillips at dinner here the other evening. She talked to them of her interest in art and desire for further study, and the next day found she had been awarded a scholarship by them at the Phillips Gallery. Senorita Fernandez-Beiro speaks perfect English.

• • • •

OTHER ARGENTINES at the tea, under the protective wing of Mrs. John Enochs, were Dr. and Senora Ricardo Detchessary. With their little girl, they are touring the United States, he as a scientific observer particularly interested in studying our treatment of children's diseases. When Mrs. Berle heard the Detchessarys had a little girl along, she invited her to lunch that day with the young Berles and to attend the Ice Follies matinee.

• • • •

TWO YOUNG Argentine girls here to study our methods of nursing were also at the tea. The chairman of the Inter-American Commission of Women, Senora de Guerrero, was there, looking so like a glamour girl it was hard to believe she is the mother of three, the oldest a boy of 21. Despite her many interests, Senora de Guerrero always sets aside part of every day for home and family. At the party she wore black with a tiny hat trimmed with pale blue ostrich feathers and a wisp of veiling.

• • • •

MISS MARY WINSLOW, United States member of the commission, chatted with Mme. Espil whose silver fox wrap was topped by a turban of sapphire blue. Mrs. Francis Biddle presided over the hot toddy arrangement, an innovation in the Washington set-up. The Biddles are looking for a house, preferably in Georgetown. Mrs. Biddle will entertain at tea on Friday in honor of Erwin Piscator, director of the Washington Repertory Theater, and Mrs. Piscator.

The Peruvian, Mexican and Ecuadorean Ambassadors, the Minister of Uruguay, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss were others at the Berle party.

THE NEWLY married Harry Villards are inviting friends in from time to time for a cocktail and a look at their new house on Dent Place in Georgetown. The other afternoon they entertained for Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs, Mr. and Mrs. Loy Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hurd, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Driscoll, Denys Smith, Miss Frances Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Barton, and a few others. Mrs. Barton, like the hostess, was born in Russia.

Mrs. Villard had a radio audition the other day and hopes to do some broadcasting work.

Miss Pickett To Wed Dec. 4

Several parties are being planned for Miss Dorothy Pickett and Gordon Blair Sharpe, who will be married on December 4 in St. Alban's at 8 o'clock in the evening. A reception will follow at the Columbia Country Club.

Dr. and Mrs. M. Russell Edmonston will entertain at a reception on Sunday at their home on Decatur Street from 5 until 7 o'clock in honor of the couple. Miss Pickett is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Robertson Pickett. Mr. Sharpe, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Melvin Sharpe, will have his father as best man.

Tomorrow evening Mrs. Victor Knoop will entertain at a shower in honor of the bride-elect. Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm S. Sharpe will give a tea on December 1 at their home on Oliver Street.

Mrs. Knoop will serve as matron of honor and bridesmaids will be Miss Lou Menefee, Miss Marie Jorolemon, Miss Helen Barnes and Miss Mary Chandler, of Portsmouth, N. H. Mr. Sharpe will have as his ushers Dr. Edmonston, Ray Millard, William Heath, Victor Knoop, Fred Shawn and his brother, Malcolm Sharpe.

Mrs. Shoemaker To Visit Capital

Arriving in town tomorrow will be Mrs. Francis Dodge Shoemaker, wife of Lieut. Shoemaker, U. S. Army Air Corps, who is stationed at Mitchel Field, Long Island.

Mrs. Shoemaker will be the guest of her mother, Mrs. Withers Wright Shepherd, in her apartment in the Cordova. She was the former Miss Suzanne Shepherd, of this city. Lieut. Shoemaker has been ordered to the Panama Canal Zone and Mrs. Shoemaker plans to join him there the first of the year.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Senator Ernest W. Gibson, jr., of Brattleboro, Vt., is in residence at the Wardman Park Hotel. His sister, Miss Doris Gibson, has opened her apartment there.

Miss Ethel Barrymore arrived in Washington Sunday from New York and during her stay is at the Carlton.

Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss, who is stopping at the St. Regis in New York, will return to her home, Merrywood, in McLean, Va., Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. James McSherry Wimsatt have issued invitations for a cocktail party Sunday at their home in Westhaven, Md., from 5 until 7 o'clock.

Representative and Mrs. J. Will Robinson, of Provo City, Utah, who arrived in Washington a day or two ago, have leased an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel and are in residence there. Other recent Congressional arrivals there include Representative Edward E. Coxe, of Camilla, Ga.; Representative and Mrs. John Taber, of Auburn, N. Y.; Representative Robert F. Rich, of Woolrich, Pa., and Representative Alfred L. Bulwinkle, of Gastonia, N. C.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. C. E. Atkinson, of Fort Monroe, Va., were week-end guests at the Martinique.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Hickey have moved to the Wardman Park Hotel where they have taken an apartment for the winter.

Mrs. Borah to Be Guest

Mrs. William E. Borah will be guest of honor at the open house tea of the League of Republican Women this afternoon at 4:30 at the clubhouse, 1301 Seventeenth Street. Each Tuesday the league will hold open house silver tea at the headquarters from 4:30 to 5:30, as usual.

Forum Speakers Fail to See Peril In Restrictions on Some Liberties

Certain Regulations Essential to Defense Program, They Agree at First Affair Sponsored by Chevy Chase Women's Club

By Jessie Ash Arndt

The Post Club Editor.

Restrictions on some of the traditional liberties of the people of this country in the interest of national defense will not mean the downfall of our democracy.

This was agreed last night by the speakers at the first of the Community Forums sponsored by the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase at the clubhouse. The question discussed was "Can We Save Democracy by Defending It?"

There was no division of opinion on the need for an adequate defense program, even though some admitted it inclined in the direction of totalitarianism. Intelligent planning for the future in relation to the economic problems that will come with the passing of the emergency and the relaxing of intensive preparedness efforts, was suggested as one means of counteracting the totalitarian trend. Education, designed to develop larger understanding of and adherence to democratic principles, was urged as another, to be carried on side by side with the defense program.

Chester Williams, specialist in conference planning for the Office of Education, presided at the forum, which was attended by several hundred persons.

A democracy, he said, is faced with the dilemma of tending toward totalitarianism in order to prepare adequately to defend itself against aggressor nations or of being forced by them into dictatorship under which democracy would perish. "Is it a case of being damned if we do and damned if we don't?" he asked.

The answer of Delbert Clark, Washington correspondent for the New York Times and a member of the panel, was, "If a dictatorship seems inevitable, we'd better have our own than somebody's else. I'd rather take a chance on a President of the United States as a dictator than on a dictator from Europe."

"Now is the time for political philosophers to look ahead and try to work out ways in which democratic processes can be improved," he said.

The best course for the United States, he declared, is to "prepare, prepare and prepare ourselves and the rest of the Western Hemisphere and then do our best to keep out of war so as to be in a better position to adjust our own affairs and those of the rest of the world after it is over." He warned against sentimentality merging into intolerance, "which is the antithesis of democracy."

Ernest Lindley, columnist of The Post, asserted total defense was not inconsistent with democracy. In the emergency it may be necessary to give up certain things customarily regarded as privileges, he said, but not as in totalitarian states. He pointed out that the British had shown it was possible to have stringent economic measures with the functioning of the House of Commons and freedom of expression regarding government policies.

Ray Tucker, widely known news commentator also cited the example of the British and Canadians "who have preserved so far, the basic things of democracy." He saw necessity here for economic restrictions, predicting that there would be inevitable adjustments of wages and hours and that Americans would have to learn to pay taxes as the British are paying them" and to wear patched clothes and like it. But this, he added, "will not hurt democracy. It will keep us from getting any softer than we are."

Mrs. Florence Boeckel, president of the council for the prevention of war, advocated total defense, including the preservation of democracy from within while preparing to defend it from outside aggression. Democracy needs more nourishment at such a time than normally, just as a man who is putting forth extra physical effort needs more food, she said.

Allen Manchester, director of the Agricultural Adjustment Division of the Department of Agriculture, made a distinction between essential liberties, which he asserted need never be relinquished in a defense program, and "the forms and customs we may regard as liberties." As long as the dignity of the individual is respected, group action is no more of a menace than individual action—on the contrary, democracy gains by it, he said.

Mrs. James V. Bennett was chairman of the committee for the series of forums being conducted by the club for the second season.

Girl Scouts Learn of Girl Guides' War Work

Girl Guides Expect to Rise Again in France

Suppressed in Areas Occupied by Nazis, Countess Reports

Girl Guides have been abolished in occupied portions of France, Comtesse de Castellane, sister of Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, told members of the Chevy Chase-Bethesda Girl Scout Troops and their leaders yesterday. But she predicted that after the war they would rise as strong as ever.

Comtesse de Castellane and Mrs. Tuckerman were honor guests at a tea given by the Girl Scouts at All Souls Episcopal Church, at Chevy Chase Circle. She gave her chateau at Angouleme, near Bordeaux, as headquarters for the work carried on among the refugees from Holland, Belgium and northern France by the French Girl Guides, she told her audience. The chateau, which she rented, had been used by the Girl Guides and Boy Scouts before she took it over early in the war, and she allowed them to continue using it. When the refugees began to pour into the district she housed 40 or 50 each night at the chateau and they were cared for by the Girl Guides.

The girls nursed them, cooked for them and tried to obtain clothes for them before sending them on the next day, she said. Comtesse de Castellane had stocked up on food at the beginning of the war so that she had provisions for the refugees. They came in such numbers that only those who arrived after 6 in the evening were allowed to stay overnight.

She said the Girl Guides showed not only remarkable fortitude but amazing ingenuity in the presence of the emergency. The little ones, corresponding to the Brownie troops here, called "Jeannettes"—girls under 10—met the refugee trains and served food and coffee to the exhausted refugees.

There were air raids over the district every night, but the chateau was never hit. When the Germans were approaching at 45 miles an hour, they had two hours' notice to leave from the mayor, she said, reaching Portugal with difficulty. Her husband is still there but is soon to be admitted to this country by virtue of being the husband of a United States citizen.

Mrs. Tuckerman, only surviving member of the original Washington Girl Scout Council, talked also and suggested that the local Girl Scouts express their goodwill and affection for those of England by sending them clothing or money to be used in their work for the people in the air-raid shelters to whom they distribute provisions. She also stressed the need for more ambulances for civilians and suggested the Girl Scouts interest themselves in raising money for these.

Hitler Can't Keep Queen Mary From Her Christmas Shopping

Leaves Country Home for London With Toque and Umbrella; Keeps Modest Court in Western Britain

By the United Press

London, Nov. 18.—Queen Mary donned one of her famous toques the other day, gathered up her old-fashioned umbrella and handbag, stepped into her old-fashioned, high-riding automobile and sallied forth from the country residence to do her annual Christmas shopping.

Little things like Hitler's invasion threats or Goering's Luftwaffe were not going to prevent her keeping her yearly schedule of early shopping for the thousand-and-one gifts she must purchase for family and friends.

The shopping trip typified the attitude of Britain's "grand old lady"—now 73—toward the war.

Moved to Country Home

Before the war, Queen Mary—she detests the title of Queen Mother—moved to one of her country houses in western Britain where she maintains a small and unobtrusive court and has become the grand dame of the locality.

Every day Queen Mary telephones King George, or he calls her with news of the day's bombardment.

Queen Mary, it is understood, at first wanted all her grandchildren to stay with her, but the King and Queen Elizabeth were reluctant to move the princesses too far away. She does, however, have the Duke and Duchess of Kent's two babies with her.

Hale and Hearty

The queen is without doubt Britain's fittest septuagenarian. She has nerve had an illness except for an occasional cold. Immediately anyone around her gets 'the sniffs' she orders him off to bed with all the old authority she used to rule Buckingham Palace.

In this war Queen Mary is playing her part. She pays almost daily visits to hospitals, army canteens, air-raid precautions centers and evacuation centers for miles around her home.

In her rambling old country house there is an adequate air-raid shelter, which it is understood she has not had occasion to use yet. She is never seen carrying a gas mask, although it is believed that one of her ladies-in-waiting carries one for her.

Nazis Prepare For Trouble On Home Front

Secretly Printed Posters Proclaim Martial Law in Berlin

By G. E. R. Gedye.

Copyright by New York Times

Istanbul, Turkey, Nov. 18.—Details of the way the German authorities are utilizing their occupation of Czecho-Slovakia to carry out certain activities which they wish to hide from their own people and of other happenings in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, reach here from time to time.

One very curious event, just revealed, is that in the state printing works in Prague the Germans have just had large quantities of undated posters printed in the German language proclaiming martial law in Berlin.

At the same time, other posters have been printed in Prague, also in German, calling on all persons and all formations which are not directly subordinated to the army to register any arms in their possession.

The printing of these posters is closely connected with the growing coolness between the Reichswehr and the Nazi Party formations of Storm Troopers and the Elite Guard. The two latter no longer greet or are greeted by the army people, whose devotion to Chancllor Hitler and Reich Marshal Herman Goering does not prevent them from asserting their dislike for Henrich Himmler, chief of all German police, and his associates at every opportunity.

Information on the results of the recent Royal Air Force raids over Pilsen is now trickling through. The ammunition factory at Nirany, in the Sudetan German area, near Pilsen, was completely destroyed. A railway bridge near Budejovice was damaged, as well as another munitions works near Holysov.

The Germans have camouflaged oil tanks in one Czacho-Slovak town to look like private houses from the air. In two other neighboring towns they have erected dummy factories containing nothing, but which are safely lighted at night.

One plant occupied by an airplane firm engaged in the repair of damaged German machines has been marked on the roof with a large red cross.

Sabotage of goods trains in Czecho-Slovakia is frequent, but so far there has been no interference with passenger trains. In Brno, 700 persons were arrested last month, alone, for listening to foreign broadcasts. Five hundred Stalinist Communists were arrested in Prague the day before the national anniversary, October 28, for distributing the illegal anti-German paper V Boj—"In the Struggle."

Welles Denies U. S.-British Effort in Siam

By the Associated Press

The State Department described as baseless yesterday Japanese press reports that the United States and Great Britain were pressing a military agreement upon Thailand (Siam), and implied that the reports might foreshadow some new step in Japan's expansion program.

The reports were given wide prominence in the Japanese press, which said they originated in Bangkok. The Tokyo foreign office spokesman said that as a result his government was "watching carefully" the situation in Thailand.

Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, declared there was not a shred of truth in the report, and added that it seemed to him there were certain implications that it might have been deliberately concocted.

This was interpreted in some quarters to mean that he suspected the reports might have been inspired by the Japanese for some reason connected with their expansionist policy.

Thailand borders French Indo-China, where Japan has acquired military bases, and also connects with the Malay peninsula stretching down toward Britain's stronghold of the East—Singapore—and the Netherlands East Indies.

Washington has shown some concern over the policies of the Thailand government, which has been pressing for territorial adjustments with French Indo-China.

The United States recently requisitioned ten military planes which had been sold to Thailand, stopping them at Manila after Thailand had advanced the territorial claims.

Some qualified observers suggested that the Japanese reports about a military agreement between the United States and Thailand might be connected with the recent large withdrawals of Japanese troops from southern Chinese provinces. The new destination of these troops has not been disclosed and there has been speculation here that they might be used in a Japanese move against Singapore or the East Indies.

Hongkong reports, said to come from Tokyo sources, that Japan was preparing to open direct peace negotiations with the Chiang Kai-shek government in China also attracted interest here.

Welles declared, however, that there was no official information from Ambassador Joseph C. Grew in Tokyo. In other diplomatic quarters, the belief was expressed that China was not likely to accept any peace terms that Japan might offer.

Adjournment Vote Is Slated Today

recesses. Earlier the President held his post election conference with House and Senate leaders—Speaker Rayburn, House Majority Leader McCormack, Senate Majority Leader Barkley and Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina.

Rayburn said they discussed only "very general propositions," and promptly ordered a count of adjournment noses by House Majority Whip Boland. McCormack said there was no reason to remain in session "because the President has no legislative program for us." Barkley said that if the House adopted the adjournment resolution, he would call it up immediately in the Senate. Byrnes said there would be speedy Senate approval.

Late yesterday, Rayburn held an hour-and-a-half conference in the Speaker's office with McCormack and Boland, checking Democratic votes and approving the final draft of the adjournment resolution. Rayburn indicated his belief that enough Democrats will return to carry the motion, but said the vote would be taken regardless.

House Minority Leader Martin, who promised solid Republican opposition on a roll call vote, meanwhile conferred with Representative Englebright, of California, House Minority whip. Englebright last week sent calls for the vote to all House Republicans. They declined any forecasts.

Republicans made an issue of adjournment during the campaign, and are pledged to vote to keep Congress here for the duration of the emergency. Wendell Willkie, defeated Republican Presidential nominee, repeated his plea for Congress to stay "throughout this critical period." But even if all 167 House G. O. P. votes were present, Republicans could not win unless more than two score Democrats joined them.

Before adjournment, House and Senate leaders have agreed to give Civil Service Committee chairmen an opportunity for a final vote on the Ramspeck bill, following conference agreement yesterday on the measure authorizing the President to blanket into the civil service some 150,000 unclassified employes.

Another brisk skirmish on the Walter-Logan bill was promised in the Senate, where Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, will call for a vote on the controversial bill to standardize procedure in Government agencies and expedite court appeals from their decisions and regulations. Hatch said he will vote against adjournment until the Senate votes on the House-approved bill.

Acting Minority Leader Austin said Republican Senators will take the same stand. The President is expected to veto the bill if it passes.

The Senate met for only eight minutes yesterday, but the House sat for three hours on minor legislation. The House approved a $3,000 additional appropriation for its special committee investigating interstate migrations and passed a bill to create the post of Undersecretary of War until January 20, 1945.

When and if Congress adjourns today it will leave behind a $23,135,740,635 appropriation record, exceeded only by the second session of the World War Sixty-fifth Congress. Of this session's appropriation, $9,114,345,921 was for national defense and Neutrality Act enforcement.

Hitler Agrees to Let Swiss Set 30,000 French Prisoners Free, Pass 156 Cars of Yule Gifts

By the Associated Press

Vichy, France, Nov. 18.—A blind French deputy with ambassadorial rank, Georges Scapini, now in Berlin, today notified the Vichy government that Adolf Hitler had given Germany's consent to the release of 30,000 French prisoners interned in Switzerland.

"Leave from captivity" will be accorded other French prisoners who are fathers of four minor children or who are elder brothers in large families where the father is unable to work.

Exact details will be settled in accord with German authorities and will be announced in Vichy shortly, it was said.

Scapini also informed his government that Hitler had agreed to permit 156 freight carloads of Christmas presents to go to French prisoners.

Repatriation of all war prisoners gravely wounded will be facilitated.

These concessions, a government spokesman said, were the first tangible results of the government's policy of collaboration with Germany, and closely followed Vichy's protest against the expulsion of French residents from the province of Lorraine.

Marseillaise Sung to Petain

Copyright by New York Times

Lyons, France, Nov. 18.—"I accept your oath. I return it to France whom we have sworn to serve and to save. I, myself, renew that oath together with you."

Thus Marshal Petain said here today when, on the historic square before the city hall, he met thousands of veterans of both wars and heard them swear loyalty to the newly formed French legion.

Leaving Vichy last night by train, Marshal Petain arrived in the early morning and was cheered by vast throngs. On his first tour of inspection and information some two weeks ago he visited Toulouse and Mont-Auban. Marshal Petain had won the hearts of the people but it had needed some hours even for the demonstrative southerners to express their feelings.

Here in Lyons, generally restrained, the enthusiasm was patent from the instant the marshal left his train. Again a striking feature was the spontaneous singing of the Marseillaise, which more than ever, seems to express French sentiment—a hymn of liberty.

The Marshal's day was occupied in personal contacts, searching questions and in seeking information in his own way regardless of what may have been prepared by subordinates.

Replying to unending calls, Marshal Petain several times appeared on the balcony of the prefecture during the day and late into the night.

500th Anniversary Of Movable Type To Be Observed

Dr. Archibald MacLeish, librarian of Congress, will be among the speakers tonight at a public program commemorating the 500th anniversary of the invention of printing from movable type.

The program, sponsored by the Washington Club of Printing House Craftsmen in cooperation with other printing and civic organizations, will be at 8 p. m. in Harding Hall, Government Printing Office.

Other speakers will include Douglast C. McMurtrie, typograph company executive and chairman of the International Association of Printing House Craftsmen's invention of printing anniversary committee, and Augustus E. Giegengack, Public Printer of the United States.

An exhibit of ancient and modern printing and models will be opened for a two-week display. John J. Deviny, past president of the Washington club and the International Association of Printing House Craftsmen, is general chairman of the meeting and exhibit.

Citizens Vote To 'Go Limit' In Bus Fight

Sixteenth Street Heights Association Wants Improved Service for Area

The Sixteenth Street Heights Citizens Association last night empowered its officers to "go the limit" in their fight for improved bus service for the area bounded by Ashton Street, Eastern and Georgia Avenues and Rock Creek Park.

A record turnout of members at a meeting in the Shepherd School, Fourteenth Street and Kalmia Road Northwest, adopted a resolution calling upon the Public Utilities Commission to conduct public hearings and authorizing association officers to use funds of the organization to hire counsel, if necessary.

Though the resolution made no mention of such action, association leaders told the gathering they expected to use funds authorized to carry their fight into court if their demands were not met. These demands, outlined by the resolution, included establishment of express service for the area and the use of newer equipment and contemplate change of route from Sixteenth Street to Thirteenth.

Harry C. Hensle, association vice president and chairman of its public utilities committee, told the meeting of nearly 100 that the area is the only one in the upper Sixteenth Street section not now served by express buses of the newest design.

Hensle declared that Thirteenth Street is the "natural and logical" route for buses serving the area of more than 1,000 families. He said tests of express service had shown savings of from 10 to 15 minutes.

The association's proposal is that buses be operated on local service from Eastern Avenue to Thirteenth and Madison Streets where express service would start.

The association was told of an informal conference on the problem held by its officers with the Utilities Commission and officials of the Capital Transit Co., last September and of the company's refusal to comply with requests. Association leaders expressed indignation at the curtness of the company's letter of refusal.

Burleith

C. C. Tatum was elected president of the Burleith Citizens Association last night at a meeting in the Gordon Junior High School. W. V. MacDougal was named vice president and Geoffrey Creyke was reelected secretary.

G. W. Winfrey, the retiring president, was named to the executive committee, as was R. Bruce Horsfall. J. S. Gorrell was chosen the association's delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Lincoln Park

The Lincoln Park Citizens Association last night requested the Board of Education to make December 23, the Monday before Christmas, a District public school holiday. This would enable pupils to make the pre-Christmas week-end part of the holiday recess, it was argued, and would also help high school students obtain holiday jobs.

The association's committee that has been working with Kingsman School authorities to reduce vandalism there reported the amount of damage hed been decreased 86 percent in the past year as compared with the previous three years. Other schools in the vicinity, the committee said, suffered increases or no change.

A five-man committee was named to look into the proposal for a world's fair in Washington in 1943. Members are Louis L. Bowdler, G. Leslie Schaefer, Orrin J. Davy, J. H. Higgins, and James H. Leahy.

Piney Branch

Elwood H. Seal, former District corporation counsel, was elected president of the Piney Branch Citizens Association last night at a meeting in Roosevelt High School, Thirteenth and Allison Streets Northwest.

He succeeds G. L. Shorey, who did not stand for reelection after serving approximately ten years. Ernest C. Guy was elected vice president; W. E. Hoffheins, reelected secretary-treasurer; James F. Duhamil, historian; G. L. Shorey and Hugh Brewster, members of the executive committee, and Homer J. Brown, delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Commander C. W. Smith and F. C. Merritt were appointed as a committee to determine whether the District Testing Laboratory should be reopened.

The association voted to seek traffic lights at Fourteenth and Decatur Streets Northwest and stop signs at Georgia and Iowa Avenues Northwest.

Lincoln Civic

The Lincoln Civic Association last night expressed opposition to the proposal to close Virginia Avenue between Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets Northwest by an extension of the Pan American Building.

Meeting at the Francis Junior High School, the association declared that the plan would create "a traffic hazard." Another resolution supported the request for 100 additional policemen made by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

The committee on health and sanitation was instructed to testify in favor of a proposed bill outlawing common law marriages and compelling applicants for marriage licenses to undergo medical examinations.

The following chairmen of standing committees were appointed: Mrs. E. W. Payton, Mrs. Alice Marshall, C. M. Pendleton, W. A. Walker, the Rev. A. O. Morris, Dean George, A. Parker, Mrs. Mildred McIlwain, Mrs. Mae Burrell, Dr. S. A. T. Austin, Walter Brooks, Thomas Patrick and T. F. Padmore.

American U. Students Practice 'Reading' Cards From Back and Succeed—Sometimes

A pall of heavy concentration lay over American University yesterday as five co-eds and two men students gazed at the backs of five cards and tried to guess the symbols on the opposite side.

Two of them named nine correctly in 25 tries, twice the number to be expected through coincidence. Others did not fare so well.

They were conducting a weighty experiment, Dr. John Bentley explained, with "extra-sensory perception." It started when Miss Irene Seber-Jay, who once studied telepathy and clairvoyance under Dr. Joseph B. Rhine at Duke University, asked Dr. Bentley for the use of his psychology class to conduct similar experiments here.

Without committing himself on the basis for psychic phenomena, if any, Dr. Bentley announced yesterday that a regular experimental course on "ESP" will be held three times a week at American, with all interested invited to attend and participate.

"It may save on telephone bills, if we can develop our psychic powers," one coed remarked on the side.

Dr. Bentley admitted that he had had some experiences that pointed to thought transference, but would not say what they were. "We must be objective," he explained.

"American University will treat the study of ESP in a highly scientific and academic manner. We are not connected with the Duke experiments and are motivated only by scientific curiosity," he added.

Miss Seber-Jay will conduct all of the experiments, expected to last throughout the academic year. Her purpose, she said yesterday, is to find a student or several students at A. U., who have well-developed psychic powers.

Students who have been brushing up on their card-naming technique this week say that it is very simple. Margaret Harned and Elizabeth Bray, who both named nine correctly yesterday, explain that they merely make their minds a blank and guess at the ESP symbol. Shirley Winston, a sophomore, uses the same system and reports an average of two correct guesses—a negative reaction.

One of the boys in the course revealed that he was practicing to predict what Hitler will do next.

American University is the only institution in or near the District to conduct such experiment, although 20 other colleges are doing so, Dr. Bently said.

First Plausible Motive Found For Snipings

Extra Guard Placed Over Suspect Reported To Have Borne Grudge

Police placed an additional guard last night over a former convict held on suspicion of being Washington's sniper-killer after discovering the first plausible motive for the mysterious shootings.

Authorities were told the suspect allegedly said he "would get even" with colored persons because of incidents in prison for which he blamed them.

Meanwhile, a special suad working on the case since the suspect's arrest Friday has uncovered background on the man's past that would give police reason to believe they might have their man.

Maj. Ernest Brown, Superintendent of Police, declined to discuss the case.

The man, under 30, has been transferred to an unrevealed precinct station as an additional precaution.

The suspect has been identified as the killer by the companion of one of the victims, Mildred Washington 17-year-old colored girl, who picked him out of a lineup of six men Sunday night, as the man who shot and killed her escort as they walked across the temporary bridge at K Street and Rock Creek Parkway last month. Six other shootings, three more fatal, have been attributed to the same mysterious gunman.

It was established yesterday that the suspect could have been in Washington at the time of the shootings, despite the fact that he has lived intermittently in Baltimore and was arrested in that city.

All shootings were in the Northwest section where the suspect lived here and all happened on week-ends when it was alleged the suspect came to Washington from Baltimore.

He is known to have been familiar with firearms, and police, who have found only a part of a gun in his possession, are looking for a .38-caliber revolver. Other information has taken a special squad of Washington police to Baltimore, where the suspect's activities and haunts will be checked.

If Congress Quits, Burney Will Be Lawmaker for Day

If Congress decides today to adjourn, it's all right with William E. Burney, of Pueblo, Colo., although he did arrive at the Capitol just yesterday to become a member.

Burney, who was elected to fill out the unexpired term of the late Representative John A. Martin (Democrat), of Colorado, will be succeeded in the Seventy-Seventh Congress by J. Edgar Chenoweth, a Republican.

"The sooner I get back to selling life insurance the better it will suit me," Burney said.

His friends wrote in his name on the ballot in the September 10 primary. But Burney never made a speech nor attended a political rally in support of his candidacy.

The new member, whose term of service may be less than a week, said he has two objectives before returning to Pueblo. One is to appoint a candidate to the United States Naval Academy and the other is to get funds for a bridge at a grade crossing in his district.

"I'm going to work fast," he said.

Two Friendly Rabbits Problem at Pound

Poundmaster Frank B. Marks last night was waiting for someone to step up and claim two "very friendly" rabbits.

The pair make nice company, Marks said, but rabbits are a little out of his line. Besides dogs and rabbits don't get along too well together.

Two policemen captured the rabbits at First and K Streets Southwest Sunday, and took them to the Fourth Precinct Station, where it was decided the dog pound was best shelter for them. One is white and brown, the other white and gray.

Build Cities Around Auto, Planner Says

Los Angeles Expert Addresses Officials On 'Disintegration' Of Major Towns

The idea of building cities to suit the needs of the automobile and so overcome the "disintegration of American cities" was suggested last night by Gordon Whitnall, of Los Angeles, field consultant of the American Society of Planning Officials.

He addressed nearly 300 persons at a meeting in the United States Chamber of Commerce Building held under the auspices of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the District Advisory Board of the American Automobile Association, and the Committee of One Hundred on the Federal City of the American Planning and Civic Association.

Whitnall pointed out that Los Angeles and Washington are the only two major cities in the country with population increases registered in the latest census. Yet he based his theory of the disintegration of the cities less on population trends than on the fact that fewer persons are entering institutions in "areas that have always been called the centers of the cities."

Lack Parking Space

Discussing Los Angeles as a "guinea pig" city in traffic and parking problems, Whitnall declined to discuss specifically problems with which Washington is faced. He said that American cities' problem of the disintegration of their downtown transient trade is based on a lack of proper parking facilities.

"If you depend on private enterprise for off-street parking, then you can be certain that the aggregate amount of land will be substantially more than should be employed," he declared. "The element of capacity of parking lots has little relation to the land around it. It is most important to have a larger number of smaller parking units which will be in close proximity to the institutions they serve.

"The facilities must be obvious—they must not be stuck in as an afterthought." He cited cases of Los Angeles chain stores which have greatly increased the numbers of their patrons by building stores around corner parking lots—a location which is usually most highly prized by merchants.

Matter of Adjustment

"There is not much to be gained by forcing the auto into the facilities of a town which was not designed for the auto," he continued. "So we must build the town to fit the needs of the auto . . . And the change has long since begun . . .

"The process of disintegration is really the process of metamorphosis in which the community is adjusting itself. The only question facing us is whether this change will continue with clashes or whether we will bring our intelligence into the picture so we can guide these processes."

Whitnall termed the changes being wrought by the automobile as "one of the most important epochs in urban life in all history."

Suggests Drive Around City

J. C. Nichols, of Kansas City, Mo., a member of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, asked whether a "23-mile drive around Washington by-passing out-of-town traffic and speeding neighborhood traffic" would aid the District's traffic congestion problems.

Whitnall replied that a by-pass is worthwhile "only if it has no private property on it so that it never can become congested."

He also was questioned on the advisability of restricting downtown parking in the District to patrons of institutions and making provisions for Government workers to park in "fringe areas" and be transported to work by bus service. Whithall said he saw only a change of area in the congestion by meeting the problem this way.

Col. Alvin B. Barber, manager of the transportation and communication department of the Chamber of Commerce, presided at the discussion. Whitnall was introduced by Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Park and Planning Commission.

Monday Evening Club

"Our secondary schools do prepare students for democracy" but widespread complacency and indifference by adult citizens tend to make some youth become perplexed and cynical, Dr. Chester W Holmes, assistant superintendent of District schools, told the Monday Evening Club last night.

He climaxed his address with two sweeping statements:"

"Our secondary schools more than any other one agency will perpetuate our present democracy" and there is a "better understanding of world conditions by high school students today than by adults in 1914."

Dr. Clarence S. Marsh, vice president of the American Council on Education, speaking on "Higher Education and Defense," said War Department officials have invited educational representatives to consult with them on ways to make the year of selective service a richer experience for the men.

The club, with Maj. Charles H. Dodd presiding, met at the Y. W. C. A. on Seventeenth Street Northwest.

SHE MOTHERS 300 DOLLS—Mrs. William B. Garrison with part of her collection of more than 300 dolls

The war and its blighting effect on such small and tender household objects as dolls have spurred Mrs. W. B. Garrison, of Washington, to add dozens of European dolls to her collection in the last year or two before they become much rarer.

Her collection of nearly 300 dolls was exhibited yesterday and will be again today at her home, 1205 Crittenden Street Northwest, for the benefit of the church fund of Luther Place Memorial Church.

Peasant dolls from Poland; a gardener doll made entirely of felt, from Austria; a pair of French dolls said to have been designed in connection with the visit of the King and Queen of England to Paris several years ago, stood out among Mrs. Garrison's treasures.

The dolls ranged from a tiny wooden Mexican doll, less than 1 inch tall, to an impressive china Martha Washington, standing 26 inches tall in her blue satin dress.

In her quest for foreign dolls, Mrs. Garrison has not neglected Americans. She pointed out the oldest doll in her collection, 70 years old, with a china head and calico and bearing the name "Miss Hannah." She was bought from a Baltimore woman.

Another quaint native doll is an old Tennessee butter-churner, with a face of carved hickory nut.

Many of Mrs. Garrison's dolls were acquired through dealers in this country or abroad, but some of them she collected on a trip of her own to Europe many years ago. The dolls are destined to belong some day to her granddaughter, Carolyn Hopkins, who is 18 months old.

The dolls were exhibited two days last week for the benefit of another church fund, of Trinity Lutheran Church. Today the exhibition will be open from 2:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Washington Chamber Music Society presents the Pro Musica Quartet (Milton Schwartz, Jeno Sevely, Bernard Milofski and William Brennand) in Phillips Memorial Gallery on Monday afternoon. Assisting artist: Sylvia Meyer, harpist. Program: Suite for violin, violoncello and harp (Rameau). Quartet in E flat major, Op. 76, No. 6 (Haydn), "Conte Fantastique" for harp and string quartet (Caplet).

A capacity audience attended the Washington Chamber Music Society's second Candlelight Concert of the season yesterday afternoon in Phillips Memorial Gallery, and heard an unusual program in which the Pro Musica Quartet was assisted by Sylvia Meyer, harpist of the National Symphony Orchestra. Crowded into the hour of music was enough diversity to satisfy the orthodox and the heretic listener, and the chronology of the compositions ranged from the early eighteenth century to the twentieth century.

Ray C. B. Brown

For those who prefer the string foursome as the standard set of instruments, there was Haydn's E flat major quartet from Opus 76, his most renowned and most frequently played collection. This work has a marked Italianate style, highly ornamented and bedecked with technical devices. Even the slow movement is an elaborate fantasia in which Haydn's lyrical vein for adagios is overlaid with fioriture. The other three movements contain many piquancies of wit, particularly the minuet wherein the usual grace of that courtly dance is turned into the leaps and bounds or a harlequin.

Miss Meyer joined Jeno Sevely and William Brennand in the performance of a suite for harp, violin and violoncello by Jean Philippe Rameau, the versatile French contemporary of Bach. As was customary in his Parisian milieu, he gave titles to the six pieces and some of the names—"La Pantomime," "L'Indiscrete," "L'Agacante" and "Tambourin"—are still self-explanatory for us. But in the case of "La Popliniere" and "La Cupis," the topical allusions have lost their meaning, just as Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and Carpenter's "Krazy Kat" will seem more or less obscure two centuries hence.

The modern work presented was Andre Caplet's "Conte Fantastique" for harp and string quartet, an attempted transiation into tone of Edgar Allen Poe's "The Masque of the Red Death." Poe's tale of horror is not a pleasant one to read, nor is Caplet's descriptive commentary dulcet and ingratiating. On the contrary, the music suggests the grotesque, the macabre and the terrifying elements in the story. There are eerie wails in harmonics, fearsome glissandi, ghostly thumps and weird cacaphonies.

Only a harpist of Miss Meyer's technical skill can essay successfully the difficulties in the score. Her performance was admirable, and she was well supported by her colleagues. The music itself, however, does not quite come off as the composer intended, for some of the effects verge too closely upon the ludicrous. With the aid of spotlights and decor, it could be the basis of a good ballet for the Grand Guignol.

C. I. O. Here Backs Lewis' Reelection

Industrial Union Council Offers Plan for Unity In Labor Ranks

The Industrial Union Council, central body of C. I. O. unions here, last night backed John L. Lewis for reelection as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations; took a slap at Sidney Hillman, leader of the anti-Lewis faction, and offered a plan for labor unity.

In a resolution adopted 43-3, the council indorsed Lewis' leadership, and instructed its delegate to the national convention, being held at Atlantic City, to vote for Lewis.

If, however, Lewis retires, as he pledged should President Roosevelt be elected for a third term, the Washington representative was ordered to support only such candidates as promise to follow Lewis' labor principles. The local delegate to the convention is Kathryn Lewis, daughter of the C. I. O. head.

The council then rebuked Hillman, who is generally regarded as leader of the C. I. O.'s right wing, in his capacity as defense commissioner in charge of labor. A resolution urged Hillman "to get a move on and come out with a labor policy and enforce it before all the Government contracts are let, when it will be too late to have any kind of a labor policy."

This labor policy, the resolution explained, should be one "which would require all firms which have gotten Government contracts and all which are to get Government contracts to obey the labor laws of our country."

A united labor organization which would include the American Federation of Labor, Railroad Brotherhoods, and Congress of Industrial Organizations, was favored in a third resolution, provided that the C. I. O. industrial unions be permitted to retain jurisdiction in the mass production industries.

Union Says Men Suffer in Price War

Charges that Washington's 2,500 gas station attendants have been forced to absorb the 4-cent cut in the price of gasoline through a slash in wages, were voiced at last night's meeting of the Central Labor Union, council of A. F. of L. units.

It was announced that the Joint Teamsters Council has undertaken to organize the attendants in order to end conditions under which it is alleged the station employes are paid as little as $12 per week and work a minimum of 60 hours. Organization of the employes and recognition by the employers, it was said, would end the current gasoline price war.

Man Who Attacked Girl Gets 5 Years

Lenwood Claude Ezell, 30, of Washington, yesterday pleaded guilty in Circuit Court at Fairfax, Va., to a charge of criminally assaulting a 15-year-old girl and was sentenced to five years in the State penitentiary.

Ezell was accused of assaulting the daughter of a New York City police official last October 4

Southwest Citizens, Banded In 1872, Among Most Active

Melvin Hazen Was Busy in Association 50 Years Ago; Group to Dedicate Two Projects It Sponsored Next Month

This is the fifty-first article in a series about citizens' associations in the District of Columbia and their efforts to make the community a better place in which to live.

Fifty years ago a citizen named Melvin Hazen was chairman of a committee to get railroad tracks routed from Washington's mall. He succeeded. Citizen Hazen, now Commissioner Hazen, represented the Southwest Citizens Association, then already 18 years old.

Since its organization in 1872, the Southwest body has consistently been one of the most active in the District. It now has a policy of dedicating one association-sponsored project every month. It plans to dedicate the Jefferson school December 7, and the Health Center, at Delaware and I Streets Southwest, December 18.

The completion this month of improvements to the Washington waterfront climaxed one of the unit's major drives, according to its young president, Harry S. Wender.

Typical of the minor drives of the association is a traffic light scheduled to be installed today at the unit's insistence at Fourth and M Streets, Wender pointed out.

The association long has been one of the leaders in the District suffrage movement. Besides taking polls and adopting resolutions, it is represented in the District of Columbia Suffrage Association by the Rev. Harry V. Porter and Wender, who is vice president of the non-voters' body.

Playgrounds for their area constitute another standing objective of the Southwest citizens. They are fighting for a new recreation building and swimming pool at the Hoover Playground, Second and N Streets Southwest, and the retention of the old Jefferson Playground. And they are cooperating to help obtain a colored playground for the sector.

Other aims this fall include an overpass for Fourteenth Street and Maine Avenue Southwest and a South Capitol Street bridge, as well as continued rehabilitation of the Southwest section, according to President Wender.

Wender is a lawyer and the man who wrote the bill which made Four and One-Half Street into Fourth Street, a modern thoroughfare. He is vice president of the city-wide Playground Council and the Southwest Children's Council, a member of both the District and American Bar Associations, and recently was backed as successor to Police Court Judge Edward Curran by District civic, labor and safety groups.

Other officers of the association include Robert D. Marshall, vice president; Mrs. Grace Brody, recording secretary; the Rev. Harry V. Porter, corresponding secretary; Raymond E. Robinson, treasurer, and Wender and the Rev. Mr. Porter, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Bethesda Has Blackout at Its Mealtime

The business district and contiguous territory of Bethesda, Md., had all the thrills of a blackout last night just at the supper hour. Electric service failed for more than an hour in the main business district along Wisconsin Avenue between Bradley Lane and Old Georgetown Road.

Heavy homeward-bound traffic on Wisconsin Avenue began to snarl when the traffic control lights at Wisconsin Avenue, East West Highway and Old Georgetown Road were blacked out by the service failure. Montgomery County police at Bethesda substation hurriedly sent a detail to the crossing to direct traffic by flashlight and hand signals. The police station was without lights except for emergency lamps.

A score of motorists who came in for inspection summons were cared for by lamplight and flashlights.

Frantic housewives whose dinner preparations had been halted by the blackout kept the police telephone ringing with demands for power. The police referred them to the Potomac Electric Power Co. Even the office of County Commissioner Thomas Earle Hampton was bombarded by telephone calls.

Pepco officials said a cable connection on Old Georgetown road blew out but were unable immediately to give the cause. Several householders in the vicinity had reported to police that there were two explosions just about the time the lights went out.

Dana J. Brown, Father of Tariff Commissioner, Dies

Ossipee, N. H., Nov. 18 (AP).—Dana J. Brown, 81, father of Fred H. Brown, member of the United States Tariff Commission and former United States Comptroller General, dropped dead today in the Carroll County Courthouse.

The elder Brown, who was president of the Wolfeboro, N. H., National Bank, collapsed in the courtroom during a hearing on a civil suit affecting an estate of which he was administrator. He died before medical aid could be summoned. Dr. Francis P. Dube pronounced death due to heart disease.

Brown's son, a former Governor and United States Senator from New Hampshire, had been visiting here and returned to Washington only yesterday.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

It's Difficult to Escape "Escape's" Keen Suspense

Picturized Novel Is Faithful to Original; New Apex Theater Opens Tomorrow Night; This, That and the Other About the Theater

ADROITLY VEILING ITS ASSAULT upon the heartlessness and iron-handed regimentation of inherently decent people under the personal concerns of a small group of harried persons caught in the viciousness of a totalitarian regime, "Escape" takes its place among the most vitally alive commentaries upon the iniquities of dictatorship. This, however, is obviously its secondary purpose. The picturization of the Ethel Vance "best-seller" primarily is tense, exciting and suspenseful entertainment.

BELL

The book, mysteriously authored under a nom de plume that no one seems able to identify, has been closely followed, subject, of course, to the usual telescoping of certain passages and such minor alterations as seemed necessary to Arch Obeler and Marguerite Roberts, who fashioned a direct and fast-moving script from the original novel.

There can be no quibbling about the uniform excellence of the cast. Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor are supported by such reliable artists as Mme. Nazimova, Albert Basserman, Conrad Veidt, Felix Bressart, Blanche Yurka and an unfamiliar young actor by the name of Philip Dorn, who turns in an uncommonly fine performance in the role of Dr. Ditten, whose shrewdness and humanitarianism furnish the chief justification for the story's title.

It is too close to the Thursday opening on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater for an extended review here and now, but it is not going too far to suggest that there is no escape from the gripping drama unfolded in "Escape". And it isn't an "escape" drama, at that—as anyone at yesterday's preview screening will tell you.

One suspects that there won't be much "escape," either—for a large number of people, at least—in the next release of the "March of Time." This will be an item striking close to the heart of every family in the nited States. It bears the title of "Arms and the Men—U. S. A." It will tell the story of the United States Selective Service Law and the first peacetime conscription in the history of the Nation. That ought to hold direct interest for at least 16,000,000 young Americans.

Well, if you are wondering what to do with the carefree, preholiday late hours tomorrow night, there will be at least two midnight shows on tap. It has already been made known that Loew's Capitol is presenting a late preview screening of "Bitter Sweet", the picturized Noel Coward musical, co-starring Jeannette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy—sans stage show. Not to be left flatfooted at the post, Manager Maynard Madden, of the Central Theater, announces a similar departure from custom, beginning at 11:30 p. m. In addition to "City for Conquest", costarring James Cagney and Ann Sheridan, the Central will squirt a special selection of short subjects upon the screen for this matutinal occasion. Up to 11:30, the Central's twin bill will consist of Jimmy Stewart and Rosalind Russell in "No Time for Comedy" and Dorothy Lamour in "Spawn of the North".

So Fred Kogod and Max Burka, with their managing director, Charlie Olive, finally have gotten around to it. They will open their new Apex Theater, Massachusetts Avenue at Forty-eighth Street, tomorrow night at 8 by the clock. The Apex is the last word in modern theater design—leave that to Architect John Zink, whose first monument in the Capital was the Rialto Theater—with a comfortable seating capacity of 1,200. The opening attraction will be the Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production of "Down Argentine Way", as colorful and gay a number as you would care to see. More about the Apex later.

Just by way of reassurance, John Shubert's production of "Off the Record", starring Bruce Cabot, Betty Furness, Hugh O'Connell, Mary Brian and Dennie Moore, will have its inaugural performance in Princeton, N. J., a week from Saturday night, November 30, opening here in the National Theater the following Monday. You can hardly wait, I shouldn't wonder.

Today and tomorrow, the Hippodrome Theater, approximately at the corner of Ninth and K Streets, northwest, will present the famous Jewish talking picture (with English subtitles), "The Singing Blacksmith", for the first time in Washington. Moishe Oysher appears in the title role.

And just to make a rock-ribbed conservative out of this department—our forecast was five weeks—Mrs. Louise Noonan Miller and Abe Tolkins are continuing Raimu, Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, in "The Baker's Wife," a sixth week at the Little Theater, beginning tomorrow. I am perfectly willing to break down and confess that the picture deserves it.

The-Side-It's-Buttered-On Note

With a Mother's Life at Stake

CONRAD VEIDT, NORMA SHEARER, ROBERT TAYLOR as they appear in a tense scene in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Ethel Vance's best-selling novel of "Escape," following Chaplin's "The Great Dictator" on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. The story is one of a concentration camp and a death sentence in a country it is not difficult to identify, although unnamed

War Provides Headaches

Catastrophic as it is, the European war still manages to provide oddities, some of them exerting an influence 11,000 miles from the battlefield.

A case in point is the current attempt to film background shots in the Dutch East Indies for the picturization of Joseph Conrad's "Victory," which costars Fredric March and Betty Field.

The studio commissioned Dr. J. C. Cook to make the shots. Cook, an American citizen, has lived in the Orient for years, and knows every nook and cranny of the place.

He was located in Japan, and started on his way. His journey took him first to Shanghai and then to Hongkong. But the Japanese ships don't go to the Dutch East Indies any more from that port. As an American citizen, he couldn't travel on British or French liners, both of those countries being belligerents.

So from Hongkong he retraced his steps to Manila, to catch a Dutch boat to Java. After he had landed at Sourabaya, the Dutch were involved in the war, and he could no longer travel on Dutch boats.

Nothing was left to do but travel overland by the daily train to Batavia. There he took the once-a-week island steamer to Rangoon in Burma. From there, the film is scheduled to fly back to Hongkong, and then by clipper to Manila, Guam, the Hawaiian Islands and the United States.

Own Life Story From Lionel's Pen

Lionel Barrymore, between etching and composing music, has finally gotten around to a plan of many years standing. He has started writing his memoirs of stage and screen. Three chapters have already been completed, dealing with his early stage days, his parents, John Drew, Modjeska and other famous Broadway figures. He tells of great performances, with intimate notes on Nat Goodwin, James A. Herne and others.

In future chapters he will go into early screen days with D. W. Griffith, and bring the narrative up to the present time. Several publishers have been urging him for years to write the story of his career.

Jackie's 'Pa'

Character Actor Lionel Watson became Jackie Cooper's cinematic father when he was assigned the role of Barton Newbold, newspaper publisher, in "Gallant Sons."

Hollywood, Nov. 18.

Now that Paramount's turning out swell pictures and the eastern brass hats are in town, they're living up to that old slogan, "If it's a Paramount picture, it's the best show in town." But the best story concerns Red Donohue's mule, which Bill LeBaron engaged to play an important part in "Las Vegas Nights." The mule, who kicks and acts like one in the "Folies Bergere," had to have a four weeks' guarantee, leave the studio at 6 p. m., be off Wednesday and Saturday afternoons for matinees, and have from December 23 to December 29 to go home for Christmas and see its mother. It will work at least two days in the picture. And when all these difficulties were ironed out, its owner wouldn't sign until it got equal billing with Allan Jones and Bert Wheeler. Then Bill LeBaron invited the mule to lunch with him—and hopes after a carrot-and-apple menu he'll agree to no billing.

Have you heard about the English Cockney refugee who was brought to Hollywood, given a bath in the morning, a shower before dinner? This went on for a week, at the end of which time he said to his host, "Tell me—'ow did you come to pick on me? Why didn't you get yourself a bloody duck?"

A play of deep-rooted conviction, humor and splendidly sustained interest was revealed upon the stage of the National Theater last night in Emlyn Williams' "The Corn Is Green," a two-season hit in London, presented in Washington prior to its introduction to Broadway. It restores Ethel Barrymore brilliantly and engrossingly to her rightful place in the forefront of the theater's "first ladies," after two seasons devoted to the idiosyncrasies of aged eccentrics in dramas of negligible importance. She was welcomed back to the rarefied heights of her proper milieu with eager and spontaneous enthusiasm last evening.

Since the play is admittedly at least in part autobiographical and the character portrayed by Miss Barrymore drawn from the Welsh teacher who shaped his own early life, Mr. Williams is on a substantial and firm footing in "The Corn Is Green." With the five scenes of its three acts laid in the living room of a house in Glansarno, a small village in pastoral Wales, the play is as indigenous to its soil as any of the Abbey Theater dramas was to the sod of Ireland. The characters are finely contrasted, sharply drawn and evolved with a splendid skill that never betrays the author's deft command of mood, individual action of the figures in his story, their eventual destiny or his own lofty purpose.

The developments move smoothly and steadily from the first act's baleful promise to the high achievement of the illiterate coal miner, who has won a scholarship at Oxford and resolved one of life's most bitter problems, as the final curtain falls.

A Play of Worthy Purpose

Miss Moffat arrives in Glansarno intent upon converting the comfortable old house she has leased into a school for the rescue of youthful minds as dark as the subterranean gloom of the mines in which they labor for a pittance. Local antagonism to her plan, inspired by the Squire, who lives in baronial grandeur by the sweat of his lowly tenants, is about to frustrate the scheme when Miss Moffat discovers embryonic intellectual brilliance in a lad who has tutored himself into a vast capacity for misspelling and a ravenous desire to express himself in writing. With inspirational acumen, she concentrates upon this latent mentality and by its development brings about the consummation of her original plan, with the Squire cajoled into complete cooperation through the gentle and unfailing art of feminine flattery.

Were "The Corn Is Green" no more thoughtful and no more moving than to be content with the establishment of an elementary school on the countryside, it would be unworthy of both its author and its star. In its profoundly stirring explorations into the fundamentals of character, ambition, courage and sacrifice, it is worthy of them both and the fascinated attention of any discriminating playgoer.

Four characters are primarily responsible for this powerful tug the play exerts upon both the heart-strings and the risibilities. They are, first and foremost, Miss Moffat; the Squire, Morgan Evans and Bessie Watty, the dissembling little feline whose complacent illicit motherhood threatens the collapse of all for which the others have so desperately striven. Surrounding these pivotal figures are others of the household and many of the simple villagers who lend the movement of the story a constant flow of comedy, a keen satire of social consciousness and a rounded perfection that the season has not matched.

Miss Barrymore Herself Again

Miss Barrymore's assumption of the role of Miss Moffat is vigorous, amusing, tender and stern by turns, all so adroitly blended as to form a concise and convincing portrait of a compelling and a compassionate woman. Not in seasons has she appeared so radiant, so happy or so well pleased with a part. Richard Waring's portrayal of the ambitious and often bewildered Morgan Evans is sensitive, intelligent and highly effective in its comprehension of the complexities of a groping and at times contradictory character. His every physical endowment equips him admirably for one of the prize assignments of the year. No less can in justice be said of Edmond Breon, as the Squire, and Thelma Schnee, in the acutely provocative role of Bessie Watty. Mr. Breon is an actor of fine versatility who illumines his character with a wealth of effective touches, and Miss Schnee, a comedienne whose range of expression is beyond the scope of most young actresses.

Among the supporting players, Rhys Williams offers an excellent performance in a role that is almost Shavian; Mildred Dunnock draws a pretty picture of an ineffectual young striver for the higher things and Rosalind Ivan acquits herself with high honors as Mrs. Watty, Bessie's reformed mother, who has elevated herself from petty thievery to a place of eminence in the service of the Lord. The lesser parts are played with proportionate skill.

Herbert Shumlin's direction of the play, which he himself has produced on this side, is in his usual telling style and Howard Bay's single setting well within the spirit of a play that seems destined for an American success comparable to its British.

Curtain calls last night might easily have exceeded the ten that were accepted by Miss Barrymore and her cast.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Nov. 18.

REGINALD DENHAN is the English coauthor of "Ladies In Retirement," the Flora Robson thriller which was presented here last season. He also is one of the partners in Felix Productions, a British company. He received a cable from London, asking him if he would be interested in selling the rights to "Broadcasting House," a story owned by Felix Productions . . . Denhan, who had seen "The Man Who Came to Dinner," was entranced by Monty Woolley's addressing all comers as "Pusball." And so Denhan's cable to London read: "Please Sell Broadcasting House, Pusball" . . . Back came a cable from the censor, informing that they were delaying the delivery of Denhan's message, pending the interpretation of the word "Pusball."

LYONS

Denhan then cabled to the London censor, explaining that it was a word of endearment meaning, "Darling," and was taken from a Broadway hit play . . . The censor replied: "Then, would you consider substituting the word 'Darling' in original message?" . . . And so Reginald Denhan, to please the censor, yesterday dispatched the cable: "Please Sell Broadcasting House, Darling."

JIMMY CROMWELL left for Washington to wind up his political career. Cromwell, who was defeated for the Senatorship, will spend his time lecturing and making radio addresses . . . The Communist Party leaders are pondering a move to issue an announcement disassociating the party from the International Comintern . . . The city council's investigating committee will resume its public hearings on November 25 . . . Sol Rosenblatt, counsel to the Democratic National Committee, is on his way to the American Federation of Labor meeting in New Orleans to address them concerning the American press.

SINCLAIR LEWIS, who has returned to New York, is taking lessons in Portuguese and already has learned how to say "May I have the check, please," in that language . . . He told this to a friend in Sardi's last night, who warned him: "When I went to Paris I learned how to say 'Give me the check' in French—and that was an expensive lesson, because then my friends always let me have the check" . . . "Then you didn't associate with the real Americans in Paris," Lewis replied. "The real Americans there never waited until you asked for the check. They always left before it was presented."

THE ANNUAL REPORT of the Citizens Committee on the Control of Crime—which was released last week and showed that crime is on the increase in Manhattan—was toned down by some of the directors. A similar editing job was done last year . . . Edwina Seaver, the ballerina whose photo was published with that of Zorina in last week's issue of Life, is being signed for a role in Sam Byrd's forthcoming production of "Falcon," a five-character play . . . William S. Hart, the veteran cowboy star, was escorted through the night clubs by Liz Whitney. The two-gun man did a two-gun rhumba at Fefe's Monte Carlo. Mrs. Whitney's fashionable black hat was almost a replica of Hart's ten-gallon black Stetson.

DURING A SERIES of post-election stories, Herbert Hoover—who had sought to be renominated by his party in 1936—told of a train ride he took after the '36 election, when he found himself seated next to a Democratic National Committeeman . . . "He told me this," said Hoover, "'If Landon could've made two more speeches we'd have won Canada, too.'"

THERE NOW ARE only 17 members left in the 29 Club—the most exclusive club in America. The club occupies the building at 29 East Sixty-first, and no new members are accepted, except for the sons of deceased members. Each of the remaining 17 is permitted to dine there as often as he wishes, to bring as many guests as he wants, consuming all the food, liquor, cigar, etc., they desire—all without paying. But at the end of the year the total cost of operating the club is divided equally among the members . . . One leader of the Huey Long machine who was convicted by the Department of Justice in New Orleans will be sent to a Florida prison . . . Bruce Cabot, dancing with Fernanda Munn last night, accidently fell to the floor—and tore his partner's shoulder strap.

MRS. ROBERT HUTCHINS, wife of the president of the University of Chicago, two weeks ago was at a party attended by Barney Goodspeed, trustee of the university. She heard Goodspeed declare that Willkie would win the election. Mrs. Hutchins disagreed—and when Goodspeed insisted that F. D. would lose, she said: "I'll bet you you're wrong. I'll bet you $1,000" . . . Goodspeed assured Mrs. Hutchins that while he was positive that his prediction was accurate, he didn't want to wager with a lady . . . "Never mind that," Mrs. Hutchins persisted. "Will you bet me $1,000?" . . . He finally agreed, and the wager was made . . . On their way home from the party, Dr. Hutchins turned to his wife and said: "Suppose you lose the bet? Have you $1,000?" . . . "I've saved $600 out of my allowance," the wife of the famed pedagogue-economist confided, "and if I lose I'll simply be $400 in debt."

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Detroit, Nov. 18 (INS).—Just about the most interesting news I've heard since leaving Hollywood is that Brian Donlevy and Robert Taylor will be costarred in "Billy, the Kid" at M. G. M. Let me say again that I can think of no actor who has come up faster in the last year than "the great" Donlevy. What's even more surprising is the casting of the roles: Brian, who has usually played heavies (before "The Great McGinty") will be a peace officer and Bob, invariably the hero, will be the bandit, "Billy, the Kid."

PARSONS

The Donlevy deal is not on a loan out from Paramount since he is permitted one outside picture annually on his contract. More news about this super-Western, which will be filmed in Technicolor in New Mexico, is that Frank Borzage will direct. Irving Asher is producing.

Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh have tried to keep their immediate plans a secret—because they want no sob stories on heroics. But I get it straight as a string that they have reservations on the clipper from New York December 19 to return to England where Larry joins the Royal Air Force. Vivien is going with him to be as close as possible until the war is over. What lovers these two are! From the moment they met and fell in love they've never let anything—careers or wars—stand between them. But before they leave, Vivien will go to Atlanta for the anniversary celebration of "Gone With the Wind."

William Tracy, who looks about 16 or 17 but who is really over voting age, is certainly doing all right for himself. He goes into "Tobacco Road" in one of the best parts—Dude Lester, the hillbilly with a flivver. This will be his third picture—starting with "Shop Around the Corner," and "Strike up the Band." I am continually amazed on tour at how well the fans know supporting players—even those who play small roles. Ofttimes they don't know the players' names but Bill has been described more than once to me as "the office boy in 'Shop Around the Corner' or the lovelorn youth of 'Strike up the Band.'"

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Joan Crawford, none too happy about it, gets back this week. How she loves New York now! Mrs. John Garfield is in the Hollywood Hospital parting with her tonsils; now that Lucille Ball has flown East to Desi Arnaz, Gene Markey is spending most of his time with Sheila Ryan; little Ann Gillis, such a young lady now, lunched with Vaughn Paul in the Universal Commissary and almost started a riot. But don't worry—it was just a business date (now that Vaughn is a big producer). His heart is still Deanna's; What-a-Man Rooney has originated a new dance "Lariat Lope" and Arthur Murray is teaching it in his school; the funniest thing I've heard is that the Hays office is now keeping its eye on deliberately suggestive theater marquees. Particularly about double feature titles on the same bill with "He Stayed for Breakfast" or "All this and Heaven, Too."

By the time you read this the Lloyd Nolans may be new parents. Their heir was expected over the week-end.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

2 Die, 12 Hurt In Maryland Auto Crash

7 Seriously Injured As Station Wagon, Automobile Collide

The collision of a station wagon and another automobile on a sharp curve 16 miles north of Frederick, Md., last night killed two persons while injuring 12 others, seven seriously.

In a Washington accident a District woman was critically hurt, and another resident of the Capital was killed Sunday in a traffic accident near Charlottesville, Va., the Associated Press reported.

The Maryland accident occurred near Johnsville. State police said the station wagon was carrying a Libertytown party from Taneytown.

Two Women Killed

Reported dead at the Frederick City Hospital were Edna Smith, 24, and Viola Nash, 28. Physicians reported at least seven other persons in the accident were in serious condition at the hospital.

Police said the station wagon struck an automobile driven by Charles Fowble, Union Bridge.

The injured, who were treated at the hospital, included:

Mrs. Edna Smith, Jack Joy, Ruth Nash, Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips, Catherine Riordan, Margaret Riordan, Mrs. Catherine Joy, all of Libertytown, and Carl Mullinix, of Westminster.

Less seriously hurt and treated at the scene of the crash were Virginia Overstreet, Hester Whipp and Anna Riordan, Libertytown.

Lawyer's Wife Hurt

Mrs. J. William Shea, 57, wife of a Washington lawyer, was critically hurt yesterday when struck by an automobile here.

Mrs. Shea, who lives at 4420 Windom Place Northwest, suffered a compound fracture of the leg, broken arm, possible skull fracture, brain concussion and shock when knocked down as she crossed Wisconsin Avenue Northwest at Fessenden street.

Police quoted witnesses as saying she stepped in front of a car driven by Mrs. Margaret Warfield, 31, of Rockville, Md., who was released under $100 bond pending the outcome of Mrs. Shea's injuries.

Richard Harlow, until recently of 1127 Eleventh Street Northwest, died in a collision near Charlottesville, Va. His companions, Carl Breeden and Carlisle Hall, were taken to University Hospital in Charlottesville along with two occupants of the other car, Mrs. James Rising, of Charlottesville, wife of the driver, was killed.

At Harlow's former residence here it was stated he had moved to an unknown address.

O. Buchman Dies In China; Studied In Takoma Park

Word of the death of Otho Buchman, 23-year-old missionary to China, was received here yesterday at the Washington Missionary College, Takoma Park, where he was graduated last spring.

A cable, saying that Mr. Buchman was ill in Shanghai with leukemia, reached here Wednesday. The last message stated that death came at 1:30 a. m. November 19, which was yesterday in the Orient.

Mr. Buchman married Nora Machlan last May and they sailed for China in June. He was a Bible teacher at the Far Eastern Academy in Shanghai. His home was in New Jersey but he attended the Missionary College in Takoma Park for four years. He was president of the students' association at the college and a leader in the young people's society of missionary Volunteers.

Dr. L. A. Semmens, head of the theological department of the college, and other friends there received word of his death. It was understood that Mrs. Buchman was planning to return soon to this country.

Pandering Bill For D. C. Favored By Committee

A move to get Congressional approval of the District pandering bill was started yesterday in the face of an adjournment threat.

The Senate District Committee was polled, and Chairman King reported the measure favorably as a clerk of the House District Committee started a similar poll. No opposition was anticipated.

The legislation, submitted by U. S. Attorney Edward M. Curran, resulted from the directed acquittal of Abraham Blum, a waiter, in U. S. District Court.

Wire-Tapping Probe Chairman Suggests Dewey Be Called

Hearings Open With Contradictory Testimony on Whether Policeman Said District Attorney Once Employed Tapper

Hearings of the Senate committee to investigate wire tapping opened yesterday with contradictory testimony on whether a New York police captain ever had said that District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey once employed an alleged wire tapper.

At the close of the session, Senator Gurney (Republican), of South Dakota, remarked that "since Dewey's name has come up all during the day," he should be notified "that he's under examination by proxy."

Senator Stewart (Democrat), of Tennessee, chairman of the committee, thereupon suggested that his colleague notify the New York District Attorney. But Senator Gurney informed The Post several hours later that he had not done so.

Captain Denies Statement

Two representatives of the New York Telephone Co. said that in October, 1938, Capt. Ernest W. Dowd, of the New York Police Department, has told them that Dewey had formerly employed a man who has been named in connection with wire-tapping activities.

One of the witness, Irving W. Young, jr., telephone company attorney, quoted Dowd as saying that Dewey said he was not using the alleged wire-tapper at the time and did not intend to in the future. The telephone officials relied for their testimony on memoranda made soon after their conversation with Dowd.

The police captain, on the other hand, denied that he had told the telephone men anything of the sort.

Capt. Dowd testified he had been relieved of his command by Mayor LaGuardia on a charge that "I failed to cooperate with the Senate Committee."

Cryptic Phone Message

The committee is inquiring into the alleged tapping of telephone wires of a justice of the Supreme Court in 1938, at the time the case to determine the constitutionality of the TVA was pending.

A cryptic telephone message between Robert LaBorde, head of the Investigators Technical Service, of New York, and a New York attorney was introduced into the record. It referred to a "list" of nine persons, of whom the name of "number 5" ended in "er." At that time, Justice Butler was fifth ranking member of the Court.

Mrs. Randle Pleads Guilty of Using Mails to Defraud

Mrs. Rosalyn Randle, self-styled diet expert who is serving a three-to-eight months jail term here for getting $500 for a bogus brain cure, pleaded guilty in the District Court yesterday to seven counts of an indictment, charging use of the mails to defraud.

Mrs. Randle tearfully pleaded for mercy, saying she was the only support of a 12-year-old daughter. Justice Morris pointed out that no promise of leniency was implied by the court's acceptance of the guilty plea.

Convicted nearly two years ago of diagnosing a case of "brain disease" in a brilliant college student and taking $500 from his mother to "cure" it, Mrs. Randle went to jail only after she had appealed in vain to the Supreme Court.

● Thousands know of the amazing benefits of S.S.S. Tonic to help build rich, red blood...to increase the appetite...to aid digestion

IF you are past middle-life you will want to give particular attention to two important body functions—one, to keep your natural stomach digestive juices flowing . . . two, to keep your blood rich and healthy.

Frequently, as the years advance, the stomach becomes sluggish in pouring out its digestive juices to make use of the food eaten . . . likewise, wear and strain of worry, overwork, colds, and sickness often reduce one's blood strength.

Now you may rebuild your blood strength and restore sluggish stomach digestion, in the absence of an organic trouble or focal infection, with the famous S.S.S. Tonic.

S.S.S. acts two ways

In S.S.S. Tonic you go after the trouble in two ways . . . first you increase the appetite and better your stomach digestion—thus making better use of the food you eat—secondly, thin, weak, watery blood is made rich and red again thus giving you a boost in energy.

join the happy thousands

S.S.S. may be just what you need to get you on the right road to health and happiness again . . . it helps build sturdy health . . . that's why so many say it "makes you feel like yourself again."

Cornell Concedes Dartmouth 3 to 0 Victory

'Fifth-Down' Controversy Comes to End

Referee's Statement Claims Error Made; Dartmouth Officials Thank Cornell

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 18.—Through its own gracious refusal to accept a victory tainted by official error, Cornell today removed itself from the shrinking list of the Nation's undefeated teams, conceding that the game with Dartmouth last Saturday rightfully was won by Dartmouth, 3 to 0.

As undeniable proof rolled in, backed by a statement from Referee W. H. Friesell, jr., that he was convinced he was in error, the "fifth-down" episode was ended, and with it ended a Cornell string of 18 games without defeat.

Promptly Athletic Director James Lynah and Coach Carl Snavely of Cornell, wired congratulations to Athletic Director William H. McCarter and Coach Earl Blaik of Dartmouth. McCarter as promptly accepted the victory, telegraphing the Cornell authorities:

"Thank you for your wire. Dartmouth accepts the victory and your congratulations, and salutes the Cornell team, the honorable and honored opponent of her longest unbroken football rivalry."

Motion pictures, charts of football writers and Friesell's admission all blended into a picture which showed that Cornell had scored a suposedly winning touchdown when the ball should have been in Dartmouth's possession on its 20-yard line with less than 6 seconds to play.

In explaining his error to Asa S. Bushnell, commissioner of the Eastern Intercollegiate Football Association, Friesell reported:

"Since the conclusion of Saturday's Cornell-Dartmouth football game at Hanover I have made careful and thorough study of all evidence to do with the final series of plays which led to Cornell's touchdown and 7-to-3 vicory just as time expired in the fourth quarter.

Convinced of Error

"On the basis of numerous charts kept by the press and motion pictures taken by both of the competing colleges I now am convinced beyond shadow of doubt that I was in error in allowing Cornell possession of the ball for the play on which it scored. I find that, after a Cornell first down on the 6-yard line, there followed three line plays which gained 5 yards, and then a forward pass into the end zone knocked down by Dartmouth.

"At this point Dartmouth was entitled to take the ball on its 20-yard line, first down with about six seconds of play remaining. Unfortunately, however, thinking that it was Cornell's ball, fourth down, on the 6-yard line, I awarded it to them for what actually was an illegal fifth-down play which produced the winning score.

"This mistake was entirely mine as the game's referee, and not shared in or contributed to by any of the three other officials. I realize, of course, that my jurisdicton ceased at the close of the game and that the football rules give me no authority to change even an incorrect decision such as the one described, but I do want to acknowledge my mistake to you and, if you see fit, to the football public as well."

Bushell quieted reports that there was a play in the final sequence in which both teams were offside with a statement from Head Linesman Joseph McKenney that he made no such ruling.

Cornell's last defeat prior to the Saturday game was inflicted by Syracuse in 1938 by a 19-to-17 score. Then followed three victories before a scoreless tie with Penn, Cornell's opponent next Saturday, and then a parade of 14 straight triumphs.

Dartmouth Accepts Victory, Thanks Foes

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 18 (AP).—William H. McCarter, athletic director, accepted victory today for Dartmouth in Saturday's football game with Cornell. McCarter telegraphed Cornell:

"Thank you for your wire. Dartmouth accepts the victory and your congratulations, and salutes the Cornell team, the honorable and honored opponent of her longest unbroken football rivalry."

A referee's ruling originally gave the game to Cornell but today he admitted he was in error.

Cornell-Dartmouth Asked to Replay Game as Benefit

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 18.—Dick McCann, secretary of the national sports council of the committee for the celebration of the President's birthday, wired the Cornell and Dartmouth athletic directors tonight asking if they would consider replaying the "conceded" football game in New York for the benefit of the infantile paralysis fund.

As members of the informal Eastern Ivy League, both Cornell and Dartmouth are known to be opposed to post-season contests.

Terrors to Get Tackling Drill

Westminster, Md., Nov. 18 (AP).—Coach Charley Haven's badly-battered Terrors were put through a light workout today, but Havens indicated stress would be laid on tackling later in the week.

The Lafayette game Saturday showed poor tackling by Western Maryland, and the Terrors will need to do better against Boston University at Boston Saturday, Havens said.

Mack McPike, injured against Lafayette, will be out of the Boston game. Kenny Bills is slated to take his place.

Gophers Still Pace Nation's Grid Race

Cornell, Displaced by Minnesota Last Week, Drops to Fifth; Texas Aggies Second; Hoyas Ranked Ninth

By Bill Boni,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

New York, Nov. 18.—Even though most of the votes were cast before Cornell officially conceded victory to Dartmouth, the Big Red team dropped from second place to fifth today in the sixth weekly Associated Press football ranking poll of the season.

Minnesota, winning out over Texas A. & M., the 1939 champion, in a close race, finished first for the second straight week, the Aggies, meanwhile, moving into the runner-up spot vacated by Cornell and Stanford advancing from foutrh place to third.

Comparable to the Cornell slump was the rise in Boston College stock. The Eagles, 19-18 winners over Georgetown and wreckers of a Hoya unbeaten streak that had gone 23 games, benefited by that near-epic victory to the extent of a boost from eighth place to fourth.

Gophers Poll 68 Firsts

Only six teams received first-place votes from the 189 experts throughout the country. Minnesota, polling 68 for first and 66 for second, was ranked no worse than fourth by anyone and amassed 1,544 points. The Aggies, with 59 firsts, 51 seconds and nothing worse than fifth, got 1,485 points; Stanford, with the bulk of its support in 56 third-place nominations, was named first by 24 and got 1,331 points, while B. C., with 12, Cornell, with 6, and Tennessee with 3 were the others to be ranked first.

Out of the top ten went Notre Dame, unimpressive winner over Army and Navy and 7-0 victim Saturday of Iowa. In place of the Irish came Nebraska, beaten only by Minnesota and judged strong enough to get eighth place. Tennessee went down from fifth to sixth and Michigan from sixth to seventh, while Georgetown and Northwestern remained ninth and tenth.

Gophers Battle Badgers

Though Saturday's meeting between Cornell and Penn has lost some of its luster through the termination of the Big Red's string of 18 games without a loss, it has enormous possibilities, with Cornell's seniors out to make their last game a winning one and Penn, ranked twelfth this week, equally eager to prove Dartmouth's defeat of the Ithacans was no fluke.

Minnesota, against Wisconsin, and the Aggies, against Texas, also will be closing out their 1940 campaigns on Saturday. Stanford will take a week off before its annual climax

Some Stanford Players Favor Playing Aggies

Club Divided on Foe for Rose Bowl; Coach Favors Gophers

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, Nov. 18.—Stanford unofficially appeared today to be a house divided on the subject of a Rose Bowl opponent, provided, of course, the Indians are nominated for the New Year's Day football classic as they confidently expect.

Sentiment of a few of the players willing to discuss the matter on a basis of anonymity indicated they would favor Texas A. & M. for a Rose Bowl battle. The Stanford boys think their fullback Norman Standlee would show up the Texas Aggies steam roller, John Kimbrough.

The Stanford coaching staff, at least at the top, would welcome a match with Minnesota, which is prohibited by Big Ten rules from participating in post-season contests.

Clark Shaughnessy, whose "T" formation hoisted Stanford from the cellar to the peak in one season, was first string fullback at Minnesota in 1913. His substitute was Bernie Bierman, highly successful present Minnesota mentor.

At the football writers' meeting today, Shaughnessy was asked if he thought there was a chance of the Big Ten heads changing their attitude on post-season games. He said he thought not, but hastened to explain it was merely a personal opinion based on past experiences in the conference.

"I think it would be a fine thing for football if the Big Ten would change that rule," he said. "An annual game between the winners of the Middle West and Pacific Coast Conference teams would create one of the greatest games of the year."

Officially not a peep was heard from Stanford pending selection of the Western representative by the conference members, which may not be forthcoming for two weeks.

Ball Team Left With Four Players

Federalsburg, Md., Nov. 18 (AP).—Release of Don Maynard, former Holy Cross athlete, as manager of the Federalsburg team of the Eastern Shore Baseball League was announced today by General Manager W. K. Knotts.

Knotts also announced the sale of Infielder Joe Rullo, a veteran Shore leaguer, to Saginaw of the Michigan State League.

The release of Maynrd and the sale of Rullo brought the Federalsburg Athletics' roster down to four players—Outfielder Alton Hallowell, Catcher Allan Coccetti, and Pitchers Ray Brown and George Walton. Since the season's close, sales, recalls and releases have taken ten other players.

Conference Title Won by N. C Harriers

TommyFields,Maryland, Finishes Far Ahead Of 40 Other Runners

By Al Hailey.

Somebody left the gate open out in the vicinity of College Park yesterday, and intrepid harriers from the University of North Carolina dashed through it in such large numbers that they won themselves the Southern Conference cross-country championship for the second straight year.

Amid such absent-minded observations from various coaches as "I hope they get by the girls' field house all right," 41 lads from six conference schools showed up to prove that "it ain't true what they say about cross-country running."

This sort of running, which hit the skids at College Park a few years back and was said by everybody to be in for the same fate of the Yo-Yo, made a big comeback, for Maryland's crew came in second, and Tommy Fields, blond-haired lightweight, stole the show.

Far In Lead

Fields finished so far ahead of the pack that his itinerary to Lansing, Mich., and the National Collegiate Athletic Association track events next week had been mapped out for him by Athletic Director Geary Eppley by the time the second man showed up.

A senior from Hyattsville, Fields stepped the distance in 26 minutes, 8.6 seconds. He'll leave for the N. C. A. A. meets late this week.

Second man was North Carolina's Dave Morrison, and then Tarheel runners began making just about every other finish—enough to end up with 33 points to Maryland's 41. If this is confusing, you'll have to remember that, as in golf, the team, with the lowest score wins.

Not Same Race

V. M. I.'s 8-man team came in third, with 63; Duke University was fourth with 95, and William and Mary was fifth with 147. Washington and Lee, gambled on a lone entry, Cliff Mueller, to win the individual honors, but Mueller ended up thirteenth.

But about that gate—it develops that cross country running of contemporary times is not the gruelling struggle it was in the days—well, in

Jimmy Wilson Signs To Pilot Chicago Cubs

Hero of World Series Accepts Position At Reported Salary of $20,000 Per Season; Gets Two-Year Contract

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Jimmy Wilson, of Philadelphia, 40-year-old hero of the 1940 World Series, signed a two-year contract tonight as manager of the Chicago Cubs.

The veteran catcher-coach of the World Championship Cincinnati Reds replaces Charles Leo (Gabby) Hartnett, who was ousted last Wednesday.

Wilson, who had agreed to terms several hours before, signed the document after Warren Giles, general of the Cincinnati Club, arrived and handed him his unconditional release from the Reds.

Salary Reported $20,000

His salary—reported to be about $20,000 annually—was not revealed, but Wilson characterized his pay as "reasonable." He insisted on a two-year contract, according to James T. Gallagher, general manager of the club—a departure from the custom followed by Owner Philip K. Wrigley in giving one-year contracts.

Wilson said definitely that he would not be a player-manager.

"I am through as a player," Wilson said with a laugh. "I knew I was through catching two years ago, but the emergency existed at Cincinnati and I simply had to go in. I'm tired sitting up until 3 a. m. in a Turkish bath trying to get the aches and pains out of my system so I could play the next day."

Wilson revealed that one of his coaches would be Dick Spalding, former outfielder and coach of the Philadelphia Phillies during three of Wilson's five years as manager of that club. Spalding also is a Philadelphian.

"He's the only coach I've decided upon," Wilson said. "He will be my 'close' man, doing a lot of the work and developing players. I'll coach at third base and the other coach, as yet unnamed, will be at first."

Coaches Due to Go

Thus the shakeup of the Cubs probably will remove Coaches Johnny Corriden, who served four previous Cub managers, and George Uhle, added to the staff last season, last season.

Wilson was cagey about discussing possible changes in the club until he has an opportunity to become more familiar with the situation.

He strongly hinted, however, that he would retain Jerome (Dizzy) Dean, the Cubs' famous $185,000 pitcher who has been of little value due to an ailing arm.

"Dean is a big help to any ball club because of his color and spirit," Wilson said. "How are you going to get along without a guy like him? He's a big help. After a pitcher once hurts his arm, it's a 50 to 1 shot they'll never recover."

Wilson faces a major problem in organizing a catching staff with Hartnett, who served the Cubs 19 years, no longer available.

Violet Harrier Takes I.C. 4-A. Cross-Country

Beats Representatives Of 22 Schools in Race at New York

By the United Press

New York, Nov. 18.—Leslie MacMitchell, N. Y. U.'s unbeaten cross-country ace who has won practically everything worthwhile in the intercollegiate hill and dale realm, today led a field of 130 contenders in a brilliant defense of his IC4-A individual title at Van Cortlandt Park, running the representatives of 22 colleges bowlegged over the five tortuous miles.

MacMitchell won by a furlong over Bob Nichols, Rhode Island State's sophomore New England titleholder, who paced the Kingston squad to its first team victory in the 40-year history of the fixture. MacMitchell's time was 26 minutes 2.8 seconds. Nichols was clocked in 26.38. Third place went to Glenn V. Masten, of Colgate, last year's freshman champion.

Rhode Island, unbeaten in dual or championship competition this year, won team honors with a low total of 72 points. Michigan State placed second with 82. Manhattan, the defending champion, placed third with 103, Northeastern, a surprise fourth, with 151, and Maine, fifth, with 165.

The freshman crown went to Henry Hart, Temple's sole entry in the race, who led the pre-race favorite, Leroy Sscwartzkopf, of Yale, the national interscholastic cross-country champion from Saginaw, Mich., by 10 yards in 15:47.2 over the 3-mile course. Wilmot Castle, of Yale, finished third.

Jimmy Wilson Gets Best Wishes From Fans of Cincinnati

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Nov. 18.—It's goodbye and godspeed to Jimmy Wilson from Cincinnati baseball fans.

Jimmy, the hero of the Cincinnati Reds' 1940 World Series and a first-rate coach, is an enemy instead of a friend now that he's signed to manage the Chicago Cubs.

But Cincinnati will remember the 40-year-old Wilson as he plugged the hole in the dike when Catcher Ernie Lombardi came down with a sprained ankle in the closing weeks of the season.

And Cincinnati won't find it easy to replace the bouncy fellow at the first base line, jockeying opposing pitchers, relaying signals so deftly and generally sprinkling the old ginger all over the lot.

It was more than a coincidence that the Reds won pennants in the two years of Jimmy's stay as a coach. He was just the man for the job of helping Manager Bill McKechnie keep the team going, hold the pitchers in condition, and attend details that are neglected on many a club.

Jewell Ens May Get Wilson's Post With Reds

Cincinnati, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Cincinnati Enquirer said tonight that it "learned from a usually reliable source that Jewell Ens will succeed Jimmy Wilson as coach of the Reds."

Ens is manager of the Indianapolis American Association Club, which has a working agreement with the Reds, and he long has been a friend of Manager Bill McKechnie, the story continues.

Ens formerly was a coach of the Pittsburgh Pirates and joined thbe Reds as head scout following Pie Traynor's release as manager of the Pirates.

A. U. Courtmen To Participate In Conference

Coach Staff Cassell yesterday accepted an invitation for his American University courtmen to participate in the Penn State basketball conference, December 7, at State College, Pa.

The Eagles will work the zone defense for the attending coaches and officials. A. U. assisted in the meeting last year.

The Eagles started practice yesterday, as the football season is over. The immediate objective of the team is the Georgetown game, December 12.

GEORGETOWN-BOSTON COLLEGE—The 42,000 who saw that one will be replaying it as long as anybody will listen. Seldom does a football game live up to its press clippings, but this one did. Personally, we'll measure all thrill games of the future by what we saw at Boston. For pure intensity of contest it licked anything we've ever beheld.

It was getting dark near the end of the game when Grantland Rice, a press box neighbor, tapped out the best line of the afternoon on his battered typing mill. "These old eyes can no longer see the plays or players," said Rice, "but these old ears can still hear that tackling and those blocks."

By one thin point, 19 to 18, Georgetown was licked and Boston College deserved its victory, but did G. U. deserve to lose? Scarcely. Boston College came from behind to wipe out a 10-0 lead and that was brave football, but G. U. came from behind, too—in the second half when time was running out—and got its lead back. There can be no complaint about the Hoyas' fortitude. Unlike Boston, they made their touchdowns the hard way. Boston's came on the breaks, but breaks, of course, are no less a part of football than the goal lines.

Georgetown didn't like the fact that the referee, who was standing 30 yards away from the play, ruled pass interference by a Georgetown man in the end zone, gave Boston the ball on the 1-yard line. Georgetown could hardly expect to applaud that decision, because it was a fourth-down pass from the 15-yard line, and the umpire and field judge who were virtually on top of the play gave no signs of detecting interference. The winning touchdown followed. But in defeat, G. U. found glory. G. U. power was no myth.

REDSKINS-BEARS—And the 35,331 who saw that one will still be babbling about it when they take, finally, to their fireside chairs and slippered ease. The Redskins' 7-3 victory gets a fancy niche in the memory of the privileged 35,331—privileged to see pro football at its spectacular best.

For once the football-writing press, given to mid-week superlatives and high-pressure sales reports, did not overrate the game. The big Chicago team was, collectively, indeed the Bear That Walks Like a Man. Griffith Stadium on Sunday was the scene of the most bruising line play these eyes ever beheld.

Strangely it was the touchdown that wasn't scored which provided the biggest thrill. Dick Todd's glory dash to haul down George McAfee on the 6-inch line in the last ten seconds was story-book stuff what with the Redskins leading by only four points. McAfee all but hunched over the goal and was in a fair way of doing that until Mickey Parks rushed up to sit on him with 240 additional pounds of weight.

When the teams lined up again the 35,331 in the stands became eyewitnesses to perhaps the rarest sight in all football history—the Bears making two plays in three seconds. Head Coach Ray Flaherty checked with the referee on the time and that was the ticket—three seconds left. The Bears got a strange break when their next play—a pass—was knocked down by Willie Wilkin virtually as it left Sid Luckman's hand and became incomplete almost at the same instant, thus stopping the clock. If the pass had gone across the scrimmage line, even incomplete, it would have consumed all the time that remained. But the Bears were able to try one more desperate play.

FOOTBALL IN THE EAST—Boston College seems to have overtaken Cornell in this league. Even had the Ithacans' 7-3 victory over Dartmouth been undisputed, Cornell's luster would still be dimmed. But with the evidence showing that Cornell won on an illegal "fifth down" and Dartmouth now the winner by a 3-0 score, Cornell stock sags woefully. Dartmouth has been a stoop-shouldered set-up all season. No longer can Cornell be rated in a class by itself in the East. But Boston College could. When the Eagles licked Georgetown they were beating a team that hadn't lost in three seasons—a better accomplishment than anything Cornell has served up this year. Boston College wins our vote as Eastern champ.

FOOTBALL IN THE WEST—Minnesota is a standout there. The Gophers are now the only unbeaten team in the section despite the toughest schedule of any team in the Nation. That 33-6 win over Prudue last week-end was a welcome relief for Bernie Bierman after their squeaky margins of victory in previous games. Bierman probably drew his first long breath since September 15.

The Notre Dame myth of invincibility crashed in the shambles of a 7-0 defeat by Iowa just as it figured to go down whenever the Irish met up with better-than-fair opposiiton. Because it hasn't been a real good Notre Dame team despite its previous escape from defeat, Iowa simply beat Northwestern to the punch, because Northwestern, which plays Notre Dame next week, will also take 'em.

FOOTBALL IN THE SOUTH—Tennessee is winning the championship down there by default—what with every other team slapping each other down. The Vols slapped down Virginia, 41-14, but the Cavaliers were no test. Tennessee's easy schedule permits no claim to anything save Southern honors.

FOOTBALL IN THE FAR WEST—Week by week, Stanford is writing the most romantic chapter of 1940 college football. The team that didn't win a conference game in 1939 hasn't lost one this year, or even been tied. Each week Stanford is supposed to be in jeopardy, but each week the Indians pour it on thickly. Oregon State was the latest to be lashed by the Stanford power in a 28-14 affair.

FOOTBALL IN THE SOUTHWEST—That brings up Texas A. and M. and you know all about that swell, unbeaten, untied club, we trust.

Victory Over Irish Calls for 3-Day Vacation at Iowa

By the Associated Press

Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 18.—Iowa's football squad rested today while the student body skipped classes and celebrated the team's 7-to-0 conquest of Notre Dame Saturday.

The celebration, which extended over a three-day period, ended this afternoon with a victory dance in the university's Memorial Union.

Ray Murphy, senior fullback, is expected to see action against the Illinois eleven here Saturday. Dr. Ralph Irwin, team physician, said Murphy's shoulder injury has healed sufficiently to allow him to play.

Hoyas, Colonials Confident of Victory in Game Saturday

20,000 Fans Expected for Local Battle

Cameramen Mob Hilltop Practice Field; Lio Center Of Attention

Varied versions of Saturday's all-local game between Georgetown and George Washington came out of the respective camps yesterday.

From the Hilltop, the story was that the pressure was off, the team was far from dispirited and the Hoyas would murder the poor Colonials.

From G Street, word came that the team is 100 per cent confident of a victory over the Georgetown team, ranked ninth nationally, and that talk of keeping the score down is taboo. They're out to win.

At any rate, the 2 o'clock encounter at Griffith Stadium will be without question the No. 1 contest of the college season here, and despite the Boston College defeat suffered by Georgetown last week upward of 20,000 fans are expected.

Students, fans and newsreel cameramen greeted the Hoyas as they reported for the afternoon workout, while through the morning Head Coach Jack Hagerty was busy reviewing hundreds of letters and telegrams from well-wishers, from every part of the country.

Lio Performs for Camera

Augie Lio, who is now certain of All-American mention, was put through a long workout by the cameramen, while Al Matuza, Jim Castiglia, Jules Koshlap and Earl Fullilove all figured prominently in the request of the photograpers.

Meanwhile, words of praise on the Georgetown team went out over all press associations and from every sports writer who saw the Boston College game, and they still figure prominently in Bowl Game considerations, although they need a decisive victory over the Colonials.

Hagerty drilled on the fact that G. W. beat West Virginia by three touchdowns as he warned the team to keep on their present standard for one more week.

Trainer Harry Crowley was the busiest man at Georgetown as he was busy with taping, rub-downs and general healing work. The team came out of the game without any damaging injuries, however, and every man will be ready for the Buff and Blue.

Colonials Drill

Meanwhile Coach Bill Reinhart put the George Washington team through a light but lengthy scrimmage on the Polo Field. Two makeshift elevens went through a passing drill and were so worked up the boys almost came to blows disputing over which team completed the most passes. Reinhart was pleased at the spirit.

The Hovas will hold a tremendous weight advantage over the Colonials so Reinhart is expected to stress passing and end runs.

George Washington has never beaten Georgetown in 12 tries, the Hoyas winning 11 and one ending in a tie, but the G. W. rooters would undoubtedly settle for a victory this week and forget past performances.

Tom Grady, who starred for the second straight year against Kansas last Saturday, will probably share most of the running assignments this week with Walt Fedora, who will be out to catch Georgetown's Jack Doolan as the District's leading scorer, Eddie Wilamoski and Scott Gudmundson.

Huskers Reported Anxious to Play In a Bowl Classic

By the Associated Press

Lincoln, Nebr., Nov. 18.—The Journal said today senior members of the Cornhusker football squad, at a meeting held while they were en route home from Pittsburgh, were unanimous in an expressed desire for Nebraska to participate in a post-season bowl game.

The Huskers still have Iowa State and Kansas State to meet, in order, and Big Six Conference officials have not yet ruled on the matter of permitting the league champion to compete in a post-season scuffle.

Movies of the Pitt-Nebraska game and listening to a scout's report on Iowa State, which the Huskers play Saturday, were today's only activities. An X-ray showed no bones broken in Vike Francis' injured arm and the sturdy fullback, whose toe kicked the winning field goal against Pitt, should be ready for the Cyclones Saturday.

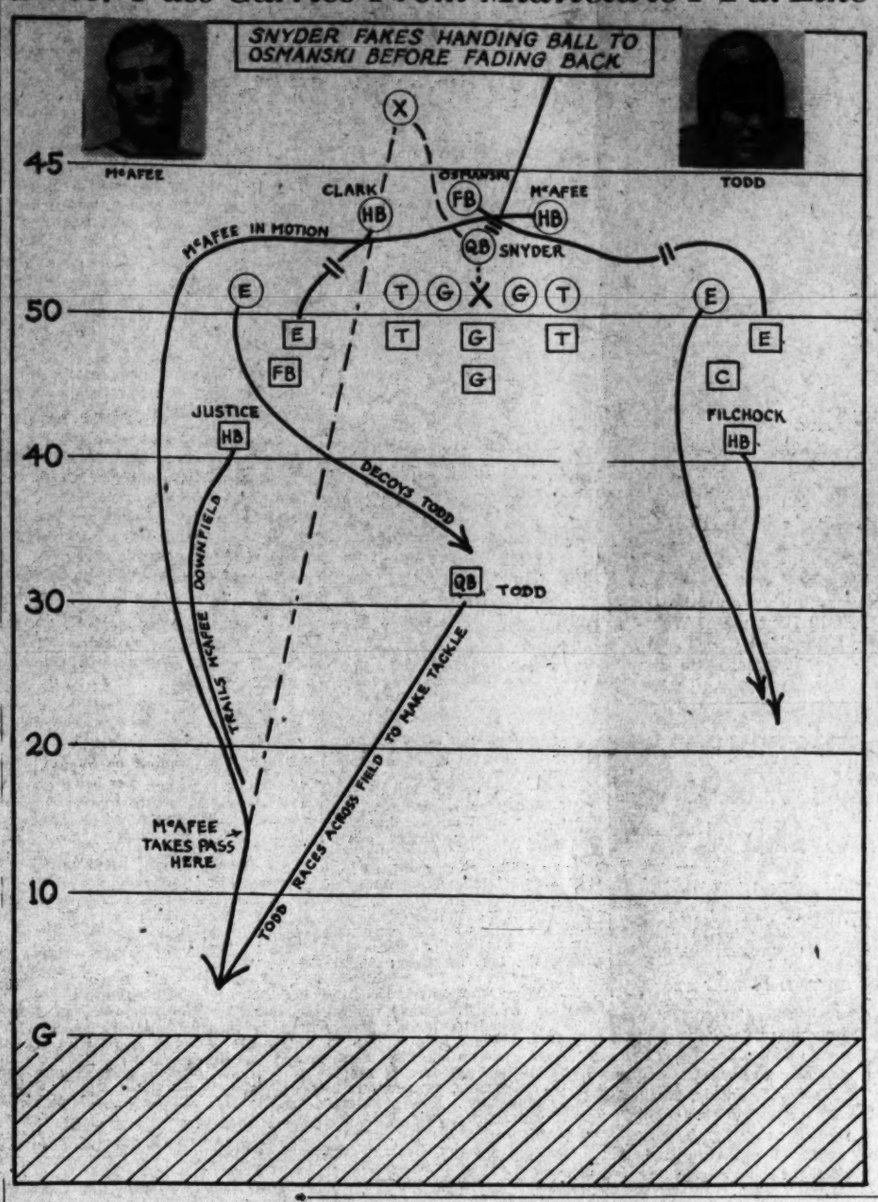
Badgers' Paskvan Captains Finale

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18 (AP).—Fullback George Paskvan, who was the spearhead in Wisconsin's victory over Indiana Saturday, today was named captain for the season finale against Minnesota this weekend.

Paskvan, last year's All-Conference fullback, will be playing his last game for the Badgers.

Few injuries were suffered in the Indiana game, and Coach Harry Stuhldreher said his squad would be in the best physical shape of the year against Minnesota.

Bears' Last-Minute Thrill Play That Failed; Clever Pass Carries From Midfield to 1-Yd. Line



Heave to McAfee Evolves From Man-In-Motion Play

Pictured above in diagram is the Bears' last-minute pass play that pitched 35,251 Redskin fans into high excitement on Sunday and failed only by a yard of beating the Redskins.

It was a play the Bears' reserved for the final seconds. They had used it only once before in the game and that was a modified version of the play. This was to be a long pass, not a short one, to the man who was running in their man-in-motion backfield before the ball was snapped.

George McAfee, the former Duke star, was chosen as the receiver in respect to both his speed and his pass-catching ability. Crossing from the opposite side behind the line downfield into the territory guarded by Ed Justice.

Meanwhile, Quarterback Bob Snyder was faking giving the ball to Bill Osmanski before drifting far back to throw the pass.

The Bears' left end, Siegal, dashed into Dick Todd's territory to decoy the Redskins' safety man.

Justice trailed McAfee downfield. He was playing both his man and the ball as Snyder turned the pass loose.

As McAfee turned to make the catch, Justice barely missed the attempt to knock the ball down.

It was a perfect catch by McAfee of a perfect pass by Snyder, and Justice was now off balance, unable to turn and make the tackle.

But Dick Todd was streaking across field the moment he noted the direction of the play. It was for such a defensive emergency that Todd, the fastest man on the Redskins, was left in the game at that point.

Only a clean tackle by Todd saved the touchdown. McAfee took the ball on the 14-yard line and Todd hauled him down by the heels on the four. McAfee hunched and bounced three yards nearer the goal on his stomach until Mickey Parks came up to lend Todd a hand by sitting on McAfee at the 1-yard line.

Duke Starts Drills For N. C. State Game

Durham, N. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Duke's Blue Devils opened preparations for Saturday's annual game with N. C. State with a brief drill here this afternoon. The regulars worked only lightly and were dressed in sweat suits. Leonard Darnell missed the drill due to a leg injury. After the regulars had gone in, the reserves mixed it up in a scrimmage.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

George Halas, who got the Chicago Bears when they were Cubs, and raised them to become a $500,000 pro football property, came up to the press box after that sizzling Redskins-Bears game Sunday and gave vent to a few assorted moans.

CONSIDINE

"Where did you fellows get the idea that we're rough?" he complained kindly. "Why we're like lambs out there, but everybody from the referee down is always looking for us to pull some rough stuff. They penalized us 80 yards today. And always when it hurt, but I'll be darned if I could see most of those penalties. Now I'll have to fine my boys," he said, resignedly, "whether they were guilty or not."

We asked him about that.

"Yeah, we've got a rigid system of fining our men. It costs one of our fellows $50 if an unnecessary roughness penalty is called against him. We've got another $50 fine for cursing the officials. They're the two fines we're strictest about. Of course there are a lot of other fines, such as $50 for missing a train and fines for being late for practice.

"But it's the unnecessary roughness fine that we really slap on hard. Sometimes it's unfair, but we don't make exceptions. For instance last week Bill Osmanski came up fast and hit a couple of Lions who were getting away with a holding infraction. But the officials saw only Osmanski, penalized us from the 1-foot, and cooked our chances of winning a ball game. But even though Osmanski did that thing for the good of the team, we cut $50 off his pay. As it turned out the other fellows on the team chipped in and paid it. But the fine stood."

The money derived in this manner goes back into the club treasury, it was pointed out by Halas. "Ray Flaherty fines his Redskins, too," he said, "and puts the dough in a pot—to be split among the players who turned in the best jobs the following Sunday. But I figure that that's wrong. You see, under his system the players vote on who gets the money. Our boys would vote it right back to the fellow we took it from. And you'd have fined him for nothing."

Halas thought that there was interfrence on Sid Luckman's final pass of the game, a stirring pitch that barely missed Osmanski in the end zone—after a thrilling pass play had given the Bears a first down on the 2-yard-line with a few seconds to go.

"I'm getting punch drunk from these last-minute things," George moaned. "We lost to the Lions last week in the last 16 seconds of play.. Well . . . that's football. We'll get those Redskins on December 8 when we meet them in the play-off.

"Believe me we're going to point for that one. We're not going to be penalized 80 yards again, either—although I don't see how we're ever going to convince anybody that we're gentle as lambs out there—and that our boys just can't afford to play as rough as a lot of persons think they do."

Halas was very grateful to the New York Giants for knocking off the Packers. A Packer victory Sunday, plus this Bears defeat, would

'Skins Begin Work Today For 'Mop-up'

Local Bosses Predict 15,000 D.C. Fans Will Witness Game at N. Y.

Safely by the barrier in their path to the National Pro League's Eastern Division title, the Redskins will begin work this morning for their "mopping up" campaign—and from the rush on yesterday it appears a record crowd of 15,000 will take the trip to New York Sunday to see the start.

General Manager Jack Espey reported that Redskin offices yesterday doubled the output of tickets to the Giant-Redskin contest next Sunday at the Polo Grounds.

Although the Giants, whose 7-3 victory over Green Bay duplicated the Skins' score over the Chicago Bears last Sunday, are in a position to put a crimp in the District of Columbia lads' style, nobody believes they can do it at this point.

The Redskins will be at full strength, for one thing. Andy Farkas will be back on the roster—an announcement from Coach Ray Flaherty is expected on that item this week. Erny Pinckert, who injured a knee in the Bear game, will be back, and Rookie Sandy Sanford will be ready to play. Capt. Turk Edwards is expected to go on the inactive list the remainder of the year because of his injured leg.

The Skins could lose to the Giants, merely tie the Eagles and still tie Brooklyn for the Eastern title—but Brooklyn must beat both the Cardinals and the Giants to remain in the running.

Washington broke the National League's third passing record this year against the Bears. They brought their total to 131 connections out of 214 tosses, which is four better than the all-time mark set by Cleveland four years ago.

Eagles Lead Hockey League With 3 Wins

Team Rests Here In Preparation for Home Opening Nov. 26

The Washington Eagles were leading the Eastern Amateur Hockey League with a record of three consecutive victories, all on the road, as they settled down for a brief rest here yesterday.

The Eagles, in the interim, are pointing for their opening home match at Riverside Stadium a week from tonight, November 26, when they entertain the high scoring New York Rovers at 8:30 o'clock.

A surprisingly brisk advance sale for next Tuesday night's match was reported at Riverside yesterday as Washingtonians warmed to the revised Eagles, who appear to be even more formidable than was last year's second place club.

The Eagles, in a unit, reported for alien registration at the City Postoffice yesterday, but were advised to delay registration for a week pending arrangements.

Team Registers

Washingtonians may get their first glimpse of the new Eagles in their star-studded, red, white and blue uniforms this morning when they take the ice for a snappy workout at Riverside. Old favorites who are to take the ice are Les Colvin, goal; Len Burrage, Ross Knipfel and John McTeer, defense, and Hal Dewey, Mike Germann and Paul Corteau, wings.

Eight newcomers who will also work out are Gordon Hemming, goal; Jim McCurry, defense; Norm Burns, Roy McBride and Russ Rossignol, centers, and Jack MacBeth, Gordon Pranschke and Frank Mailley, wings.

At 12:30 o'clock the Eagles will be guests of honor at a luncheon tendered local sports writers and broadcasters by Owner Severine G. Leoffler, sr.

Washington returns to action with a three-match road trip over the week-end, meeting the Sea Gulls in Atlantic City Friday night; River Vale Golfers in River Vale, N. J., Saturday night, and the New York Rovers in Madison Square Garden Sunday afternoon.

A 200 per cent discount is being offered on season tickets and reservations for the opening match are being made daily through Republic 2950.

Hoyas Among Teams On Sugar Bowl List

Ten Colleges Sounded Out on Annual Classic New Year's Day at New Orleans; $75,000 Pot of Gold Awaits Teams Selected

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Nov. 18.—The Sugar Bowl sounded out officials of ten colleges and universities, one of which was Nebraska, today on how they would like about $75,000 to let their football teams play here on January 1.

Identities of the other institutions were kept secret but in informed quarters the list was believed to include Minnesota, Texas A. and M., Boston College, Tennessee, Michigan, Georgetown, Fordham and a Far Western team.

A. N. Goldberg, president of the New Orleans Midwinter Sports Association, which sponsors the Sugar Bowl events, said Nebraska was "among the teams being considered." He made this statement at the Monday Quarterbacks' Club in answer to a query as to Nebraska's status, but requested that no further questions on particular teams be asked.

All Sections Queried

In a previous announcement that questionnaires had been sent to ten schools he said the list represented all sections and was not limited to unbeaten teams.

It was indicated the institutions queried might include some of the anti-Bowl stronghold of the Ivy League and in the Big Ten, which has frowned on post-season games in the past, but recently has shown signs of entering a tie-up with the Rose Bowl.

"We have not eliminated any team whose record would justify its consideration," Goldberg said, "except the Pacific Coast champion, which is pledged to the Rose Bowl. We are trying to get the best game possible and are leaving no stone unturned.

Names Are Secret

"We cannot reveal the names of teams and have asked the schools not to do so. The coaches feel it would put them on the spot for remaining games. It would also take the boys' minds off their business and would 'sic' the alumni onto the schools."

Goldberg made it clear the queries did not constitute invitations, but were "just routine inquiries on attitudes and conditions under which they would be interested."

He said the association's executive committee, which makes the selections, did not expect to send out any bore feelers than the ten sent today and would choose the participants from the schools giving favorable replies.

Montreal Outfielder And Pitcher Are Sold

Montreal, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Montreal Royals of the International League today announced the sale of Pitcher Al Hollingsworth and Outfielder Bill Norman to Houston of the Texas League.

Michigan Gridmen Lose Day of Rest

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 18 (AP).—Michigan's football Wolverines, who usually have a day off on Mondays, were put to work today in preparation for the season's final game Saturday with Ohio State at Columbus.

While no scrimmages are planned, Coach Fritz Crisler said he would overhaul the Wolverine's pass defense against the threat of Don Scott, the Buckeyes' sharpshooting quarterback.

Trainers reported the team came through the Northwestern game without serious injury.

Maryland Host To Rutgers On Thursday

Both Colleges Hold Two Victories Apiece; Game in Baltimore

Thursday's Maryland-Rutgers game in Baltimore will be the rubber game of the series and will also be the first time in the five-game rivalry that the Terps have entertained the Scarlet.

The New Jersey eleven won on its field in 1920 and 1939, while Maryland won at New Brunswick in 1921 and Philadelphia in '25.

Game time is 2 p. m. in Baltimore's Municipal Stadium.

The Terps were back out for practice yesterday in a drill that consisted of field strategy and ball handling. Coaches showed the team errors of the V. M. I. game. Light drills are scheduled today and tomorrow.

At New Brunswick, the Scarlet gridders worked in dummy scrimmage against Maryland plays and tapered off with a punting drill.

Scoring Record Set as Gonzaga Defeats Roosevelt, 39-32

Rough Riders Off To 7-Point Lead in First Period; 1,500 See Wild Scoring

The wildest-scoring football game of the scholastic season here this year went to Gonzaga High yesterday at Roosevelt as it eked out a 39-32 victory over a Rough Rider eleven it was expected to trample by several touchdowns.

Three 6-pointers were hung up by the wide-open teams in each of three periods, and in the other a pair was scored. The Purple managed to tally in every quarter, while Roosevelt went pointless in one, the third.

It was that lapse, along with Gonzaga's sudden improvement on defense, which made the final difference. But Roosevelt was coming back like lightning in the fourth period as almost complete darkness settled over the field and an estimated crowd of 1,500 began leaving. Twice it scored in the semi-darkness, the last touchdown coming with less than 10 seconds to play.

Year's Highest Score

The stars of the year's highest high school point total were: (Gonzaga) Elmer Raba, who went across the goal three times on plunges of two, three and 15 yards, passed to two other tallies for gains of seven and 41 yards, passed to two extra points, did all his team's kicking, and was the all-around offensive star of the day; Bobby Mulvihill, who called signals for the winning Gonzagans, made one touchdown himself on an 18-yard slant off tackle, and carried the burden of blocking for Raba; (Roosevelt) Bobby Stein, who hurled two touchdown passes to Dick Goodman and one to Dick Koester, set up another with a 36-yard dash in the final period, and kept the Purple puzzled all afternoon with his bullet-like aerials; Dick Goodman, whose defensive play was as good as his offensive play, which netted 12 points for the losers, and Big Bernie Kolker, who quarterbacked throughout, scored once on a 4-yard plunge, did a lot of fine punting and tackling and accounted for most of his team's gain on straight power plays.

Passes Pay Off

These were the stars, but numerous other youngsters stepped in to shine for a moment as both clubs forgot all about defense.

Roosevelt scored first in the opening period on a pass, Stein to Goodman, and Marvin Kogod kicked the point. But Gonzaga retaliated with another pass, Raba to O'Donnell, and the same combination worked for the extra point. Back came the Riders on a 31-yard toss, Lancaster to Sturgess, and again Kogod booted a good one.

That gave Roosevelt a 14-7 edge at the quarter, but it didn't last. At the half Gonzaga, on a 41-yard aerial, Raba to Hartman, and Mulvihill's 18-yard drive through the line, was leading despite Roosevelt's touchdown on a second Stein-to-Goodman strike. The score was 21-20.

While it held the hosts scoreless, Gonzaga pushed over two counters in the third period to take a lead it never lost. The first was tacked on the end of a 60-yard march, Raba going over from the 15. The second also went to Raba, this time after he had single-handedly bucked it to the Rider 2.

After taking a punt to start the fourth quarter, Roosevelt marched downfield in five first downs to score on a Lancaster-to-Koester heave from the 23. Gonzaga had its turn with a drive from its own 33 to the 3-yard stripe, from which point Raba went over after Mulvihill had failed.

It was dark by that time, but Roosevelt was still in the game. Starting on Gonzaga's 40, Stein spun to the 4-yard marker in a desperate drive, and on his first try Bernie Kolker pounded over.

Indiana Takes Cross-Country Title

Chicago, Nov. 18 (AP).—Wayne Tolliver, long-legged senior, led the Indiana University cross country team to the Western Conference championship on the soggy 4-mile course in Washington Park.

Tolliver won the individual title, going the 4 miles in 22 minutes, 25.5 seconds, almost two minutes over the record set by Wisconsin's Walter Mehl in 1939.

Indiana, placing four men in the first eight finishers, took the team title with 32 points, regaining the crown it lost a year ago to the Badgers. Ohio State finished second with 43 points, followed by Purdue, 58, and Wisconsin, 107. Chicago did not place enough finishers to quality for team rating and the other four schools were not represented.

Guggino Wins Decision Over Leo Rodak

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 18 (AP).—Carl (Red) Guggino, fast-hitting Hartford (Conn.) lightweight, won a 10-round decision tonight over Leo Rodak of Chicago. Guggino weighed 137, Rodak 135¾.

Rodak finished strong, but couldn't overcome Guggino's early lead. There were no knockdowns.

Undefeated Field Ball Girls of Mount Rainier

Western Defends Interhigh Title Against Tech Thursday

Turkey Day Date Made Definite; G. W. High And Little Generals in Annual Meet

Heads of the public high school football series yesterday set Thursday afternoon at 2 p. m. as the starting time, and Central Stadium as the scene of the 1940 interhigh championship game, leaving all the rest to a pair of the best-matched elevens to come along in some time.

It will be Western as defending champion, and McKinley Tech as challenger.

The scholastic card in this vicinity will be opened Thursday morning when Washington-Lee High, at its base just over the river in Arlington, plays host to its oldest rival, George Washington, of Alexandria. This game will start at 10 a. m.

From their performance to date, there is absolutely no certainty of either Western or Tech walking away with the victory Thursday. Speculations as to the outcome have varied from three touchdowns favoring the Raiders to as many favoring Tech.

Even their earlier meeting, in which the Trainers romped off with a 16-0 decision, is a poor gauge of the teams' relative strength. Western had at least three of its stars on the bench during that one, not the least of whom was Jake Hilleary, the club's "one-man gang."

Both teams will be at top strength, barring injuries this week, for the crucial meeting which will give Western its second straight title after going winless since 1905, or Tech its first championship since the 1936-37 season. Most observers expect one of the finest individual battles of the year in the meeting of Hilleary and Tech's Jackie Walsh, both of whom are triple-threaters with considerable defensive ability thrown in.

Russ Arnaud Leads Scholastic Scoring

Compilation of schoolboy scoring yesterday found Russ Arnaud, Washington-Lee High's fine ball-carrier, again leading, with St. Alban's Fullback Heiser in second place. The latter aded one touchdown to his total against St. Andrews Saturday, giving him 48 points, while Arnaud rested on his total of 60 as his team remained idle.

Into a tie for third place bounced Gonzaga's Elmer Raba and Georgetown Prep's Bud Eckrich, each with 38 points. Raba chalked up three six-pointers against Roosevelt, while Eckrich boosted his record with a pair of trips across the goal against Loyola, of Baltimore.

Yoo Hoo, Cornell! Look What N.Y.U. Did About Columbia

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 18.—The boys with the long memories went back into the football records today for a parallel to the Dartmouth "concession" victory over Cornell, and came up with this one:

In 1922 the New York U.-Columbia game ended with the score on the board as N. Y. U. 7, Columbia 6. In the 1923 football guide appears this foot-note to the Columbia record for '22:

"Several days after the game the referee announced that the touchdown scored by New York University should have been ruled a safety by him. No official ruling was given on same."

Columbia still lists the game in its records as a 6-2 Columbia victory. To N. Y. U., it still is a 7-6 Violet triumph.

the days when the Government was just beginning to go alphabetical.

It was with a sort of nostalgic sigh that Dale Ranson, coach of the winning North Carolina team, recalled the "good old days" of cross country a few years back at Maryland University when the Terrapins had just revived the sport after a three-year layoff.

"I remember when we used to start right over there," said Ransom, indicating an abandoned road with a bridge beginning to cave in a few feet along the way. "They used to run us through a creek, over a bridge—we even jumped a fence and crossed the Baltimore boulevard."

Yesterday all that was gone. The field started by the university dairy barn, loped up a sloping grade and then shuttled off into the woods toward the fence they used to jump but which they now get by through use of the open gate. Past the gate they went down Cool Spring Road, crossed University Lane, got by the coed field house and finished on the drill field.

But if you're thinking that cross-country running is going soft, just stop and consider the words of a sage at the finish line observing the runners' spirited conversation with numerous eye-pleasing coeds:

"They still ran five miles, didn't they."

Mount Rainier Girls Win, 12-2, In Fieldball

Mounts Gain Sixth Victory in Beating Maryland Park

Concluding an undefeated season, Mount Rainier High School girls' fieldball team knocked off a puny Maryland Park eleven, 12-2, yesterday, on the Mount Rainier field. It was the sixth victory of the season for the winners, the other game being a tie contest with Upper Marlboro. Again, as in previous contests, a fast passing attack by the Mounts' forward line of Betty Ott, Winnie Martin and Pat Mullen, sewed up the game as Mount Rainier scored two goals in the first, second and fourth quarters.

The only time that the Parkers' forwards were able to penetrate the Mount Rainier secondary was in the final period when M. Montgomery got the ball past the goalie. Eva Adamson was high scorer for the Mounts with two goals with H. Langford, W. Martin, D. Wohlfarth and P. Mullen each counting once. For the seventh time this year, Florence Markward played a full-time game, yesterday filling in at goalie. Ordinarily she holds down the left halfback position, but yesterday the regular goalie was absent. She is one of the better reasons for the Mounts' untainted record.

Undoubtedly the most promising player on this year's squad was a freshman, Lorraine Hartsock. Coach Mary Speake prophesied that, by her senior year Lorraine will be one of the most outstanding fieldball players ever turned out at Mount Rainier. "Probably the finest teamwork of any team which I have ever seen," is the modest way in which Coach Speake, who, incidentally teaches home economics on he side, explains he success of her team in establishing its unblemished record, the first in Mount Rainier history.

Pat Mullen was top scorer of the team for the 1940 schedule with 20 points, followed by Winnie Martin with 18 and Eva Adamson with 11. In seven games this season, the Speake-tutored aggregation scored a total of 63 points, compared to 25 for the opposition. Mount Rainier turned back Bladensburg, Sherwood and Maryland Park, each twice, in the record just completed, and tied Marlboro. The other contest with Marlboro was rained out and cancelled last week. Seniors on this year's team are Martin, Ott, Adamson and Dot O'Brien, who played a considerable game of fieldball at center half.

Wildcats Given Day Off From Practice Field

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 18 (AP).—Coach Lynn Waldorf gave the Northwestern football squad a day from the practice field today for the first time of the season, but did not spare the athletes a lecture on kicking.

Reds Out of Red And Have Profit From Series 'Take'

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Nov. 18.—Cincinnati Reds stockholders learned today that winning a world championship helped the club clear its indebtedness to the last dollar, put a net profit of $274,051 in the kitty, and paid dividends totaling $94,770, or $12 a common share.

Warren C. Giles, vice president and general manager, read the report of President Powel Crosley, jr., who was unable to attend the annual stockholders' meeting.

The Reds played to 830,180 cash customers at home in 1940 and 656,884 on the road, against 881,443 and 770,016, respectively, last year.

The company paid off $200,500 of indebtedness during the year, paying every note outstanding.

Navy Spirit Rises as Army Game Nears

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 18.—Although the battle with the Army Cadets is nearly two weeks in the offing, spirit and enthusiasm that always precedes that contest began to permeate over 2,500 midshipmen and residents of the Naval Reservation in general today as the Middies started their final preparations for the game with their ancient rivals.

Practically every member of the squad reported on the field ready for action. The lone exception was Bill Busik, triple-threat back, who appears to have been the only casualty in Saturday's game against Columbia. Busik played through the majo rportion of that bruising contest, but finally was assisted from the field limping from a leg injury. The hurt, however, is reported to be slight, and Busik is expected to rejoin the squad within a few days.

Wes Gebert and Howie Clark, both regular backs, who were unavailable for the Columbia engagement because of injuries suffered in the Notre Dame game, were in togs, but went through only light work. They are taking extreme care of their injuries in order to be in tip-top condition for the climactic contest.

During the remaining stages of practice the staff will bend every effort to snap their charges out of a slump that has been their chief weakness, inability to muster a scoring punch after rushing the ball over the lot. This has been plainly demonstrated in the last three games, and whether it is due to poor quarterbacking, or bogging down from fatigue after early efforts, are points to be determined. Certain it is that the alternating teams, one quite as good as the other, have come in for a good deal of unfavorable criticism because of their failure to put the ball over for touchdowns after getting within striking distance in their games against Penn, Notre Dame and Columbia.

Army Plans Intensive Drills for Two Weeks

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Hoping to avert Army's most disastrous football season by beating Princeton and Navy, the Cadet footballers laid plans for two weeks of intensive work. Army had only a light workout today. Jere Maupin was the only Penn game casualty, suffering a leg injury, but he is expected to be ready for Princeton.

New Hockey League Being Organized

Representatives From Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia Meet

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Nov. 18.—Representatives from cities in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio met here today to discuss formation of a new, six-team amateur hockey league.

Gene M. Elliff, of Huntington, W. Va., said Huntington and Charleston, W. Va.; Akron, Ohio, and Pittsburgh had made definite plans to join the loop but that Johnstown, Pa., and Cleveland, were classed as indefinite.

Elliott said the League, "if we start, will open this winter, either December 15 or January 1."

A name for the circuit still was unchosen, but "The Tri-State League" was under consideration.

The league would operate under franchise from the American Hockey Association of the United States, with all teams being a combination of local and "imported" players. Each team would have several Canadians, Elliott said.

Akron was represented by L. Brock Coleman, Johnstown by John McSorley and Huntington and Charleston by Elliott. John R. Harris, of the Pittsburgh Amusement Co., which sponsors the Hornets in the American Hockey League, also would back the new amateur entry in Pittsburgh.

Two-Man Team Matches Listed For Mat Program

Herbie Freeman and Eddie Newman, two Jewish grapplers from Up-State New York, were booked yesterday for a special two-man team match on Thursday night's wrestling show at Turner's Arena.

Freeman and Newman will meet Whitey Gorvo, the reformed Nevada cowpuncher, and Carl Gray, a newcomer from Toledo.

Milo Steinborn, the European "Strong Man," and Emil Dusek, of the notorious Dusek "Riot Squad," will headline the show in a finish bout.

Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher, and Warren Bockwinkle, favorite from St. Louis, will meet in the semi-windup.

Freeman and Newman triumphed in a two-man bout against Tommy Rae and Tiger Tasker about two weeks ago at the Arena, and have tossed challenges since then with monotonous regularity. Newman formerly operated with the team of Newman and Plummer.

Won $84,585

Chance Sun won a total of $84,585 for Joseph E. Widener. He won the Belmont Futurity and was the winter-book favorite for the Kentucky Derby in 1935 but went amiss in his training. He is now at stud in Kentucky, at Thomas Piatt's Brookdale Farm near Lexington.

Houghton Wins as D. C. Pro Golf Schedule Closes

Beaver Dam Star Takes All Prizes

Wins Sweepstakes, Is 1-2-3 in Pro-Am At Indian Spring To Continue Streak

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

The District professional tournament golf schedule is all over now. It ended yesterday on a windy November day the same way it started on a windy day in March—with Al Houghton winning all the prizes.

The Beaver Dam professional played the Indian Spring course in 70 strokes, two under par, with seven birdies in his round as he won the pro sweepstakes by five shots and finished one-two-three in the pro-amateur with his three partners.

Al started winning in March at Kenwood when he accomplished the same feat, copping the pro sweeps and sweeping the pro-am prizes with his partners. He has won a great majority of similar one-day tourneys, two Open championships and has been in the money every time out but one.

Diffenbaugh Second

His winning partner in the pro-amateur play yesterday was Volney Burnett, the Chevy Chase Invitation Champion, who rode on his back for 15 holes but came through with a par on the fifteenth hole where Houghton missed and finished with a birdie three on the eighteenth to help his pro partner two shots as Al finished with one of his five bogeys.

Houghton's other winning partners were Jerry Burch and Joe Balestri, who helped their home club pro two shots each for 68s. George Diffenbaugh finished second in the pro sweep, the Kenwood mentor posting a three-over-par 75, while in an amateur handicap event Art Cross, of the host club, was the winner with 77—6—71. Burnett scored 76—4—72 and Maj. J. B. Patterson, Chevy Chase, 83—8—75.

Yoder Father

Houghton chipped in the cup from off the green for two of his birdies, a deuce on the fourth and a four on the sixteenth, while the other five were from comparatively short putts. The course played long, however, and he lost five strokes to par with bogeys.

Levi Yoder, the unattached professional who is thinking of catching the big time pros in the latter part of the winter tour, through Georgia and the Carolinas, trailed Diffenbaugh with a 76. Yoder was accepting congratulations on the birth of a nine-pound girl to Mrs. Yoder on Thursday.

Tommy Doerer, jr., played an odd round, a 77 that included six birdies, two by dropping 60 and 40 foot putts. He also ran into too many bogeys to finish out of the money.

Pro-Amateur

Al Houghton and Volney Burnett, Beaver Dam, 36-37, 67; Houghton and Jerry Burch, Beaver Dam, 35-33, 68; Houghton and Joe Balestri, Beaver Dam, 36-32, 68.

Billy Burke to Play Klein at Rock Creek

Manager Tom Doerer, of Rock Creek, announced yesterday that Billy Burke, the finalist in the National Open marathon with George Von Elm, and Willie Klein, one of pro golf's master stylists, would play an exhibition at Rock Creek when en route to Miami next month. Doerer did not know the exact date, but received confirmation of the visit yesterday by wire from New York.

Furman Holds Light Practice for Clemson

Greenville, S. C., Nov. 18 (AP).—Furman's gridmen, bruised and sore after their game with South Carolina, but complaining of no serious injuries, began oiling their football machine today for their game with Clemson here Saturday.

The regulars, who played three-fourths of the game against the Gamecocks, were not subjected to rough work today. The varsity spent the afternoon on punting, pass defense and signals. The reserves went through a long defensive session against Clemson plays as run by the freshmen.

Manor Women Golfers Name New Chairman

Mrs. Baker Elected To Post, Succeeding Mrs. Doran Platt

Mrs. William M. Baker was elected chairman of the Manor Club women's golf committee yesterday, succeeding Mrs. Doran Platt, who was presented with a wrist watch by the club members as retiring chairman.

Mrs. A. L. Alderman was elected vice chairman, Mrs. Charles E. Dannaker, treasurer, and Mrs. Don Hutchison, secretary.

In the final field day of the season, Mrs. Walter R. Stokes won low gross, Mrs. Tom Beavers low putts, while net prizes went to Mrs. L. G. Gray, Mrs. H. L. Simcoe, Mrs. Gale E. Pugh and Mrs. K. Conway. Mrs. James Taylor and Mrs. G. A. Jones won prizes on the inside nine.

KENWOOD

Mrs. Charles L. Valle was elected chairman of the Kenwood women's golf committee for a second term yesterday, and will be assisted in office by Mrs. J. A. Thurston, vice chairman; Mrs. Paul Lion, secretary, and Mrs. J. J. Byrne, treasurer. Committee appointments will be made later.

WASHINGTON

Ann Reh won low net in the first flight of the Washington Golf and Country Club Women's Turkey Tournament yesterday, while Mrs. Marion Falls won second prize and Mrs. R. E. Motze a chicken for third.

Second flight twinners were Mrs. Gorham Freer and Mrs. A. C. Richmond, for low net, and Mrs. R. D. Young, the new publicity chairman of the women's golf committee, who won the third prize chicken.

Two turkeys and a chicken were awarded in the third flight to Mrs. W. W. Southworth, Mrs. J. R. Hogan and Mrs. Otto Thacker, respectively.

Mississippi Tries for Tie With Vols

By the Associated Press

Atlanta, Nov. 18.—The Southeastern Conference will get down in earnest to the serious business of reaching some decision on the circuit's football championship this week.

The chief interest is being stirred up at Starkville, where Mississippi's two loop members are going into a dispute to decide whether the undefeated Tennessee Vols must share the crown or take undisputed claim on it. Another traditional battle throws Tennessee against Kentucky in the Knoxville ring, where the Vols are expected to write another victorious chapter in their drive toward a third successive bowl bid.

Mississippi, still tied with Tennessee for the Southeastern lead with three victories each and no defeats, must stop the unbeaten but once-tied Mississippi State Rebels to get a share of the 1940 spoils. A Mississippi State win in this 39-year-old series would leave the way clear for Tennessee to claim the championship unchallenged. The Vols must hurdle often-beaten Vanderbilt, as expected, next week to complete their second straight regular season without tie or defeat.

Mississippi State's tie with Auburn bars the former from any chance at the top provided Tennessee is not upset.

Plans for National Pro League Championship Play-Off Drafted

New Procedure for Divisional Title Games Adopted; Ticket Prices Set

The final draft of plans for staging the National Pro Football League's championship game December 8—in all probability, a return engagement in Washington between the Chicago Bears and Redskins—was drawn up yesterday.

At the same time, pro league moguls, meeting with President Carl Storck at the Mayflower Hotel, took part in a bit of fotball history-making that the Redskins benefitted from right away.

For the first time, the pros will take their cue from basketball in event of a tie for a title in either the Eastern or Western Division.

If the game is tied at the end of the 60-minute playing time, the two deadlocked teams would start out in the regular manner anew, but the game will end as soon as one team scores and that team declared the division champion. Should there be no score at the end of the first extra period, a two-minute intermission would follow and the game would continue in this manner until a score.

Coin Toss to Decide

In the second piece of precedent setting, Storck announced that the toss of a coin should decide the site of divisional playoffs. A coin was promptly produced, and Washington won the toss for the still highly ephermal Eastern title playoff with Brooklyn.

As a result of yesterday's meeting—which, strangely enough, in view of all parties' insistence that everyone was in perfect consent with the proceedings, took all day—Washington is certain to be the scene of a playoff.

If Brooklyn closes the one-game gap by winning the next two games while the Redskins lose two, then it's the Dodgers here for the right to represent the East against the West. Otherwise, it'll be the Redskins entertaining the Western winners December 8.

Tickets for the championship playoff will scale at $2.20, $3.30 and $4.40, including tax, Storck announced.

2 Others In Running

If the world title playoff comes to Washington, the free pass list promptly is nullified, and ticket reservations will be considered on a "first come-first serve" basis, with season ticket holders getting primary consideration.

While the Bears appear the dead-certain choices to come back to Washington, the 1939 champion Green Bay Packers and the Detroit Lions are still in the running for the Western Division title.

If the Packers tie the Bears, the Western playoff goes to Chicago, December 8. If the Lions tie the Bears, the Bears play in Detroit University Stadium. In any event of a divisional tie, the world title game would be moved back to December 15 on the Eastern champion's home grounds.

The league championship game, which isn't affected by the extra-period ruling on divisional ties, kicks back 70 per cent of the net gate to the players taking part.

At the meeting yesterday, in addition to Storck, were George Halas; Fred L. Mandel, jr., Detroit, and George Marshall, Redskins. Dan Topping, Brooklyn, and Curly Lambeau, Green Bay, were contacted by phone.

Bill Ackerman . . . on Fishing

The new 1941 edition of the Stuart, Florida Fishing Guide is out, bigger and better in every way—from the paper on which it is printed to the news and information contained therein. If you intend fishing Florida this winter, by all means send to the

ACKERMAN

Martin County Chamber of Commerce for one.

Why other Southern fishing areas haven't gone in for this kind of a medium to advertise that which they have to offer is something we have never been able to understand. There is little doubt but what it is the one greatest factor in bringing to the attention of thousands of anglers the good fishing to be found in and around the St. Lucie, who in turn bring others to spend their money on boats, food and entertainment. It must be so, for this is the eighth successive printing of 25,000 copies.

The Outdoors Writers Association held their fall get-together at Southport, N. C. Shooting, at the time, appeared to us more important, and, we must have missed something, if the reports that continue to come back of the "doings" are even partly true.

In North Carolina outdoors editors really rate. Bob Thompson, of the State News Bureau at Raleigh, was there to greet them, with J. C. Baskerville, of the Governors Hospitality Committee; Paul Kelly, from the Department of Conservation, and Bill Baker, ace cameraman of the department. In addition Capt. John A. Nelson, of the Fisheries Commission, sent the patrol boat Hatteras from Morehead City for their use and Frank O. Sherrill came down from Charlotte with his yacht Drifter, just in case there were any little thing he could do with it to promote the holiday spirit.

Outstanding among the writers present were Dave Roberts, president of the association, and "Ack," an endearing contraction used by the boys for the president emeritus, Morris Ackerman, outdoor editor of the Cleveland Press since 1914.

Some of "Ack's" musings are interesting enough to pass on for they are so very true. He says: "When I urned out my first column on July 12, 1914, I thought I would immediately be recognized (even on the street), as an authority on fish and game matters . . . later on, between 1914 and 1927 as other fish and game writers sprung up here and there over the country, I learned too, that each of these "experts" had the same idea—about themselves . . . thought little or nothing about the ability of his brother scribes."

It was at a meeting of the Izaak Walton League in Chicago in 1927 that the idea of an organization of outdoors writers was submitted by "Ack" to others at the publicity table. It met with immediate acceptance by such as Jack Minor, Commancho and Jimmy Stuber, and the association has grown in 13 years until it is impossible to pick up any issue of an outdoors magazine without finding bylines of one or more members. In fact the roll holds the names of the most outstanding writers in the country—Rex Beach—Van Campen Heilner—Ozark Ripley, who died just a few weeks ago.

1927 Navy Gridder Called to Service

East Orange, N. J., Nov. 18 (AP).—Paul L. Woerner, football guard at the United States Naval Academy in 1927 and Coach of Upsala College's grid squad since 1934, announced today he had received orders from the Navy Department to report for active duty.

Woerner said he had been directed to report Thursday to the training ship U. S. S. Newton at Jersey City. He said he expected to be assigned to a destroyer on patrol duty in the Caribbean.

A member of the Naval Reserves since his graduation from Annapolis in 1929, Woerner holds the rank of lieutenant. He is attached to the Twenty-fourth Fleet Division.

Cardinals Face A Heavier Foe Here Saturday

Providence Eleven To Outweigh C. U. 10 Pounds Per Man

Former Catholic U. End Coach George Vik scouted Providence College in the game with St. Anselm's Sunday and brought word back to Head Coach Dutch Bergman that the Friars would out-weigh C. U. 10 pounds per man in the game here Saturday.

St. Anselm's beat Providence, 8-7, while C. U. beat the former, 6-0, thus it looks like anybody's game on comparative scores.

The game will give the Cardinals a chance to finish the season in the black, as their record is now on the .00 mark, three victories, a defeat and a tie.

Catholic's chances of victory depend largely on whether Backs Charlie Moutenot and Pete Sachon will be able to play. Both were limping yesterday after having been taken out of the bruising battle with Hardin-Simmons with leg injuries.

Moutenot is bothered with an injured right leg and sprained ankle, while Sachon is all bruised up from the game with the Texans and has holdover injuries from previous contests.

With Moutenot and Sachon on the injured list, Huck Hughes and Hank Brostek will bear the brunt of the Cardinal backfield duties.

The kickoff will be at 2 p. m. in Brookland Stadium.

'Bitsy' Grant Ranked First In Dixie Tennis

Gardner Mulloy Is Rated Third Behind Archie Henderson

By the Associated Press

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 18.—Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, of Atlanta, Southern Tennis champion and former Davis Cup star, was ranked No. 1 in the 1940 rankings released today by the Southern Lawn Tennis Association.

Archie Henderson, of Chapel Hill, N. C., runner-up to Grant in the Southern, was ranked No. 2, displacing Gardner Mulloy, of Miami, who held that spot in 1939.

Mulloy and his fellow townsman, Billy Gillespie, rated No. 3 and No. 4 in that order and with Grant and Henderson formed the semifinals bracket in the Southern.

Doris Hart, of Miami, winner of both the Southern women's and girls' titles, was ranked in the top spot in both divisions. Mrs. Marta Andrade, of Miami Beach was No. 2 in the women's division and No. 2 girl player was Nellie Sheer, of Miami.

Champion Earl Bartlett, of New Orleans was given the No. 1 post among the juniors with Richard Hart, of Miami, No. 2.

Jack Tuero, of New Orleans, boys' titleholder, and Billy Windham, of Orlando, were ranked Nos. 1 and 2, respectively, in their division.

In the doubles' combinations, Russell Bobbitt, of Atlanta and Bartlett ranked No. 1 in the men's division; Mrs. Andrade and Mrs. Catherine Sample, of Miami, No. 1 among women; Bartlett and Louis Shopfer, of New Orleans, No. 1 among juniors, and Tuero and Gary Albertine, of Memphis, No. 1 among boys.

Louis to Defend Title at Detroit

Detroit, Nov. 18 (AP).—Promoter Mike Jacobs announced tonight that Joe Louis would defend his world heavyweight boxing title in Detroit the latter part of February or early in March.

Jacobs was here to arrange for a series of fights in Olympia Arena which may produce an opponent for the Brown Bomber and to sign Walter Sharp, a local promoter, as his matchmaker.

The first of eight shows under the Jacobs banner will be held December 6 and bring together Abe Simon, New York heavyweight, and Roscoe Toles, Detroit Negro, in a ten-round bout.

Jacobs said that if Simon should win handily over Toles he would get a shot at Louis' title.

Only one of the champion's title fights has been held here in his home town. That was in September, 1939, when Louis knocked out Challenger Bob Pastor.

Junior Illinois End Receives Promotion

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 18 (AP).—Paul Milosevich, junior who made the round trip from left end to halfback and return early this season, was promoted to a varsity flank spot as the Illinois eleven started drills today for the season's finale with Iowa.

Tubbs Rolls 170 Game in Pin League

Nine Spares Help Toward Set of 397; Mehler Is High

Lloyd Tubbs, Arlington Postoffice team of the Clarendon Commercial A loop, was the hot shot of the mapleway with a high game of 170 and set of 397 last night. Tubbs had nine spares in his high game. Dick Johnson, Macabees, was second high man for the fourth consecutive week with a 365 set. The Arlington Postoffice lads, helped by Tubbs' highs, took team honors with a league record game of 616 and set of 1,679. Jepson, Toggery Shop, had a near high set of 380.

Ice Palace

Joan Bransford, Woodpeckers, again was queen of the Ice Palace mapleways, rolling high for game and set of 129-355, helping her quintet to team highs of 498 and a record-breaking set of 1,419. The Doves and Orioles, however, tied the Woodpeckers' game pinfall.

Silver Spring

Charlie Mehler, Tastee Diner, dished out individual highs of 153 and 384 to lead all the rollers in the Silver Spring-Georgia Avenue meet. Coffman Realty took team game with 595 but had to see Sanford's, Inc., win the set honors with 1701. Hot Shoppes whitewashed their opponent to go above Willis Builders and take over second place.

Convention Hall

Art Crown, Harry E. Nau, crowned himself with high game and set for individuals in the Merchants's meet taking 146-395 to win. The Thos. Somerville quintet's highs of 619-1763 licked the Southern Dairies five in all three games, knocking the latter out of leadoff position while the Valley Forge lads jumped from fourth place to top standing by taking the odd contest from Washington Tobacco.

BROOKLAND

The Mount Pleasant boys in the Odd Fellows loop usurped all the highs for the night with Earl Steele taking the game with 136 as Sid Lowdermilk, a 104-average man, went wild to garner set honors with a splendid 382. Eastern had pinfall of 586 to get team game high while Friendship No. 1 took 1,689 pins to lead in set. Golden Rule won the odd game from Friendship No. 2 and now is out in front by five games with 23-4.

COLUMBIA

The boys of the Petroleum League found that Vernon Swiger, Colonial Fuel, was high man for game with 139 while Doyle, Ott's Service Station, was sparking his team to highs of 591 and 1,628 with his own high set for the night of 357. Esso Extra still leads the league followed by Ott's Service Station, Wayne Oil Burner and York Fuel in the order named.

TAKOMA

Osborne, Catholic No. 1, was high individual scorer in the Takoma Church meet with game of 136 and set of 368. Presbyterian No. 1 had the best team on the drives, taking highs with 546-1,608. Catholic No. 1 leads the pack with 20-7, followed by Catholic No. 2, 15-12, and Presbyterian No. 1 with 13-14.

Caliente Rules Off Turfman In Ringer Case

Attempt Made to Run 5-Year-Old Mare As 3-Year-Old Fails

By the Associated Press

Agua Caliente, Mexico, Nov. 18.—George W. Schilling, presiding steward at the Caliente race track, said today Riley Hiser had been "ruled off the turf for life" for attempting to race an aged mare as a 3-year-old yesterday.

A statement issued by track officials said Hiser bought the mare at Phoenix, Ariz., this fall.

Schilling said the horse was entered in the first race as Miss Rythm, but Al Morgan and L. J. Carroll, Caliente officials, discovered the mare's markings failed to check satisfactorily with the Jockey Club identification papers, and the horse was ordered scratched. Schilling said the club veterinarian certified the horse was at least 5 years old.

All money wagered on the horse, which club officials said appeared in large amounts from various parts of the country, was refunded.

Schilling said the mare had been ordered branded "ringer" on the left hip, and that all racing associations had been advised of the action.

A Caliente spokesman said the barring of Hiser and the horse would be effective on all North American tracks because of the border plant's compliance with regulations of the New York Jockey Club, the virtual ruling body of racing.

A track representative said he did not know Hiser's home address.

have tied up the Western Division. "Good old Steve Owen," George enthused. "He really helped us on that one."

We asked him about the report, written here a couple of weeks ago, and since denied vigorously, that Bert Bell, of the Eagles was going to draft Tommy Harmon and then sell dickering rights to Tommy to Halas.

"I'm seeing Bell later tonight," Halas said, "but I'm not sure we'll talk about that. Yes, we do have a deal brewing. But it's too early to talk about. I think Tommy will play pro ball, even though he says he wants to be a radio announcer. I tell him he can do both, and help his radio business by keeping his name before the public.

"That fellow will make a great pro. He weighs 195, is one of the greatest runners I ever saw, and he's a wonderful defensive man. Don't let anybody tell you differently."

You don't hear much about Halas as a coach, compard to, for instance, Warner or Sutherland or Crisler or Little, but for 20 years he has coached some of the greatest teams ever assembled. We asked him, therefore, why he was unable to contrive a defense that would stop Baugh.

"We stopped him today," George protested indignantly. "He completed only 11 of his 17 passes! That's practically stopping Baugh cold, or coming as close to stopping him as any team ever will come. The man just happens to be the greatest football pitcher who ever lived. There's nothing nobody can do to cool him off."

Oasis Wins Princess Anne Purse at Bowie, Paying $9.40

Jessie Gladys Beaten Out Half Length

Comes Up Fast Down Stretch to Defeat Early Morn; Daily Double Pays $267.50

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Bowie, Md., Nov. 18.—Carrying feather weight of 100 pounds in the person of Apprentice Jockey W. Canning, the Howe Stable's Oasis, winner of her last start at Pimlico, came back today to make it two victories in a row by taking the Princess Anne Purse, featuring the Monday program—Wash Day for the favorite players. The daughter of Lucullite and Orissa won with speed in reserve despite the fact that Canning had her only three parts of a length in advance of Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Jessie Gladys at the end of the 6 furlongs. Two and a half lengths farther back came the Tall Trees Stable's Early Morn to be third. George D. Widener's Thorn Apple failed to get up a gallop and finished in fifth position in the field of eight.

Oasis was only lukewarm in the betting and paid her backers $9.40 for each $2 investment. She turned in good time for the track, being clocked in 1:12 4-5. Perfect racing weather prevailed and a crowd of 8,000 reported for the day's action.

Thorn Apple was first to come out of the starting gate, but dropped back in the first few jumps. Glorious Time and Oasis had a slight tussle before the latter assumed a good lead. Bright Trace was running forwardly as the field went into the far turn. Then Glorious Time began to fade and Oasis opened a long advantage. But Jessie Gladys rallied and moved up menacingly. Canning hand rode Oasis until he was satisfied his challenger was safe and then eased up approaching the wire.

The daily double paid $267.50 when S. Brooks' Crack Favor completed the transaction by annexing the second ace, another sprint of six furlongs. Crack Favor came around horses to better his position and won by a half length in a drive that saw Dorothy Pomp second and Drift Along third. The winner paid $8.50.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HIGH NAME, $19.20, $10.40, $7.10; BUBBLE LIL, $8.50, $7.60; HI-LIGHT, $9.70.

HIGH NAME, off in the first flight, saved ground, responded gamely when placed to a drive, came through on the inside and won going away. BUBBLE LIL was hard used while racing with HI-LIGHT, but held on gamely although no match for the winner. HI-LIGHT had something taken out of her getting to the top and was weakening at the end. ONE TIP was a forward factor early and tired. ORANO SALTIS closed some ground.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:04. Off at 2:06. Winner, S. Brooks' br. c. (3), by Crack Brigade—In Favour. Trained by J. M. Brooks. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14⅘.

DOMINICA	(Ross)	110	8	11	12	12	12	12		139.80

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CRACK FAVOR, $8.50, $5.80, $3.40; DOROTHY POMP, $7.30, $3.70; DRIFT ALONG, $3.10.

CRACK FAVOR, sent up on the outside to gain contention leaving the backstretch, responded willingly to a drive and held on with good courage at the end while under strong handling. DOROTHY POMP was in the thick of contention from the start and fought it out with good courage. DRIFT ALONG was away slowly, came wide to move up entering the stretch and closed fastest of all on the outside. BLABLAH was rushed to the front and weakened in the closing test. RODIEF was a forward factor early and tired.

Daily Double, HIGH NAME and CRACK FAVOR, Paid $267.50

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 2-year-old maidens. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:32. Off at 2:32½. Winner, Marshal Field, jr.'s ch. f. (2), by Stimulus—Assignation. Trained by F. A. Bonsel, jr. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:14.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STOLEN TRYST, $12.50, $5.30, $3.70; MACHREE, $3.90, $2.80; RODIA, $5.20.

STOLEN TRYST raced SARAN into defeat to take command and shook off MACHREE to be opening a gap at the end. MACHREE was well placed on the outside from the start, moved up menacingly in midstretch and hung thereafter. RODIA was off well, could not keep up early and closed with good energy. SWYNSTAN closed some ground. SARAN was hard ridden to set the early pace and weakened gradually after being displaced.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:59. Off at 2:59. Winner, R. McKee's b. m. (6), by High Cloud—Saras Ginger. Trained by G. C. Brenton. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:47⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAECLOUD, $9.10, $4.70, $3.70; ACE CALL, $9.40, $4.90; MAD SWEEP, $4.20.

MAECLOUD, steadied while closest to the early pace of HAZEL W., took the lead when called upon, drew out and won with speed in reserve. ACE CALL, lacked speed to keep up early, saved ground to the backstretch, came out for racing room and closed with good energy. MAD SWEEP was off slowly, improved his position gradually and showed a good effort. CATTISTOCK was well placed early, moved up menacingly, but weakened in the closing stages. DARBY DU closed full of run.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,400. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:26. Off at 3:27. Winner, Howe Stable's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OASIS, $9.40, $6.10, $3.40; JESSIE GLADYS, $7.70, $4.10; EARLY MORN, $2.60.

OASIS forged to the front at once, shook off GLORIOUS TIME, drew out and was confidently handled while winning easily. JESSIE GLADYS, slow to set under way, came to the outside to improve her position and closed gamely, but was no match for the winner. EARLY MORN raced forwardly from the start and tired in the stretch run. SOLDIERETTE was off slowly and closed willingly. BRIGHT TRACE had early speed and faltered. THORNAPPLE raced in poor fashion.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:54. Off at 3:57½. Winner, James W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GREBE, $39.20, $11.00, $8.30; MAYDIG, $4.20, $3.30; TRUE KNIGHTESS, $5.90.

GREBE was steadied while racing in the first flight, came out when placed to a drive approaching the stretch and drew out in the final stages. MAYDIG forced and set the pace along with TRUE KNIGHTESS and held on gamely, but could not resist the winner. TRUE KNIGHTESS had keen speed while setting the pace and was tiring at the end. PRINCE DEREK saved ground and closed gamely along the rail. WOODBERRY was outrun to the stretch and closed with a mild rush.

SEVENTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:23. Off at 4:23. Winner, M. J. Myers' br. g. (9), by Blue Pete—Dark Flight. Trained by J. Y. Christmas. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 2:04.

Famous Old-Time Baseball Hurler Dies

New Brunswick, N. J., Nov 18 (AP).—John (Pa) Harkins, 81, one of the last surviving big-time baseball players of the '80's, died at his home today after an illness of several months.

Harkins pitched for Cleveland, Brooklyn and Baltimore from 1884 to 1888 and was the hurling half of the famous Cleveland battery, Harkins-Bushong, which thrilled fans back in 1884.

Selections at Bowie

Dear Al:

Jockey W. L. Taylor told me that his chances of riding at Charles Town are good. He has his heart set on being the Nation's leading rider of 1940. At present, he is a winner or two behind Earl Dew, the West Coast sensation. There is some controversy over the exact standing of the rivals. Taylor hopes to take a lead at this meeting over Dew, who is riding at Bay Meadows. However, Taylor says that if his lead doesn't look safe at the end of Bowie, he will go to Charles Town. His presence would be a welcome addition to the riding colony at the popular West Virginia track which opens December 2. Taylor is from Houston, Tex. He did most of his riding this year at New England tracks. Those who saw him make Sir Marlboro "come again" to win last Saturday's Lynch Handicap will attest to his riding ability. There is a first-flight veteran trainer here who could be a lot of help to an owner. He is W. H. Brooks, father-in-law of Jockey Johnny Shanks. Brooks has been in charge of a division of horses for Preston Burch and has saddled 15 winners. If you can use him, let me know. Jockey Georgie Woolf, the country's tops when it comes to "money riding," packed his tack and left for California with Mrs. Woolf. When he left Woolf said he hoped to ride Challedon in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap next March. There has been talk that Johnny Longden would take over the riding for the Brann Stable. Longden is a friend of Don Cameron, who succeeded Lou Schaefer as the Brann trainer. Asked if Longden would be given the mount on Challedon, Owner Brann said he had no comment on the subject at this time. He did say that he was pleased with Challedon's rides this year with the exception of that in the Narrag

Eastern Air Lines Reports $58,295 Net

Taxes, New Equipment Blamed for Quarterly Earnings Drop

By the Associated Press

Eastern Air Lines, Inc., reported yesterday net profit for the September quarter of $58,295, or 10 cents a share, compared with $93,424, or 17 cents a share, in the like 1939 period.

Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, president, attributed the decline in earnings to adjustments in the Federal income tax under the excess profits law, to the addition of new equipment in preparation for the coming winter season and to at least $75,000 added expense for a "strenuous training program" of ground and flying personnel.

Net profit in the first nine months of this year was $79,221, or $1.41 a share, compared with $456,841, or 81 cents a share, in the like 1939 period.

Bulova Watch Co.

Bulova Watch Co. and subsidiaries reported for the September quarter, partly on the basis of estimates, net profit of $817,799, or $2.52 a share, compared with $715,501, or $2.20 a share, in the like 1939 period.

Lion Oil Refining Co.

Lion Oil Refining Co. reported net profit for the first nine months of 1940 of $977,538, or $2.24 a common share, compared with $380,938, or 87 cents a share, in the like 1939 period.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co., and domsetic subsidiaries reported for the quarter ended September 30 net profits of $438,158, after excess profits tax, or 78 cents a share of common stock. Earnings of all foreign subsidiaries were excluded. This compared with $288,652, or 33 cents a common share, including all foreign subsidiaries except German in the same 1939 period.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 18 (AP).—The wheat market was thrown for a loss today by selling to take profits or "hedge" small amounts of cash grain brought out of storage.

After an early advance of ⅝ cent, the market slumped more than a cent and closed at the session's low point, ⅝@⅞ cent lower than Saturday, with December 88⅞@88¾, May 88¼@88½.

Corn closed unchanged to ¼ lower; December 64⅝; May, 65; oats, ½@¾ off; rye, ¾@¾ down; soybeans, ⅛@¼ higher, and lard unchanged to 3 lower.

On the early bulge July wheat, May and July corn, December oats, and all soybeans contracts established new highs for the season.

Factors encouraging acceptance of profits and evening up of accounts in wheat included the uneven trend of securities, failure of milling demand to expand according to expectations of some interests and uncertainty regarding the level at which more wheat now held off the market would be offered. Scattered amounts of "free" wheat were reported sold, but there were no signs of any loosening up of supplies under loan despite the fact that prices are above loan rates.

Business is booming in Washington according to latest available figures on various business indicators, with every one of the indicators showing a gain for the month over the corresponding period of 1939. Most of the figures reflect October sales, although Government employment and pay roll and gasoline consumption statistics are for September.

Latest figures for Government employment in Washington show 166,440 persons employed here. This includes District of Columbia government employes. The figure for the same month of 1939 was only 145,821. The pay roll rose 12 per cent from $25,777,437 for September, 1939, to $28,897,094 for September, 1940.

The increase of more than $3,000,000 a month in income paid to Washington's Government workers was reflected immediately in October's sales. Department store sales rose 15 per cent and retail furniture sales went up 9 per cent.

There were 3,174 new passenger cars sold in the District in October, an increase of 43 per cent over the 2,217 cars sold during the same month last year. New commercial car sales were also up, from 181 to 236, a gain of 30 per cent. Used car sales and stocks both rose, sales up 23 per cent and stocks up 4 per cent. At the end of October automobile dealers had sold 3,365 used cars and had a stock on hand of 2,768. Gasoline consumption was up 12 per cent, from 12,283,880 gallons to 13,740,512 gallons, not including Government purchases.

More houses were built and more electricity used. Residential building was up 30 per cent, to $4,272,960—an increase of almost exactly a million dollars over October of 1939. Kilowatt hours sales went up from less than 64 million to over 70 million.

Bank clearings jumped 25 per cent, from $108,232,399 in October, 1939, to $135,619,533 in October, 1940.

Du Pont Votes Dividend of $1.75 a Share

By the Associated Press

Directors of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. yesterday declared a year-end dividend of $1.75 a common share, payable December 14 to holders of record November 25. The payment will bring 1940 disbursements to $7 a share, same as paid in 1939.

Directors of the Christiana Securities Co. of Delaware, an investing company controlled by the du Pont interests. Declared a dividend of $34.75 a share on the common stock, payable December 16 to holders of record November 25. The concern paid $33.25 a share each in September, June and March of this year. In 1939 the dividends totaled $136.60 a share. As of December 31, 1939, the company held over 3,000,000 shares of E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co. common stock and other securities.

Bulova Watch Co.

Directors of Bulova Watch Co. declared an extra dividend of $1 a share on common stock in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents, both payable December 14 to holders of record December 6. Extras of 50 cents each were disbursed in March and a year ago.

Brunswick-Balke-Collender

Directors of Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. declared a dividend of $1.25 a share on common stock, payable December 16 to stockholders of record December 5. Previous devidends this year were 25 cents payed on March 15, 50 cent on June 15 and $1 on September 16. In 1939 a total of $2.75 a share was paid.

Dixie-Vortex Co.

Directors of Dixie-Vortex Co., declared a dividend of 25 cents a share on common stock, payable December 19 to stockholders of record December 5. A similar dividend was paid last May 15.

Chicago Livestock

Chicago, Nov. 18 (AP).—A moderate run of hogs sold 10 cents higher today, lifting the top to $6.35. Cattle sold steady to 25 cents lower, an excessive supply of medium and good grades acting as the bearish influence. Lambs were weak to 25 cents lower.

Salable receipts amounted to 17,000, but packers had a like amount billed directly. Best wholesale pork loins were quoted at $14.50 per hundredweight.

Choice steers and yearlings in moderate supply sold steady, with the early top at $14.25, and some held above $14.50. Other grades were weak to 25 cents lower, with some bids 25 cents or more off.

(U. S. Virginian May Head Lackawanna Railroad

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Sun today said it had learned that William White, vice president and general manager of the Virginia Railway Co., would become president of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Co. January 1, succeeding John M. Davis. White lives in Norfolk.

Davis, a veteran rail executive, is expected to fill the long vacant post of chairman of the board of the Lackawanna System. He entered railroad service in 1889, and has been head of the Lackawanna since 1925. He is 69 years old.

Business Failures Fewer in Week

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Business failures in the week ended November 14 dropped sharply during the latest week to a level some 22 per cent below that held during recent weeks, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. The total was 203, compared with 256 in the previous week and 308 in the like 1939 week.

Sugar Futures

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—World sugar futures advanced 1 to 2 points today on a general covering movement touched off by trade absorption of 10d December delivery notices. Sales totaled 13,600 tons; December, 74 bid; January, 79 nominal.

The domestic list ended unchanged to 1 point up, but turnover amounted to only 2,100 tons.

In the raw market offerings were limited to 1941 quota sugars at 2.85@2.90 cents a pound on a delivered basis.

Refined locally stayed at 4.35@4.45 cents a pound.

Boston Wool

Boston, Nov. 18 (AP) (U. S. Dept of Agri.). Occasional inquiries were being received today for domestic wools in Boston. Sales consisted mostly of small lots of original-bag fine territory wools at 1.03@1.08 for wools running good French combing length, and 1.00@1.02 for wools running mostly average to short French combing lengths. Very little interest was shown in medium grades of fleece or territory wools.

A. T. & T. Plans New Financing Program in '41

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 18.—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. may undertake a large new financing program for increased construction next year and to refund $95,000,000 of 5½ per cent debentures, financial circles reported today.

Except for re-financing operations, American Telephone has been out of the capital market since 1930.

Industrial expansion and defense needs, it was estimated, might boost the capital budget for 1941 to around $400,000,000 compared with about $350,000,000 this year and $314,000,000 in 1939.

Financing plans were expected to be influenced by bond market conditions, which have become more favorable to corporate flotations.

The debentures mentioned for refunding are callable at 100 on 60 days' notice on or after May 1.

Among the latest corporate financing projects is a $22,500,000 refunding by Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line Co.

J. D. Creveling, president, said Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line proposed to offer publicly $12,000,000 first mortgage 3 per cent bonds, due 1960, and to sell privately to a group of insurance companies and banks $11,250,000 of first mortgage bonds and serial notes.

The proceeds, totaling $23,250,000, would be used to repay $22,500,000 outstanding 4 per cent bonds, redeemable at 102½ per cent of face value, plus accrued interest.

Directors of Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., declared the regular quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share on preferred stock, payable December 31, to stockholders of record December 14. The regular quarterly dividend of 17½ cents a share on common stock, payable December 14 to stockholders of record December 5, also was declared.

Sales Drop, Net Rises

In his report to stockholders, President Joseph T. Mackey of the Mergenthaler Linotype Co. said that net sales declined about $800,000 in the year ended September 30 and that improvement in earnings resulted from the curtailment of operating expenses.

As previously reported, Mergenthaler showed net income of $41,451 during the year, against a loss of $225,027 in the preceding year.

Bank Plans for Defense

P. D. Houston, president of the American Bankers Association, said yesterday that he would announce soon the appointment of a Nation-wide committee with members in each of the twelve Federal Reserve Districts, whose duty it would be to promote increased participation of banks in the defense program and to assist banks in the development of ways in which to obtain loans to be used in the manufacture of defense goods.

Mr. Houston said that an A. B. A. committee would issue a bulletin soon explaining in detail the process of handling loans made under such assignments.

Week's Bank Loans Rise $68,000,000

By the Associated Press

Defense-stimulated business extended its bank borrowings last week for the seventh consecutive week.

The Federal Reserve Board said that banks of 101 leading cities expanded their commercial, industrial and agricultural loans in the week-end November 13 by $68,000,000. In the last seven weeks, they had increased their loans in this field by $320,000,000 to a total of $4,895,000,000, or $533,000,000 more than a year ago.

Principal increases last week were $23,000,000 in New York City and $15,000,000 in the Chicago Federal Reserve District.

Steels Higher as General Market Loafs; Movements Irregular in Narrow Range

New York, Nov. 18.—A few steels, utilities and specialties edged up in today's stock market but the list as a whole lacked driving power.

Prices were best in the forenoon with gains ranging from fractions to a point or so for favorites. Dealings were slack from the start and the majority of leaders erased the greater part of their improvement in the final hour. Small variations either way ruled at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended up .1 of a point at 45.5. A month ago the composite stood at 44.4. Transfers of 574,050 shares were the lowest for a full session since October 28. They compared with 1,050,090 last Friday.

Speculative quarters still found some comfort in the generally cheerful business outlook, brokers said, and a little morning support came in on the idea last week's reaction may have been sufficient "correction" of the lengthy advance to put the market in a healthier technical position. The sketchy character of the war news failed to provide much stimulus for either the bulls or bears.

The steel group received a little encouragement from the estimate of the American Iron and Steel Institute placing this week's mill operations at 96.6 per cent of capacity, a new record top and an increase of .5 of a point from last week. The question persisted, though, regarding the heavy building up of inventories by private consumers which, conceivably, may have to be reckoned with later on.

Stocks finishing with plus signs included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of N. J., Kennecott, Westinghouse, Certain-teed common and preferred, Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak.

In arrears were General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Santa Fe, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, American Can, Du Pont, Union Carbide, Johns Manville and Sears Roebuck.

Montgomery Ward was off nearly a point in the wake of the company's earnings statement disclosing a drop in third quarter and nine months' net compared with a year ago. Sharply mounting axes were blamed for the recessions.

Bonds and commodities were spotty. Wheat at Chicago lost ⅝ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel and corn was unchanged to down ¼. Cotton pushed up 45 to 55 cents a bale.

Among Curb gainers were Aluminum of America, Cities Service, American Gas, Bell Aircraft, Gulf Oil and Brewster Aero. Minor declines were posted for Humble Oil, Electric Bond & &Share, American Cyanamid "B," Lake Shore and N. J. Zinc. Volume here was around 100,000 shares versus 172,000 in the preceding five-hour session.

Week's Steel Rate To Set New High

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Nation's steel mills will boost operating schedules this week to 96.6 per cent of capacity, which represents the highest actual production on record and the eighth consecutive weekly advance, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

This was a rise of one-half point over the preceding week. A month ago output was 94.9 per cent of capacity and a year ago 93.9 per cent.

U. S. Held Safe From Invasion For Five Years

War Will End in Draw After Fall of India, News Expert Predicts

"There is no possibility of a United States' invasion for at least the next five years," Leonard Engel, foreign correspondent and military expert for PM, yesterday told members of the Service Guild of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, at 816 Enghth Street Northwest.

Hitler cannot even cross the English Channel, much less the Atlantic Ocean, he explained. "This is because there is no military operation as difficult as landing on a fortified hostile shore."

A correspondent in France during the early stages of the war, the speaker said, that the only way such an invasion can be successful is through "absolute mastery of the air."

Holds U. S. Navy Superior

And any invasion of this country by sea would be virtually impossible because "we have the best navy in the world," he continued. Its superiority over the much-publicized British navy lies in superior ships and more and bigger heavy guns, Engle claimed. "Twenty years ago we began using heavier armor than any foreign nation is using even now."

As for the Japanese navy, "it was built for action in home waters and has too short a cruising range to be dangerous," he said, adding that Hawaii is "the most heavily fortified piece of real estate in the world, and must be reduced before any effective invasion."

"Neither Side Will Win"

He told the Jewish women's organization that the war would probably last another four or five years and "neither side will win, as it would be difficult for England to defeat Germany as for Hitler to transport equipment across the Channel for a victory."

Engel concluded with a prediction that the Germans will soon drive through the Near East to conquer India by way of Turkey. "That will constitute a major defeat," he asserted, "greater even than the fall of France." But, he added, England will not give in.

The Willkies Relax at Last

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

FAR FROM POLITICS AND BUSINESS—Wendell L. Willkie, tireless campaigner for the Presidency, and his wife started a two-week vacation yesterday on Jupiter Island, Hobe Sound, Fla. They relaxed in the patio of the home, where they will stay on Indian River, a stone's throw from the Atlantic Ocean.

Jones Announces RFC Plan To Finance Defense Plants

Interest Rates Will Range From 1½ To 4 Per Cent, He Makes Known In Letter to War and Navy Departments

Jesse H. Jones announced yesterday that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was prepared to arrange financing for defense industries at interest rates ranging from 1½ to 4 per cent.

JONES

Jones, the Federal Loan Administrator, said in a letter to the War and Navy Departments:

"It is desirable that banks finance as much of the defense program as they can handle properly, but where credit is extended upon a definite agreement for reimbursement by the War and Navy Departments the interest rate should bear some relation to a Government guaranteed obligation."

He added that where either department definitely undertakes reimbursement over a period of five years, the RFC "either directly or through banks or the Defense Plant Corporation, will arrange or adjust such financing at an interest rate of 1½ per cent per annum on payments made within the period . . . Where there is no definite undertaking for reimbursement by the War or Navy Department, the interest rate will be appropriate to the credit factors of the individual case, but not more than 4 per cent."

1,000 Plane Motors Planned Per Month

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Engines designed specifically for use in swift interceptor pursuit planes are expected to be rolling off the production line of an Indianapolis factory at the rate of 1,000 a month by November, 1941, the General Motors Corp. announced tonight.

The statement on the output of its Allison division was the first made by the corporation since the stepping up of production on the heels of a lesson taught by the European war—that the liquid-cooled engine apparently was dominating the fighting plane field.

The output of the Allison Co. is doubly important to American defense because it manufactures the only engine of its type presently available for pursuit planes built here for the Army Air Corps and for the Royal Air Force.

The intereceptor pursuit is the type of plane being used by the R. A. F. in the battle of Britain.

Frank Acts to Help Investment Men

Chairman Jerome N. Frank of the Securities Commission yesterday announced a plan to help investment bankers and investment trusts to keep tabs on financing possibilities in the defense program.

He told reporters after a meeting with an investment group that the SEC would appoint an employe for the contact work. He explained that the investment men wanted to know what, if any, business they could do in connection with the defense program, and said, "we want to help them in any way we can."

Frank said no complaints had been raised at the meeting against Government financing of defense industry through the RFC. He added that he thought yesterday's group was interested primarily in a different type of financing than is done by the RFC, but he had promised to arrange a meeting between the group and Jesse Jones.

Last Rites Today For W. L. Wilmeth, Md. City Official

Funeral services for Warner L. Wilmeth, 65, town commissioner of Cottage City, Md., will be held today at the Lee funeral home, Fourth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northeast, at 2 p. m.

Mr. Wilmeth had been in the Government service for more than 40 years. At the time of his death, he was an estate examiner in the Internal Revenue Bureau.

He was a member of Chillum Castle Lodge, No. 186, of Masons, and had long been active in town civic matters.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Berta E. Wilmeth.

Negotiations to Resume In Telephone Strike

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 18.—Representatives of the local telephone company, the National Labor Relations Board, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers will resume negotions tomorrow afternoon in regard to the 12-day-old strike of 22 employes of the company.

The strike began November 7 when 20 employes walked out, charging the company with violation of the wage and hour law. They charge that this was done through manipulation of figures when their wage scale was changed last December. They are asking for a 40-hour week.

Telephone officials deny any violation of the wage-hour law.

Mr. Yowell is well known as a landscape gardener and for his activity in Methodist Church circles.

Britain to Ask 50 Destroyers More of U. S.

Lothian to Appeal To Roosevelt, Say Informed Sources

By Walter Fitzmaurice.
International News Service Staff Writer

Britain, its trans-Atlantic "life line" menaced by German submarines off the Western Irish Coast, will shortly ask the United States for 50 more overage destroyers to convoy its merchant shipping from Western Hemisphere ports, it was learned last night.

British Ambassador Lord Lothian will appeal to President Roosevelt or Secretary Hull for the destroyers' transfer upon his return from London, informed sources said.

To prepare the ground, these sources understood, the William Allen White committee for aid to Britain in the next few days will represent as imperative the bolstering of British seapower if the island's winter supplies of food, fuel and munitions are to be maintained.

Convoys Inadequate

Naval experts here acknowledged that Britain's transatlantic convoys have been inadequately guarded of late, notwithstanding the release of British seapower from Western Atlantic blockade duty by augmentation of the United States neutrality patrol.

Inadequacy of convoy protection was revealed, the experts said, when the "suicide" armed merchantman, Jervis Bay, was compelled single handed to engage a German pocket battleship to cover the escape of a score of unarmed freighters 300 miles off the Irish Coast a fortnight ago.

British cruisers and destroyers, which relinquished to the United States neutrality patrol surveillance of French warships at Martinique and German freighters in Caribbean and Mexican ports, have been requisitioned for English Channel and Mediterranean service, the experts understood.

Signals Off Tampico

In that connection, naval quarters tonight acknowledged it was probably "warring signals" flashed from United States destroyers to a "British ship" that caused one German crew to scuttle ship off Tampico, and sent three others scurrying back to port last Saturday.

Defense strategists here, while professing utmost sympathy with the British need, indicated the transfer of any more destroyers will be opposed by influential Administration quarters as dangerously impairing maintenance of a balanced fleet.

Official Navy tables list a total of 159 destroyers now in commission, of which 75 are overage. Transfer of 50 to Britain would reduce the number in commission, therefore, to 109.

180 Called Minimum

Naval experts maintain, however, that the scouting, screening and convoy service of a 15-battleship fleet, such as the United States maintains, requires a minimum of 180 destroyers.

The current ship construction program is producing new ones, but too slow to fill the gap should an incident in the Far East, Caribbean or Canal Zone plunge the United States into war, the experts say.

In lieu of the destroyers, experts contend, Britain could improvise an anti-submarine defense by converting some freighters into small aircraft tenders and others for the discharge of depth bombs.

Dillard Renamed To Va. Council

Richmond, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Attorney General A. P. Staples said today he was reappointing A. Fleet Dillard as attorney for the Virginia legislation advisory council in accordance with a recommendation from the council at a meeting here last week.

Dillard has served heretofore by appointment of the council itself, but under an amendment to the 1941-42 appropriation act all attorneys employed by State agencies were made subject to appointment by the attorney general.

The amendment was one of a group vetoed by Gov. Price but subsequently upheld by the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Housing Lack Hampers Va. Vocational Classes

Richmond, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Dr. Sidney B. Hall, State superintendent of public instruction, reports that the Virginia program of vocational training for national defense is being hampered by "a severe lack of housing."

Funds, he explained, are available for equipment, instructors, light, heat, etc., and said "it is hoped that local communities will find some solution to the housing problem for vocational classes." More than 7,000 Virginia men and boys are already enrolled in courses.

Former Pastor Dies

DR. GEORGE F. DUDLEY

Dr. G. F. Dudley, Retired Rector Here, Dies

Served St. Stephen's And Incarnation Church 43 Years

The Rev. Dr. George Fiske Dudley, rector emeritus of the St. Stephen's and Incarnation Church, 1527 Newton street northwest, died last night in Garfield Hospital.

Dr. Dudley, who for 43 years served as pastor of the church before retiring in 1936, had entered the hospital last August for an abdominal condition.

When Dr. Dudley was named rector of the newly formed St. Stephen's parish in 1893, it had less than 50 families. The parish contained more than 500 families when he retired four year ago. His entire service in the Episcopal ministry had been devoted to that one parish.

Most of the former rector's parishioners and scores of other friends attended a farewell testimonial to Dr. Dudley and his wife December 30, 1938, and heard leaders of the Episcopal Church praise him as a model of clerical devotion, loyalty, helpfulness, and leadership.

Before entering the hospital here, he had been living at Rumson, N. J.

Seventy-three-year-old, Dr. Dudley was born in Indiana, and came to Washington after obtaining his degree at Oxford University. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mamie Mitchell Dudley, and a son, John F. Dudley, both of Rumson.

Welfare Problem Seen Nonexistent In Tidewater Va.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Dr. William H. Stauffer, State welfare commissioner, returned to his office today after an inspection tour through the Tidewater area and said that he found no welfare problem there as the result of the concentrated population caused by the defense program.

The problem, he said, lies somewhere in the future when the emergency work is completed. Then, he stated, there may be unemployment and the problem may become somewhat serious.

At present most of those who have moved into the Hampton Roads section, he said, have jobs and are fully capable of caring for themselves and their families.

Sewerage Bonds Issue Approved in Madison

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 18.—The bond issue of $12,500 for construction of a sewerage system at Madison Courthouse, in the adjoining county of Madison, passed overwhelmingly at an election last week-end.

The system will cost, according to engineering estimate, about $30,000 and will be financed with the bonds and with an outright grant from the Government, under WPA, of over 70 per cent of the total cost.

Shift of Juvenile Delinquents To Prisons Illegal, Laws Rules

Writ of Habeas Corpus Is Granted O'Bryant Who Was Sent to National Training School, but Removed to Lorton

Removal of juvenile wrongdoers from reform schools to penal institutions was declared unlawful yesterday by Justice Bolitha J. Laws, of the District Court.

Justice Laws granted a writ of habeas corpus to Emory O'Bryant, 18, who was convicted by the Juvenile Court of stealing three cases of whisky in January, 1939. Judge Fay L. Bentley ordered the youth held at the National Training School for Boys until he was 21.

Eight months after he was sent to the training school the youth was transferred to Lorton Reformatory by order of the Attorney General. John T. Bonner, attorney, called this "horrible treatment," declared that the youth was "forced to do hard labor beside murderers, arsonists and rapists."

Justice Laws last week ordered a study of the Attorney General's authority in such a case. Yesterday Assistant Attorney General Alexander Holtzoff appeared and argued that the power to transfer all Federal prisoners is vested in the Department of Justice. The training school, said Holtzoff, was placed under the department's control by the second governmental reorganization act.

Justice Laws, however, adhered to the view he previously expressed, that the purpose of the juvenile penal system is to keep youngsters away from older criminals.

"It appears to me," Justice Laws remarked, "that the Juvenile Court law placed the matter of conviction and incarceration of juveniles entirely in the hands of the Juvenile Court judge and her director of social welfare.

"There is nothing in that law whereby the judgment of the Attorney General is to be substituted for the judgment of the Juvenile Court judge."

Holtzoff indicated that the department would appeal the ruling.

Baptist Work Suffers Abroad, Dr. Lewis Says

Clerics Mobilized In Armies, Churches Destroyed by War

Christian work in Europe is suffering as a result of the war, Dr. W. O. Lewis, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, last night told the sixty-third annual meeting of the District of Columbia Baptist Convention at its opening session in Grace Baptist Church. Dr. Lewis, who recently returned to the United States after 20 years in Europe, spoke on "Our Baptist Brethren in Warring Lands."

"Many churches of all denominations have been destroyed by bombs," he said. "Although we do not have full reports, we know enough to know that Baptist work in Europe has suffered great losses since the outbreak of the war. Many ministers of the gospel have been mobilized, as very few countries in Europe exempt clergymen from military service."

It has become increasingly difficult, he said, to pay salaries of pastors and to continue church work. Missionaries sent to non-Christian lands from Europe receive no help from their supporting boards. Churches have been destroyed or damaged in London and in French, Belgian, Finnish and Norwegian cities.

The Rev. M. Chandler Stith, pastor of Brookland Baptist Church, said that although "there is prevalent everywhere wrong-headed and wrong-hearted nationalism," there was hope that a new and better world may come from the present turmoil. Such a world would not come, he said, "from the achievement of man but from the power of God, who is still a wonder-working God."

The convention, whose theme is "Advance Along All Fronts," opened with the Doxology and an invocation by Dr. Hubert Bunyea. Scripture was read by the Rev. J. Ray Garrett, of Second Baptist Church; prayer was offered by Dr. Grove G. Johnson, of National Baptist Memorial Church, and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Len F. Stevens, of Kendall Baptist Church.

Two Brothers Held in $3,500 Auto Thefts

Two brothers were arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage here yesterday on five charges of grand larceny in connection with the theft of automobiles valued at $3,500.

The case was broken after eight months of investigation which led to the tracing of stolen cars in Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina as well as the District.

Auto Squad Detective Sergts. Henry M. Jett, Jacob Wolf and H. D. Robey, who worked on the case with Detective Sheldon Fairchild of the Automobile Underwriter's Association, said the investigation may extend into other States.

Both Waive Hearing

Those arraigned yesterday were Simon Milloff, 34, of 529 Irving Street northwest and his brother Sigmund, 22, of Burke Station, Va. Both waived hearing and were held for the action of the grand jury on $3,000 bond each.

According to police, motors salvaged from late model cars involved in accidents were bought from local junk dealers for about $50, which also gave the brothers title. The motors were then taken to the younger brother's home in Virginia, according to Jett, and transferred to stolen cars. Titles for the motors had been obtained under aliases, so that the brothers would then have the altered vehicles transferred to their own names and driven to North Carolina, where they were sold through advertisements in newspapers.

Prices $500 up

Wolf and Fairchild said they traced the altered vehicles from Greensboro, N. C., where they were sold for prices ranging upwards of $500 each.

Simon was arrested last Thursday and his brother two days later.

Man, 69, Held In Poison Plot

Frederick Degges, 69-year-old carpenter, of 1314 D Street Southeast, will be given a preliminary hearing in Arlington County Court Friday on a charge of attempting to kill his step-daughter with a deadly poison concealed in a gift box of candy.

Mrs. Velma Dunham, 40, of 5212 North Washington Boulevard, Arlington, who received a box of poisoned chocolate-covered cherries in the mail November 5, last night gave thanks for the timely suspicion that kept her from yielding to her "sweet tooth."

According to H. J. Ivy, county bacteriologist, there was enough poison in one of the chocolates to have killed a person. The entire top layer of 1-pound box of candy had been poisoned with pulverized bichloride of mercury tablets, Ivy said.

Apparently, a toothpick had been used to puncture the chocolates and make room for the poison. The tiny holes in the candy were then sealed with a hot blade, it appeared.

Degges was arrested in Washington and turned over to Arlington County authorities, who released him on $1,500 bond for the hearing Friday.

Mrs. Dunham, wife of A. Roy Dunham, pharmacist's mate in the Navy Department, swore to the warrant against her step-father. Mrs. Dunham said her suspicions were based on the handwriting on the candy box. There was no return address or card in the box.

Postal inspectors yesterday conferred with Detective Sergts. Hugh Jones and John Saunders, who are in charge of the county's investigation. The poisoned package, it was learned, was mailed from the Falls Church Postoffice.

U. S. Education Office Accused Of 'Intrigue'

Gained Control of NYA Job Training by 'Craft,' Catholic Priest Says

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 18.—A Catholic priest on the national advisory committee of the National Youth Administration today accused the United States Office of Education of using "undercover intrigue" to gain control of the NYA national defense job training program.

The charge was made by the Rev. E. Roberts Moore, chairman of the New York committee of the NYA and director of the social action division of the New York Catholic Charities at the twenty-sixth annual National Conference of Catholic Charities.

He declared that the Bureau of Education, after being "consistently defeated in its attempts to control the NYA," had succeeded by using a "craftily worded rider" added to the first supplemental civil functions appropriations act as signed by President Roosevelt October 9.

"I propose to talk right out in school," Father Moore said, "about some of the undercover intrigue that has been going on in connection with the national defense program in an endeavor to bolster up the Office of Education of the United States at the expense of thousands and thousands of boys and girls served by the work program of the National Youth Administration and of the whole defense program of the United States."

He contended that a division of administration of the program between the Office of Education and NYA officials would "create confusion," "remove the freedom of experimentation" from NYA, and "deny NYA youths the advantage of related instruction of the job."

He also charged that Catholic and private schools had been ignored in the distribution of the recently appropriated $7,500,000 for NYA job training.

Contract Bridge

H. B. S. wishes to know his best lead against a three no-trump contract with these cards:

♡ 9 8 3
◇ J 8 7 6 2
♣ 9 7 3

"The opponents bid nothing but no trump; my partner and I didn't bid. What was my most favorable lead?"

The nine of hearts seems to be the best lead. Your diamond suit appears to be worthless as you have no entry cards. Yours only hope of setting the contract is to try to develop tricks for your partner. A major suit is preferred over a minor, and the three-card heart siut has more promotional value than the two-card spade suit.

Episcopal Rector At Woodside, Md., To Leave Church

Resignation of the Rev. Richard Aselford, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Woodside, Md., for five years, was announced yesterday.

The Rev. Mr. Aselford said he will remain at the parish until spring unless a successor is named before then.

Former dean of the northern convocation of the Washington Diocese, the Rev. Mr. Aselford came to Silver Spring, Md., from Morristown, N. J., where he was curate of the Church of the Redeemer.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. In re application of Abner William Waldman for change of name. Civil Action No. 8956. Abner William Waldman, having filed a complaint for a judgment changing his name to William A. Forester and having applied to the court for an order of publication of the notice required by law in such cases, it is, by the court, this 15th day of November, 1940, ordered that all persons concerned show cause, if any there be, on or before the 16TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1940, why the prayers of said complaint should not be granted, provided that a copy of this order be published once a week for three consecutive weeks before said day in The Washington Post and the Washington Law Reporter. BOLITHA J. LAWS, Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By ELEANOR E. JOBE, Assistant Clerk. 19.26.3

EDWARD F. COLLADAY and ENOCH A. CHASE, Receivers.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia. William A. Strauch, et al., plaintiff, vs. J. Newton Brewer, trustee, et al., defendant. Equity No. 52995. Order limiting time for filing claims. This cause came on for further hearing October 28, 1940, pursuant to notices heretofore given and orders of adjournment heretofore taken herein, and it appearing to the Court that Edward F. Colladay and Enoch A. Chase, receivers herein, ceased to operate the La Salle Apartments (North Section), located at 1028 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, Washington, D. C., on August 31, 1940, and are desirous of settling their accounts as receivers of the leasehold interest therein, it is by the Court this 1st day of November, 1940, ordered that all persons, firms and corporations, other than those whose rights have been adjudicated by orders heretofore entered herein, having claims against Edward F. Colladay and Enoch A. Chase, as receivers, or against the funds in their possession as such, shall file herein statements of such claims, under oath, which shall include the amount and nature of the claim, and serve a copy thereof on said receivers by delivery at the receivership office, ninth floor, 1331 G Street Northwest, on or before the 30TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1940; and claims so filed and served shall be for consideration and determination by the Court on the 5th day of December, 1940, at ten o'clock a. m., at a hearing hereby set therefor, or as may be then by the Court directed; otherwise such claims shall be forever barred from participation in the funds held by the receivers, and orders may be entered herein on and after said 5th day of December, 1940, for the disposition of funds in the hands of the receivers and discharging the receivers from all liability in respect of such claims; provided a copy of this order be published in the Washington Law Reporter, The Washington Post and the Evening Star once a week for three successive weeks before the said 30th day of November, 1940; and it is further expressly ordered, so that it may be included in said published notice, that holders of notes of Raymond G. Leeth, dated June 15, 1928, formerly secured by deed of trust on said leasehold interest, need not file claims nor take any other action pursuant to this order, except for any interest claimed to be due and unpaid on said notes prior to June 15, 1934. O. R. LUHRING, Justice. A true copy. Test: (Seal.) CHARLES E. STEWART, Clerk. By HARRY M. HULL, Assistant Clerk. 5.12,19

Things I shall remember about radio . . . My first radio endeavor. Supposed to play a juvenile—arriving so hoarse with laryngitis I was recast as an old man. . . . That stifling June day waiting in shirt-sleeves on the Senate steps of the Capitol to join other CBS staff men to broadcast to the world the arrival of King George and Queen Elizabeth.
Speeding along the highway on the morning of September 3—suddenly the despairing voice of Neville Chamberlain breaks the droning monotony to tell an apathetic world that England is at war with Germany—the second time in a generation. . . . Enjoying the realistic hobgoblin artistry Orson Welles prepared for Halloween. Waking to find the papers headlining the mass scare—Invasion from Mars. The strategy of terror—proving America only half listens . . . Cordell Hull comes all the way back from the CBS elevators to say "Goodnight" and shake my hand—the simple graciousness of great men.
Theodore Dreiser jokingly tells one of his best friends and me "You are members of a small group who should be destroyed"—all because we liked Greta Garbo. . . . Eight years and these are some of the things about radio I shall not forget.

Navy Yard Denies Machinists' Charge

Defense Program Unhampered by Pay Scale, Officials Say

Washington Navy Yard officials yesterday denied charges made by the International Association of Machinists that "low wage rates" are impairing the defense program by encouraging skilled workers to leave Government service.

A Navy Yard spokesman declared that as many as 400 machinists a month have been hired in recent months, while the yard has been losing only about 50 machinists a month.

"We have encountered no difficulty," he added, "in hiring as many machinists as we have wanted to hire. We have been hiring as fast as we could absorb the new men."

He said that about 1,000 more skilled metal workers would be put to work within the next year.

The machinists, protesting a decision of the Navy Department wage board of review, which granted them a wage increase of only 16 cents a week, declared Sunday that low wage rates explain "the unfilled shifts in this magnificent plant."

Similar complaints came yesterday from machinists at the Alexandria naval torpedo factory, who charged in addition that first-class machinists have been graded as third-class workmen at the plant and subjected to "hidden" wage cuts in this manner.

Emmett C. Davison, former Mayor of Alexandria and general secretary-treasurer of the machinists international, urged that Secretary Knox order the wage board to reopen the case.

Man With Heart Disease Stabs Self to Death

A blood-covered open pocketknife in his hand, 51-year-old Edward Lucas, colored, of 240 Fourth Street, was found dead last night in his second-floor room at Mount Alto Hospital, where he was under treatment for heart disease.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, reporting he stabbed himsel, issued a suicide certificate.

Terrapin Wears Georgetown Team's Colors

BUT IT'S NOT THE TERRAPIN'S FAULT—Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland, and Lieut. Ralph I. Williams, of the military department of the university, shown at dedication of bronze terrapin in 1933. Since it was erected, the symbol of the University of Maryland has sported the colors of almost every university the Maryland football team has played. At present, the bronze terrapin wears blue for "dear old Georgetown"

Novelty Wears Off, but Not The Paint on Maryland 'Terp'

Officials Decide to Allow Bronze Reptile to Keep His Coat of Blue Until After Football Season

That bright blue overcoat of paint which the University of Maryland terrapin, reposing in bronze grandeur before the Ritchie Coliseum is sporting this fall, will not become a permament addition to the reptile's wardrobe, university authorities state, even though it has remained thus since shortly before the Georgetown football game.

When painting the "Terp" was a novelty, back in 1933, the maintenance crew of the university used to rush out the very next day to remove the opprobrious colors of the current football opponent. But, in years since, repeated daubings have either dulled the sting or else it has been decided that the best policy is to wait until the grid season is over to clean the monument, once it has been sullied.

One university official suggested that since the colors of Washington and Lee University, which is still to be met, are blue and white, the paint may have been left to save undergraduates of that institution the troubie of wielding the paint brush.

The colors of every football opponent of the university have been smeared on the noble emblem at one time or another, according to information gathered at the institution.

Munich Aide Says London Had Only 7 A.A. Guns in 1938

Copyright by New York Times

London, Nov. 18.—Sir Nevile Henderson, Britain's pre-war ambassador to Berlin, today said that at the time of the Munich conference Great Britain did not have a single Spitfire plane and had only "one or two experimental Hurricanes, and exactly seven modern antiaircraft guns for the defense of London."

This astonishing statement caused a considerable flurry in Whitehall tonight, but neither the air ministry nor the war office would make any comment.

Speaking at Ipswich, Sir Nevile said that in 1938 "Germany could have dropped 2,000 bombs on London and we could have made no reply." The former ambassador expressed the opinion that when Field Marshal Hermann Goering at that time told him that war meant that there would be very little left of London, and nothing of Czecho-Slovakia, "he was undoubtedly perfectly correct in saying so."

John D. Donovan, D. C. Native, Dies; Funeral Thursday

John D. Donovan, 60, died yesterday at his home, 2241 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest, after a long illness.

A native of Washington, Mr. Donovan was engaged in the retail meat business for 40 years, being connected at various times with the Riggs and Western Companies. Active in District civic affairs, he was a member of the Northeast Building Association, the Washington Board of Trade, the Elks Club, Modern Woodmen of America and the Holy Name Society of Holy Trinity Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nellie A. Donovan; two sons, J. J. Donovan and Dr. Leo L. Donovan, and a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy L. Walker. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 9:30 a. m. at his home, followed by high mass at 10 a. m. at Holy Trinity and burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Embassy Aide Appeals Sentence in London

Tyler Kent, 29-year-old Washingtonian and former clerk in the United States Embassy at London, has lodged an appeal of his conviction and sentence to seven years in prison for violating the British Official Secrets Act, The New York Times reported yesterday from London.

Kent, who attended St. Alban's School and George Washington University here, was sentenced November 7 afer his conviction on five counts of obtaining and communicating documents which might be of use to Germany for war purposes.

Carnival Man Dies Of Lion Wounds

Richmond, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—George (Abe) Martin, 60, carnival employe, died in a hospital here tonight several hours after he had been clawed and bitten by two lions.

The lions grabbed Martin through their cage bars as he was putting up wooden sides for the night. Fellow showmen who heard Martin's cries found each of the big cats gripping an arm. They had almost pulled the man into the cage.

Pope Sets Sunday For Peace Prayers

Vatican City, Nov. 18 (AP).—Pope Pius XII will broadcast Sunday an important speech in which he is expected to appeal again for peace, prelates said today. The speech will be delivered immediately after he celebrates mass in St. Peter's Basilica.

The Pontiff has proclaimed the day—next Sunday—a day of special prayers for peace.
